NO INVASION PLEDGED

Kennedy Speaks Of Future Free Cuba To Exiles

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — President Kennedy reviewed Saturday the brigade that tried to invade Cuba last year, and spoke of a future free Cuba.

While making no promises of U.S. armed invasion in Cuba, the President urged a wildly cheering Cuban crowd in the Orange Bowl to prepare for the day of freedom.

Kennedy, showing more emotion than in any recent speech, clenched his fist repeatedly and pounded it on the speaker's rostrum as he addressed the men of Brigade 2506 and 30,000 other exiles.

CUBANS CHANT

The Cubans chanted "Guerra" (War) and "Libertad" (Liberty) as Kennedy spoke.

After accepting the brigade's colors, smuggled out of Cuba, Kennedy said: "I can assure you that this flag will be returned to this brigade in a free Havana.

He said he hoped the brigade and members of their families "will take every opportunity to educate your children, yourselves in the many skills and disciplines which will be necessary when Cuba is once more free."

"I can assure you that it is the strongest wish of the people of this country, as well as the people of this hemisphere, that Cuba shall one day be free again, and when it is, this brigade will deserve to march at the head of the free column," Kennedy said.

About 1,200 members of the brigade were captured by Castro soldiers when the April 17, 1961, Bay of Pigs invasion collapsed. A number of them died, some were ransomed by relatives and 60 sick and wounded were liberated earlier this year.

The remaining 1,113 were freed from Cuban prisons and flown to Miami in time for Christmas as the result of negotiations by the Cuban Families Committee and New York attorney James B. Donovan.

Traffic Toll For Holiday Soars Fast

Six Persons Die In Two Crashes Involving Autos

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A pair of auto accidents that claimed a total of six lives added to the growing auto fatalities during the early hours of the four-day New Year holiday observance.

PLANE CRASHES

Three persons were killed when a speeding passenger train and a car collided near Monee, Ill., a town south of Chicago. Two other persons were reported critically hurt.

Three others—a teen-aged boy and two women—died when their car and a truck collided in southwestern Minnesota. Witnesses said the truck, heavily laden with beef, toppled over on the car with crushing force.

In other accidents, two holiday skiers were carried to their death in the crash of a two-engined plane near Tomahawk, Wis. A third member of the party, en route from Milwaukee to a northern ski resort, survived after spending 12 hours alone in near zero weather.

The count of deaths in traffic, fires and miscellaneous causes started at 6 p.m. Friday and ends midnight Tuesday.

The National Safety Council has estimated that between 420 and 480 persons may died in traffic accidents before the holiday is over. And 18,000 to 21,000 persons may suffer disabling injuries.

The safety council said their studies show that more than half of the holiday accidents will be caused by driving too fast for conditions, and that 38 per cent of the accidents will involve drinking drivers.

Over 10,000 Soviets Still Are In Cuba

Estimate Covers 4 Combat Units And Technicians

WASHINGTON (AP)—More than 10,000 Russian military personnel are believed to be still in Cuba, although the number seems to be dropping.

Earlier in the week, U.S. officials gave an estimate of 12,000. The 10,000 covers both troops and technicians — including four heavily armed Soviet combat battalions whose number is figured at about 6,000.

SOME LEAVE

Russian soldiers observed leaving Cuba are said to have been associated with the offensive weapons — the missiles and jet bombers—which Premier Khrushchev ordered withdrawn in the face of President Kennedy's demands. Khrushchev has informed Kennedy that the personnel associated with those weapons would be pulled out in due course.

Still in Cuba, it was stated here, are the Russians manning Soviet antiaircraft missiles. Neither they nor the ground battalions show signs of leaving.

The United States has made clear to the Soviet Union that it does not accept continued Russian military presence in Cuba as a normal state of affairs. However, as long as the outflow of Russian personnel continues, Washington is not making a big fuss about it.

Plans for further pressures against the government of Prime Minister Fidel Castro also are being played in a low key so as not to interfere with possible departure from Cuba of more relatives of the Cuban invasion prisoners and the release of some 20-odd Americans held in Cuban jails.

One move being held up is Kennedy's proposed order aimed at trying to restrict the flow of non-Communist ships in the Cuban trade run. Kennedy told newsmen on Dec. 12 that the shipping order should be out within two weeks.

U.N. Forces Seize Katanga Capital In Showdown Fight

THE TEN-ABOVE weather in Germany seems to be for the birds. Apparently confident that hunters were staying indoors, these wild ducks had a party looking for handouts along the partly frozen Main River in Frankfurt. Tshombe Flees Palace, Pledges All-Out Battle

ELISABETHVILLE, Congo (AP) — U.N. forces took the offensive Saturday and appealed to warring Katangan police to join them in "the liberation of the entire Congo." It appeared a showdown to force an end to Katanga's secession may be at hand.

Diplomatic reports said the U.N. forces launched a drive into Katanga's vital copper lands after seizing virtual control of this capital from the Katanga police.

TSHOMBE DEFIANT

President Moise Tshombe fled his palace after blue-helmeted U.N. troops and planes shattered Katangan resistence in Elisabethville. His whereabouts were unknown.

A pooled dispatch reaching Johannesburg, South Africa, from news correspondents in Elisabethville said Tshombe threatened to destroy Katanga's economic potential unless the U.N. ceased fire in 24 hours.

"The Katangan people will defend themselves until death and everywhere the United Nations troops will be fought as our worst enemy—with traps, with poisoned arrows and spears," it quoted Tshombe as saying.

A U.N. broadcast indicated a possible U.N. showdown fight was under way to bring an end to Tshombe's two - year secession from the central government in Leopoldville.

It called on Katanga's 18,000-man police force to desert Tshombe and fight against what it called "foreign interests" seeking to maintain a divided Congo. The broadcast did not identify the foreign interests.

The broadcast said: "The forces of the United Nations wish you no

British Warn U.N. Against War Action

LONDON (AP) — Britain has warned the United Nations not to attempt to conquer Katanga militarily as a means of reuniting the Congo.

A Foreign Office statement delivered to Secretary-General U Thant in New York late Friday strongly pressed him to stop the fighting in the breakaway province where U.N. forces say they are defending themselves against attack and trying to restore order.

Any bid to force a political settlement on the Congo "could only lead to a prolonged and expensive occupation of the country by the United Nations," the Foreign Office said.

BACK TSHOMBE

Thant was urged instead to take advantage of President Moise Tshombe's offer "to arrange a fair division" of Katanga's big mineral earnings with the central Congolese government in Leopoldville. Past U.N. attempts to sponsor such a deal have foundered with the Leopoldville and Elisabethville regimes angrily blaming each other for the failures.

The government of Prime Minister Harold Macmillan appeared once again to be siding with Tshombe against the U.N. This is what happened during previous battles in Katanga, in September and December of 1961.

The United States and other major powers have shown greater readiness to force the Katangans back under Leopoldville's rule.

Behind the British attitude lies the fear that Thant might be tempted to turn the latest flareup in Elisabethville into a full-scale operation to break the back of the Tshombe regime.

Ired Belgiums Assail Kennedy Congo Actions

BRUSSELS (UPI) — About 250 demonstrators shouted "Kennedy assassin," and "Kennedy to the gallows," outside the U.S. embassy Saturday night in protest against American support of the U.N. action in the Congo.

There were no serious incidents. Police cordoned off the embassy on the Boulevard Du Regent, and after shouting for half-an-hour the demonstrators dispersed.

The demonstrators had come from a meeting organized by the Katangese Friendship Society where speakers bitterly attacked the U.N. action in Katanga and U.S. policy in the Congo.

Albert Decoster, manager of the Elisabethville newspaper Echo De Katanga, told the meeting of 500 persons that "the dollar mercenaries, in the disguise of soldiers of peace, are sowing death and ruin in Katanga once more."

Apparently referring to Katangese copper, he said the U. S. stroyed, that will always mean one competitor less. Business is business."

After recalling Katanga President Moise Tshombe's offer to share Katangese mining revenues with the central government, Decoster described the current U.N. action in Katanga as "a deliberate and long prepared aggression."

General Truman (Lt. Gen. Louis Truman, head of the recent U. S. Military mission to the Congo) came on the spot to give the fatal 'go,' Decoster said.

British River Frozen Over By Icy Cold

LONDON (AP) — The River Thames froze over below the walls of ancient Windsor Castle Saturday. Britain and much of Europe shivered in the region's iciest snap in 15 years.

Most of Northern Europe lay under the blanket of snow which first covered it a week ago.

NO RELIEF

Weathermen predicted no immediate letup. Bitter north winds blowing are likely to continue the deep freeze. More snow is forecast for many regions.

Some British roads were like ice rinks; others were blocked by waist-high snowdrifts. In Bournemouth two elderly Britons died while shoveling snow.

At Windsor, 25 miles upstream from London, the Thames was frozen from bank to bank for the first time since 1947. A blizzard isolated the town of Weymouth.

Nearly all sports events in Britain were called off.

Thousands of skiers were out in the Bavarian Alps and the Swiss winter sports centers. In Austria there were more snow flurries and a danger of avalanches.

Temperatures dropped to 10 degrees above zero in Germany. Denmark was wrapped in a fresh 10 inches of snow. Lake Vaenern, Sweden's largest, was frozen over and 25 ships were bottled up.

A leaden sky over the Netherlands held promise of more snow. Many canals were frozen. Skaters were out by the hundreds.

Ice and hard-packed snow were road hazards in northern France, although there were signs of a thaw in the south. Paris was covered with a light, fresh snow. Plumbers were busy repairing burst water pipes.

ROADS DANGEROUS

Snow, Freezing Rains Pelt East

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Snow mixed with rain and sleet fell over much of the eastern part of the United States Friday, creating hazardous driving conditions for holiday weekend motorists.

A total of 3.6 inches of snow fell in the District of Columbia, bringing the total for the month to a record of 16.2 inches. The old record of 14.5 inches was set in 1932.

ACCIDENTS RISE

From 2 to 5 inches of snow, mixed with rain and sleet, fell in Maryland, Virginia and Pennsylvania.

Snow, sleet and freezing rain laid a dangerous carpet on highways in a broad area in the East Saturday.

An inch of snow accumulated on roads before noon in parts of the storm area, and more came down steadily.

The Weather Bureau said the storm pattern will spread northward.

The storm center was expected to reach the shoreline near Cape Hatteras, N.C., Sunday.

A mass of cold air, rolling into the Ohio Valley, also was expected to reach the Eastern Seaboard Sunday.

Sparkman Says Filibuster Foes To Lose Battle

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala., said Saturday he is certain the Senate would beat down an antifilibuster drive promised for the opening day of Congress, Jan. 9.

A bipartisan group of liberal senators have pledged a floor fight to force a change in Senate rules so that extended debate can be cut off more easily.

"I don't think there should be any change in present rules of the Senate," Sparkman said. "Many have forgotten that Rule 22, which has been amended several times, was first adopted to prevent filibusters."

Signals for the opening day battle to revise the rule came from Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., and a group of Democrats and Republicans who have lost past efforts to make it easier to curb debate.

Under Rule 22, the center of the controversy, debate can be closed if two-thirds of the senators present vote to adopt cloture—a margin rarely mustered. If cloture is voted—such as in the long row over the satellite communications corporation last term—debate is limited to one hour for each senator.

The liberal group, which says it has 40 supporters, plans an advance strategy meeting.

Sparkman said he assumes that Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., a leader of Southern senators who have successfully blocked other attempts to curb debate, "will call a meeting in advance of the new session."

Ship Reported Sunk In Gale

LONDON (AP)—An unidentified vessel was reported to have capsized and sunk in a howling gale three miles off the Cornish coast Saturday night.

Six rescue vessels sped to the area, but four abandoned the search for survivors after their own safety was imperiled by pounding seas.

The Dutch freighter Hollandia had reported seeing the vessel capsize. It was described as a coaster of about 600 tons.

Citizens Lose Filibuster At Council Meet

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP)—A Democratic-controlled City Council ended Saturday a 27-hour citizen's filibuster which was designed to prevent a council vote on a proposed redistricting plan.

The council voted 7 to 6 to end the talkaton after a motion made by Vice Mayor Michael J. Nugent, Democratic majority leader.

Several hours later, the redistricting proposal came to a vote and passed 7-6.

The filibuster which ended at 5:45 p.m. had started Thursday at 8 p.m.

The talkers had sought to hold the floor until the end of the year. This would have enabled them to block a plan of the Democrat-controlled council to revamp the election ward lines in this New York suburb of 190,000 people.

The talkaton was resumed at 1 p.m. Saturday after a 14½ hour recess called at 10:30 Friday night to enable weary participants to get some sleep.

At the time of the temporary truce, the session had been going for 26½ hours.

During the filibuster, some 185 speakers ranging in ages from 14 to 65 addressed the council against the Democrats' redistricting plan. Each speaker was limited to five minutes.

If the speakers had succeeded in holding off a vote until Jan. 1, Republican Mayor John E. Flynn would have been in position to appoint a charter revision commission to study the districting issue.

This would have delayed any action until after the group had given a report.

Fire Destroys Big Circus Tent

MILAN, Italy (AP)—Fire swept through the big tent of Italy's largest circus between shows Saturday night and within 10 minutes the tent and all its equipment were destroyed.

A number of horses and elephants scattered but were quickly rounded up and no people or animals were hurt.

Spokesman for the Darix Togni Circus said the fire probably was caused by a short circuit in the electrical system.

They estimated damages at the equivalent of $110,000.

The fire broke out an hour after the end of the matinee show. The public was gone and the circus personnel were having dinner in their trailers around the edge of the circus grounds.

ANONYMOUS DONOR

Funds Gift Saves Surgical Program

LONDON (UPI)—An anonymous donation of 30,000 pounds ($84,000) Saturday saved London's Hammersmith Hospital from shelving its experimental surgery program that has already brought about two modern medical "miracles."

The anonymous donor contacted the hospital's post-graduate medical school and offered to give 10,000 pounds ($28,000) a year for three years. This followed a warning Friday night by one of its surgeons, Dr. William J. Dempster, that the research carried on there for the past 14 years may have to stop shortly because of lack of money.

The school's team of surgeons developed the technique of kidney graft operations between unrelated people making medical history earlier this year by transferring a kidney from Dr. David Spencer to a seriously-ill colleague Dr. Ian Clark. The operation was successful but Clark died last week from other causes. The team also was responsible for two "miracle" operations to separate siamese twins. In each case one twin survived.

Dempster said after hearing about the donation, "this is a very generous offer. I am very grateful. It means that our experiments there will now be able to continue as normal."

Dr. Charles Newman, dean of the school, said: "We shall just carry on as we are doing, thanks to the extreme generosity of an individual. If he had not come along we should have had to have gone to the various foundations and collected the money somehow."

The threatened shortage of funds came about when official grants next spring were cancelled.

French Airliner With 24 Aboard Crashes, Burns

AJACCIO, Corsica (AP)—Flying through storm clouds, a French airliner with 24 persons aboard crashed and burned on a snow-covered mountain of this Mediterranean Island Saturday. Ground rescue teams labored through the snow and fog to reach the scene.

Fliers spotted the wreckage at an altitude of about 7,000 feet. They reported seeing no sign of life. One pilot said he saw the debris burning brightly.

The four-engined stratoliner was on a 60-mile flight from Bastia, Corsica, to Ajaccio. It was scheduled to continue to Nice, France. It carried a crew of three.

Players and Coaches on the men's and women's basketball teams of Bastia made up most of the 21 passengers. Both teams were scheduled to play in Nice Saturday night.

Among the players was Francine Nebod, a former noted North African woman athlete. While living in Algiers she won several North African track and field championships in dashes, hurdles and javelin. She had recently joined the Bastia basketball team.

4,000-POUND CRAFT

Satellite To Open In Space Planned

WASHINGTON (AP) — The space agency announced plans Saturday for one of its heaviest and bulkiest satellites—a 4,000-pound craft that would open up in space to expose a surface area of 2,000 square feet.

The vehicle, designed to measure micrometeorite impacts, will be launched aboard one of the early-model, research-type Saturn moon rockets during an atmospheric re-entry test of an Apollo spacecraft.

The Saturn, designed to send three-man Apollo vehicles to the moon and back, will have far more power than required for an earth re-entry test. The heavy micrometeorite satellite can be sent into orbit as a by-product of the re-entry trial.

The national Aeronautics and Space Administration said the size of the satellite will permit the use of a skin much thicker than that employed on smaller satellites. This may make new information available as to the penetrating power of the tiny cosmic dust particles that would be encountered on a flight to the moon.

The NASA announcement that the satellite will be launched on Saturn no. 8 and no. 9 indicated that two such craft are planned.

The launchings will be made into a low orbit—100 to 200 miles above the earth. The anticipated orbital lifetime would be more than a year.

NASA has invited 24 firms to submit proposals by Jan. 18 for the design and construction of a satellite that might open up like an umbrella, or unfold in space in some other manner.

Louisiana's Process Of Amending Constitution Is Rapped By Researchers

Story Wins Man Title Of Champ Liar

BURLINGTON, Wis. (UPI)—It was so dry this year, according to Walter Lewis of Williamsport, Ohio, "that when my canary bird wanted a drink, I had to pull up the well and run it through the wringer."

Lewis' story was tall enough to win him the title of 1962 world's champion liar of the Burlington Liar's Club.

The Liar's Club, which each year honors the nation's outstanding whoppers, gave honorable mention to this one turned in by Joe Sage of Oceanside, Calif.

"I have a new dog at my house now; it's the smallest chihuahua in existence," Sage said. "I took him for a walk the other night and had been gone two hours before I realized that I had put the leash on a flea. My dog was on the back of the flea."

A Howard, S. D., man, Emil Clementson also received mention for his story about the government building several dams on the Missouri River in South Dakota for light and power.

"We had a lot of rain this summer and for several days the lights were very dim because of the dirty water running through the turbines," Clementson lied.

Harry Shapeero, Seattle, Wash., claimed "it was so cold in Cheyenne, Wyo., on the night of last Jan. 2 that all the clocks and watches stopped at midnight so the minute hand and the hour hand could huddle together and keep warm."

Finally, a story by Francis Carroir, Boulder City, Nev., couldn't be overlooked by the judges.

"The mile deep Grand Canyon of the Colorado, in Arizona, has been photographed so much by the tourists that its rocky walls are beginning to show the wear and tear."

WALTER LEWIS, 62, has a big smile at his home Saturday after being informed by the Burlington, Wis., Liars Club that he had been proclaimed the new World Champion Liar. The 62-year-old Lewis, a building maintenance man at Lockbourne Air Force Base, told a story of the weather being so dry that when his canary birds wanted a drink he had to "pull up the well and run it through a wringer." The selection was an annual Burlington event. (AP Wirephoto)

Council Reports Traffic Deaths At Record High

CHICAGO (UPI)—The nation's 1962 traffic toll will be the worst in history, regardless of the number killed over the New Year's holiday, the National Safety Council indicated Saturday.

In the first 11 months of the year 37,140 persons were killed in traffic accidents, 1,311 more than in the same period of 1941, the year which set the record for highway deaths.

In 1941 a total of 39,969 persons were killed in traffic accidents. This year, the Safety Council said, the toll will be well over 40,000.

The toll in the first 11 months of 1962 was up 8 per cent over the 34,250 traffic deaths in the same period of 1961.

The Safety Council said that 1.3 million persons suffered injuries which disabled them for more one day during the period from January through November.

Chicago remained the safest large city with 218 traffic deaths in the first 11 months of the year, 46 fewer than in the same period of 1961. Detroit, Los Angeles, Philadelphia and New York were next in line, in that order.

St. Louis, Mo., which led the cities of 750,000 to 1 million population in traffic safety, had 59 deaths in the first 11 months of the year, two less than in the same period of 1961. Cleveland, Ohio, and Baltimore, Md., ranked second and third, respectively.

Buffalo, N.Y., which led cities 500,000-750,000, had 9 fewer traffic deaths through November than in that period of 1961. Dallas, Tex. and Milwaukee, Wis., were second and third, respectively.

IRES UNION LEADER

Senate Probing Maritime Strike

NEW YORK (AP)—Senate investigators began probing Saturday into the Maine-to-Texas strike of 60,000 dockworkers. The president of the striking union immediately attacked the investigation as "harrassment."

Investigators from the Senate investigations subcommittee of Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., came here to talk with union leaders in the middle of efforts by Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz to end the paralyzing walkout.

Capt. William V. Bradley, president of the International Longshoremen's Association, said bluntly that the labor secretary "has priority on our time."

"We feel this is a form of harassment," the union leader added, "and it comes at a very bad time" when both the shippers and union are trying to end the strike.

His remarks were provoked by conferences the committee investigators had set up with him: Thomas Gleason, ILA vice president, and Anthony Anastasia, another ILA vice president and brother of Albert Anastasia, a gang leader slain in 1957.

In Washington, McClellan said he was interested in allegations that the strike was called mainly to protect "featherbedding" practices of the dockworkers.

He invited congressional action to require compulsory arbitration of labor disputes affecting the public welfare.

"Under current laws," he said in a statement, "the government is utterly powerless to protect the public interest and the people from the blighting consequences of this stoppage of the flow of commerce . . ."

His subcommittee, he added, may well become interested in exploring whether the dispute involves valid differences or an effort to perpetuate featherbedding practices.

What his investigators learn in a preliminary inquiry will determine whether public hearings are warranted, McClellan said.

The main issue in the strike is the size of work gangs. Ship owners contend the present 20-man gangs amount to featherbedding and want them reduced to 17 men.

The longshoremen, resisting automation, say they will not negotiate away their jobs.

Both sides have agreed to a study of the manpower situation, but they are in conflict on how much time should be devoted to this.

Wirtz met with members of the union during the day and arranged other meetings with the New York Shipping Association and the ILA full negotiating team.

He had no comment on any of the talks.

The walkout is now in its sixth day and has brought a virtual halt to shipping in Atlantic and Gulf ports.

State Is Sorely In Need, PAR Group Declares

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Louisiana "sorely needs to correct the abuses" in its constitutional amending process, the Public Affairs Research Council (PAR) said Saturday in a review of voting in November on 48 proposed amendments.

Since 1921, PAR said in its monthly Analysis, the state constitution has been amended 439 times and "continues to be the most complex in the nation."

Other problems connected with the amending process were cited by PAR as follows:

1. Voter participation tends to be light. A maximum of 32 per cent of the registered voters participated in the November election.

2. The position of an amendment on the ballot has much to do with the number of votes it receives, with those near the end receiving far fewer votes than those heading the list.

3. Voters have difficulty in understanding the complex issues and often can gain no insight into the meaning of a proposal from the language appearing on the ballot.

"SELECTIVITY"

While pointing to both the need to improve the amending process and to ways of accomplishing this, PAR also noted voters "exhibited a high degree of selectivity" in their voting.

PAR cited these examples: Three amendments with drafting errors were soundly defeated. Out of four amendments dealing with changes in civil service, only one passed. Out of seven calling for changes in the courts and court procedures, only three passed.

It is no longer as easy to amend the constitution as it once was, PAR reported. Whereas it was normal some years ago for 90 per cent or more of the proposed amendments to be approved, voters have rejected in recent years from one-third to almost one-half of those submitted. A third was rejected in November, with half of these being amendments previously defeated.

"The legislature should take note of this," Par commented, "and assume its legislative responsibility on those issues not requiring constitutional amendment."

To resolve some of the problems, other than through a constitutional convention, PAR offered these observations.

OBSERVATIONS

1. The purpose of many amendments could be achieved through statutory acts without changing the constitution. Many of the 439 amendments adopted since 1921 could have been achieved by statutory acts.

2. Adoption of several broad, general amendments dealing with ports, zoning, tax authority and other local matters would give local governments the authority to solve many of their own problems and remove the need for state approval of local projects.

3. Restrictions could be placed on the number of amendments to be submitted at one time.

4. There could be a waiting period between the defeat of a proposal and re-submission of the same idea to the electorate.

5. Language used on the ballot could be made simple and clear as to the purpose of each amendment so citizens could vote more intelligently.

Other states have found one or more of these techniques useful in curbing frequent and detailed amendments to their constitutions.

IN COMMUNIST COURT

Digger Of Escape Tunnel Gets Life

BERLIN (UPI)— A Communist court Saturday sentenced a young West Berlin bicycle racing champion to life imprisonment at hard labor for digging a refugee escape tunnel under the Berlin wall.

The defendant, 24-year-old Harry Seidel, was convicted after a two-day show trial in East Berlin. He had been captured Nov. 15 when he emerged into the cellar of an East German house at the end of a 70-yard tunnel leading from the U. S. sector of Berlin. An informer was believed to have betrayed him.

Seidel, himself a refugee from East Germany, was accused of taking part in "organized provocations against the state border" and being a member of a West Berlin "terror organization."

The stiff sentence—apparently aimed at deterring other West Berliners from aiding refugees—was denounced by West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt as a "scandalous verdict of a modern inquisition."

Brandt called on the world to protest the Communist verdict which he called an "act of vengeance" against a man who "followed the commands of humanity and his conscience to bring together persons forcibly separated from each other by the wall."

In West Berlin, meanwhile, the U. S. Army gave the Distinguished Service Medal to its retiring Berlin commandant, Maj. Gen. Albert Watson II, for keeping U. S. troops ready to fight to defend the isolated city throughout recurring crises.

The medal was presented by Gen. Paul L. Freeman Jr., U. S. Army commander in Europe, at a farewell ceremony for Watson, who leaves his command here Jan. 2 after 20 months of Berlin service. Watson will return to the United States to command the 3rd Army at Fort McPherson, Atlanta, Ga.

Seidel was sentenced under a rarely-used "law for the protection of peace"—a catch-all measure covering all anti-Communist activity.

Negro Is Held After Accident Near Newellton

ST. JOSEPH (Special) — An Arkansas Negro is being held in the Tensas Parish jail following an accident near Newellton Friday in which four St. Joseph Negroes were injured.

The injured were identified as Ike Turner, his wife, Phyllis, Mae Lee Percy, sister of the Turner woman, and Lara Watson, all of St. Joseph.

Driver of the other auto, Gilbert Clevers, has been charged with driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages, following too close and destruction to property.

The accident occured during a rain storm about five miles south of Newellton on highway 65. The St. Joseph Negroes in the Turner car were traveling south when the Clevers' vehicle also going south, reportedly rammed them from behind while traveling at a high rate of speed. The Turner car overturned and was demolished while the Clevers auto was damaged only slightly.

SPY CATCHER RETIRES

Teams To Check On Laos Forces

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—Two International Control Commission teams flew to eastern and western Laos Saturday to investigate reports that foreign troops remain in Laos.

One team, composed of one officer from each of the three countries forming the commission—Poland, Canada and India, departed for Ban Longkou in the East to investigate a right-wing claim that Communist Viet Minh troops who helped the leftist Pathet Lao during the civil war are still there.

ACQUITTED OF CHARGES

Red China Says Teams Of Spies Are Wiped Out

TOKYO, Sunday (UPI) — The Chinese Communist Defense Ministry said Saturday that nine U. S. - Nationalist Chinese spy teams totalling 172 men were wiped out along the China coast in the past three months while trying to create a "guerrilla corridor" for invasion of the mainland.

The Defense Ministry, in a communique broadcast by Peking Radio, said the teams landed along the coast of Kwangtung Province opposite Formosa between Oct. 1 and Dec. 19. It said the operations were carried out under the code names "Haiwei" and "Panchao."

Panchao was the name of a Chinese warload who lived hundreds of years ago and whose name has been used as a sign of victory. The meaning of Haiwei was not known.

The detailed communique gave alleged dates and places of the landings and the number of men involved and their Chinese names. It said some were dropped from planes but that most landed from boats sent from Formosa.

In Taipei the Nationalist Chinese government declined to confirm or deny the claim that U. S.-Chiang Kai-shek agents" raided the mainland and a spokesman said "it is not our practice to disclose our military movements against the Chinese Communists."

Hodges Insists U.S. Tax Cut Essential Need

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges pictured the nation's economy today as a husky giant, dragging its heels. He insisted a tax cut is essential to shove it ahead.

Taking a year-end look at business conditions, Hodges concluded the pace of progress will be slower in 1963 than in 1962 "and at a level well below full employment of the nation's economic resources."

Economic activity has achieved record levels, he said, and the economy is basically sound. But, he added in an outlook and review statement, the rate of forward movement in recent months was slowing.

"Favorable response to the federal income tax reduction program which the President will recommend to the Congress in January is imperative—to expand consumer buying power still further and to increase the incentive for business to invest in new and more modern plant and equipment, and in inventories," Hodges said.

The secretary gave no inkling as to exactly what the administration will propose for tax reduction and revision. But he said a cut is vital not only to provide "additional incentive" in the coming year but to generate sales, jobs and profits for the long term.

"The sooner we release the tax brake on our economy," Hodges said, "the surer we may be that 1963 will be the beginning of a long period of rapid economic growth and rising prosperity for the American people."

Hodges' statement fit into an administration effort to build up grassroots pressure for the Kennedy program. Many in Congress are wary about lowering revenues when they see no deep crack in the economy.

Estimating the 1962 gross national product—total output of goods and services—will show a 7 per cent increase over 1961 to $554 billion, and attributing the rise to production rather than price, Hodges had this to say: "For some time now, the over-all pace of our economic growth has not been satisfactory. The level of unemployment is much too high, and the trend of business investment in plant and equipment has been disappointing."

Since government demands cannot produce full employment, Hodges argued, something else needs doing to stimulate the private economy. That something, he reasoned, is an income tax cut.

Looking back at 1962, Hodges found heavy purchases of new autos bolstering consumer outlays. Expenditures on soft goods "were not showing much improvement," but spending on services was still going up. Government spending—primarily for defense at the federal level and for roads at the state and local level—also continued to rise.

In the last three months, Hodges said, business investment evened off and signs "point to a slight dip . . . in the first quarter of 1963." Housing outlays dropped from the third to fourth quarters.

"In the final quarter, the excess in steel stocks had disappeared, and retail stocks of autos were low and in need of rebuilding," Hodges said. "In general, however, business inventory policy continued to be conservative."

Hodges said consumers enjoyed higher living standards than they had ever known and business profits increased with new highs in output and employment, purchasing power and sales in 1962.

FLEECE ELDERLY

Senate To Probe Slick Promoters

WASHINGTON (AP)—Frauds, quacks and slick promoters suspected of fleecing elderly people of hundreds of millions of dollars a year are coming under Senate investigation.

Sen. Pat McNamara, D-Mich., announced Saturday his Special Senate Committee on Aging will start hearings Jan. 15-17. Some of those accused of fraudulent practices will face interrogation later.

The objective, McNamara said in a statement, is to determine whether federal laws are strict enough to curb abuses and whether the government should do a better job of alerting elderly citizens to sharp operators.

"Arthritis sufferers alone spend more than $250 million each year on misrepresented drugs, devices and treatments, and the cost of unnecessary or dangerous medications probably exceeds $1 billion each year," he said.

McNamara said "so-called health-food quackery" costs the elderly another $500 million a year.

Phony retirement schemes, crooked land sale deals, a thriving traffic in "business and investment opportunities" are among other subjects slated for scrutiny, McNamara said.

Committee aides reported evidence of the peddling of virtually worthless lots in schemes representing the land as a free prize—conditional upon payment of purported "closing costs" which total far more than any price the promoter could expect to get for the land.

Another gimmick, they said, is the sale at "bargain" rates, or even award in the guise of prizes, of lots which have no access to roads. The elderly owner then discovers the lot he envisioned as the site for a retirement home is useful only if he buys adjacent property at an inflated price, the aides said.

High pressure tactics to sign up elderly persons to long-term contracts for everything from dancing lessons to merchandise purchases also will come under study in the hearings, the sources said.

harm whatsoever. On the contrary they have come to help your country overcome its difficulties. Join them, since your objectives are the same: the liberation of the entire Congo."

Diplomatic sources in Leopoldville, site of U.N. Congo headquarters, said the U.N. troops launched their offensive to enlarge their perimeter around the Katanga capital.

Earlier, U.N. forces took control of vital points in Elisabethville.

Throwing bombers and jet fighters into action, the U.N. command seized the upper hand in Elisabethville after two days of attacks from Katangan police. U.N. forces appeared engaged in a mopping up operation.

Katangan police troops fled into the bush ahead of the U.N. counterattacks, leaving weapons, equipment and armored cars, a U.N. spokesman said.

The U.N. reported Katangan casualties were low, however, and that few Katangans were taken prisoner.

U.N. forces lost one killed and five wounded in fighting Friday. Prior reports said seven soldiers and eight civilians had been wounded.

Tshombe dropped from sight. A U.N. spokesman said he was gone when U.N. forces took over his palace after bombing raids on strategic points in the city.

The president, who led this province's secession from the Congo central government, had been reported trying to flee to Kipushi, 15 miles from Elisabethville on the Northern Rhodesian border, or to Kolwezi.

Kolwezi, where Tshombe's air force has its base, came under attack by Swedish-made jet fighters. Four Katangan planes were said to have been destroyed. Kolwezi is 150 miles northwest of Elisabethville in the copper mining country.

Reports reaching foreign embassies in the central government capital of Leopoldville said the U.N. forces drove up the road to Jadotville, about halfway from Elisabethville to Kolwezi.

Katanga's copper and cobalt resources have been Tshombe's chief reason for breaking with Premier Cyrille Adoula's central government after the Congo achieved independence from Belgium on June 30, 1960.

Katanga kept about $40 million a year in royalties, taxes and dividends from the operations of the giant Belgian mining firm, Union Miniere, alone.

A U.N. victory in forcing the return of Katanga to Leopoldville's control likely would save Adoula's regime from collapse. U.N. prestige in Africa would get a boost.

The Belgian embassy in Leopoldville, 1,000 miles northwest of here, reported Union Miniere had begun evacuating Belgian civilians from Kipushi.

Embassy sources there also reported that the population in Jadotville was calm.

Fighting was heavy in this capital during the morning but became sporadic after the U.N. forces advanced on the key positions.

In Washington, officials said they had heard from the U.S. mission in the Congo that the hostilities began when a Katangan did not understand an order from an Ethiopian soldier to halt. The Ethiopian fired a shot in the air. The Katangan, apparently seeking cover, rolled down a hill. His comrades assumed he had been shot and opened fire on the Ethiopian.

King Squirreler

For squirrel hunters with tired feet, Rennie is a dog almost too good to be true. Rennie's owner, Mrs. Ethel Hearn, 108 Masonic Dr., Monroe, says all you have to do is let out of the car and sit back and wait.

If there's any squirrels in that section of the woods Rennie will tree them and start barking. All the hunter has to do is get out of the car and kill the squirrel. If no squirrels are around Rennie returns to the car in about 20 minutes and the hunter drives a little farther down the road, Mrs. Hearn said.

"Rennie will tree anything," Mrs. Hearn said. "He's even treed quail." Rennie also has scores of rabbits and coons to his credit. This year D. M. Smith of West Monroe has been taking Rennie out. Despite the dry year, he has bagged about 24 squirrels.

Mrs. Hearn who has a 4.10 gauge shotgun also takes Rennie out frequently. "He loves to hunt with women," Mrs. Hearn laughlingly said. "Rennie is an ordinary dog with some Catahoula in him," the proud owner said, emphasizing more than once that the dog wasn't for sale.

Main Of Cotton To Join In Big Dallas Parade

DALLAS (AP) — A newly crowned beauty queen will add sparkle to Cotton Bowl week, rapidly approaching the climax of the Texas-Louisiana State football game Tuesday.

The new queen is Shelby Smith, elected Friday night in Memphis, Tenn., as Maid of Cotton. The 22-year-old beauty from Albuquerque, N. M., will arrive Monday for her first public appearance since winning the title.

The others will include the Cotton Bowl Queen, Jessica Darling of Houston; the LSU queen, Gay Schneider of Lake Providence, and princesses representing Southwest Conference schools.

The parade starting at 10 a.m. will be led by the Marine Band from Parris Island, S. C. Thirty other bands will take part.

Bands from seven states will be interspersed between the floats and other units.

Head Of Glazer Wholesale Firm Dies In Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — Final tribute will be paid Sunday to Max Glazer, a quiet Dallas philanthropist and welfare leader.

Rabbis of three synagogues here of varying tradition — reform, conservative and orthodox—which Glazer was a member will conduct the funeral services at 2:30 p.m. at a Dallas funeral home.

The 65-year-old president of Glazer's Wholesale Drug Co., a liquor and beer distributing firm with branches throughout Texas, Louisiana and Arkansas, died Friday in Las Vegas.

Born in Chicago, Ill., he came to Dallas with his parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Louis Glazer, in 1909. His father was in the soft drink bottling business. In 1933, Glazer set up the wholesale distributing firm.

Major branches are in Fort Worth, Amarillo, Odessa, San Antonio, Corpus Christi, Houston, New Orleans, Lafayette, Shreveport, Tallulah, La., and Little Rock.

Pope To Give Annual Blessing

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John XXIII will mark the end of the old year and the start of the new Monday night by attending a choral concert and giving a New Year's Eve blessing to a traditional torchlight procession.

The Vatican said Saturday the 81-year-old pontiff would go to the Clementine Hall of the Apostolic Palace to listen to a program by the Sistine choir. Many cardinals, archbishops, bishops and a few specially invited laymen will attend.

FATHER OF FIVE

Man Again Faces Life Of Darkness

NEW YORK (AP)—A 35-year-old father of five children again faces the threat of a life of darkness from which he emerged only seven months ago.

Leonard Ecker came here Christmas Day from his home in Bay City, Mich., to check the progress of a cornea transplant which returned partially the sight he lost when he was 14 months old.

"I sort of slipped off and came here for an examination," the high school teacher said. "I thought I would be back in my classroom after the Christmas holidays."

Instead, physicians at the New York Eye and Ear Infirmary, where the cornea transplant on his right eye was done seven months ago, have advised him to remain for an indefinite period.

They said a cataract was clouding over the transplant. His other eye is artificial.

The transplant gave Ecker the first glimpse of his family.

Commenting on the situation, Ecker says he finds the doctor's "prognosis interesting . . . but there is nothing definite."

However, he said: "We do have a glimmer of hope. In Bay City, his wife said: "We can only keep on hoping and praying."

Ecker can now see very little but doctors are hopeful that with continued treatment he may regain 10 per cent of normal vision in the right eye.

Eight Children To Be Reunited In Orphange

LENOIR, N.C. (AP)—Eight of the nine Bentley orphans will be reunited Monday for a 70-mile trip to an orphanage and their chance to remain together.

At 8 a.m. Monday, Miss Andrea Triplett, the pretty 21-year-old welfare worker handling the case, and the Rev. J. T. Turnage of Lenoir, will drive their cars to five foster homes where the children have been staying.

It will be the first time since mid-November that the children have been together.

Only 10-month-old Terry Wayne Bentley won't make the trip. The Church of God Orphanage in Kannapolis, which asked to take the children, can't accommodate babies. But Miss Triplett said when Terry Wayne is 2 years old, he will join his brothers and sisters.

The parents, Abner Avery Bentley, 67-year-old retired carpenter, his 40-year-old wife, and all nine of their children were in the family's pickup truck Oct. 7 when it plunged off a mountain road near Morganton.

The parents were killed, but only two of the children received minor injuries.

An uncle was unable to support the brood, and Miss Triplett stepped into the case. She placed the children in six foster homes.

"The Bentleys were very poor, but the children wanted to stay together," she said. "The Church of God Orphanage offered to take them. We had other offers, but not to take all of them.

"I talked to them as a group. I explained to them this may be the only way they could remain together."

The children are Abner Jr., 14; R. C., 13; Bonnie, 10; Jerry, 9; Darlene, 7; A. B., 6; H. T., 5; and Danny Gene, 4.

2 Bound Over On Drugs Count

CLARKSDALE, Miss. (AP) — Two former Michigan State University students — arrested on charges of possession of narcotics —were bound over to the Grant Jury on $15,000 bond Saturday after waiving preliminary hearing.

Benjamin J. Taylor, 21, of Camden, N.J., and Ivanhoe Donaldson, 21, of New York, both Negroes, were arrested Thursday night while sleeping in a truck filled with supplies for needy Negroes.

Police Chief Ben C. Collins said officers found two large boxes of barbiturates in the vehicle and about 15 pounds of food and clothing.

Aaron Henry of Clarksdale, president of the state chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said the students were helping in a drive to bring emergency supplies to Negro farm families left destitute in the winter months.

Deaths

Theft Cleared, Negro Juvenile Is Apprehended

Monroe police quickly cleared the theft of around $70 in cash and two checks that were taken from a grocery store Saturday morning with the apprehension of a 15-year-old Negro juvenile.

Chief James C. Kelly Jr. said his department received the report of the theft from Mrs. Tony Falletto, who runs a grocery store at 1601 Breard St., around noon Saturday. Not more than an hour later, officers had apprehended the youth who took the money and checks.

The loot was returned to the owner, and the boy placed in the juvenile detention home to await juvenile court action.

The Monroe department was also probing the burglary of Parkview Cleaners, at 813 Park Ave., that occurred Friday night. Mrs. E. A. Burson, an employee, reported the break-in when she discovered it as she opened for business Saturday morning. Nothing was reported missing.

Three persons were booked for driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages in the Twin Cities. Monroe officers booked two and West Monroe police apprehended one.

Those booked in Monroe include Negro McKinley Staten, 36, 3212 Church St., taken into custody at 12:15 a.m. in the 3000 block of Renwick St.; and Barrett Birch Blalock Jr., 22, of 11123 Alvin St., Dallas, Tex., apprehended at 1:20 a.m. in the 2400 block of Louisville Avenue. Blalock was also charged with no driver's license and both also booked for reckless driving.

POLICE SKEPTICAL

Man Confesses Fourth Murder

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A man who confessed to three murders in Illinois and Kentucky claimed a fourth victim Saturday.

But Los Angeles police, admittedly skeptical, say they will release Alfred Lawless, 34, next Wednesday unless authorities in the other states issue a warrant for him.

Lawless' latest confession was to the murder of Judith Mae Andersen in Illinois in 1957. Her dismembered body was found in two oil containers floating in Lake Michigan nine days after she disappeared from home. She had been shot.

Authorities said they doubted Lawless was the murderer.

"His story didn't jibe very well with what Chicago police told us was the cause of death," said Lt. Charles R. Rothert. "He told us he cut her up. At no time did he say anything about a gun."

Lawless, about to be released from jail after serving a 60-day drunkenness sentence, confessed Friday to the 1957 slaying of the Grimes sisters in Chicago.

He also claimed to have killed Walter "Pea-John" Miller of Jamestown, Ky., "in 1947 or 1948."

The Grimes sisters, Barbara, 15, and Patricia, 13, were kidnaped in Chicago. Their frozen bodies were found beside a country road.

Chicago police homicide commander Francis Flanagan said Saturday he doesn't believe Lawless' confession "because of vagueness and conflicting data which doesn't jibe with records of either crime."

In Jamestown, a judge said the Miller death occurred "in 1953 or 1954" and authorities there listed him as the victim of a hit-run driver.

Franklin Youth Is Accidentally Shot Saturday

WINNSBORO (Special) — A 16-year-old Crowville High School boy was listed in good condition Saturday night in St. Francis Hospital in Monroe after being accidentally shot in the stomach with a .22 caliber rifle here about 6:30 p.m. Saturday.

Willis A. Riser, son of Mr. and Mrs. Melton Riser of Crowville, was wounded when the rifle which he was picking up from the floor of a pickup truck accidentally discharged, the bullet striking him in the stomach.

He was treated at a local clinic and then transferred to the Monroe hospital by Mulhearn ambulance.

Relatives said that x-rays taken at St. Francis Hospital showed that no serious damage was done by the bullet and the youth was undergoing surgery late Saturday night for removal of the projectile.

According to Franklin Parish Deputy Sheriff J. L. Eldridge, Riser and a friend, Johnny Ford, about 17, of route four Winnsboro, had been visiting some friends here. When they returned to the truck Riser picked up the .22 caliber bolt action rifle which had been standing on the floor board of the vehicle and was going to place it behind the seat. While he was pulling the rifle toward him, it accidentally went off.

Plane Crashes Surf; 4 Escape

MALIBU, Calif. (AP) — Four persons were rescued unharmed Saturday after their single-engine plane crash-landed in the surf, sheriff's deputies said.

Officers identified those rescued as Thomas C. Lindholm, 37, of Hidden Hills, Calif., the pilot; his two sons, Erick 11, and Daryl, 9; and a friend, Robert Snyder, 9, also of Hidden Hills.

Investigators said Lindholm told them the plane developed engine trouble and he attempted to land on the beach in front of the exclusive Malibu Colony residential section.

THORNY PATH AHEAD

Outcome Of Tax Cut Bid Unsure

WASHINGTON (AP)—There is much talk of tax reduction as the new 88th Congress gathers for its first session, starting Wednesday. But the path ahead is thorny and the outcome uncertain.

Certainly the refund checks or the extra cash in pay envelopes are not just around the corner. In fact the reduction, if it comes, may not come nearly as early as President Kennedy and some of his key advisers would like.

Two other strong-willed men—both also highly influential in Congress—will have much to say about the chances, form, and timing of tax reduction and reform legislation. They are Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, and Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., who heads the Senate Finance Committee.

Kennedy wants tax revision, with a rate cut as soon as possible, to stimulate the economy and help him make good on his move - the - country - forward promises.

Mills wants tax reform, with rate cuts at least partly offset by loophole plugging to hold down the revenue loss right from the start.

Byrd says curbs on spending and a balanced budget should be a condition for any tax cut.

Kennedy himself said in his Dec. 14 speech on his tax program. "I had hoped to present it in an atmosphere of a balanced budget."

But these hopes weren't realized. Instead of the thin surplus tentatively forecast a year ago, this year's government operations will result in a deficit of $7.8 billion, by Treasury estimates, following hard on the $6.377 billion deficit of the preceding year.

In the face of such figures, tax cut advocates have their work cut out for them as they argue for reducing revenues by $6 billion to $10 billion, the range usually discussed. Smaller cuts, most believe, would be ineffectual. Even a $6-billion cut might add less than $100 to the annual spending money of an average middle income family.

But favoring the cause of tax relief is widespread agreement that present income tax rates, 20 to 91 per cent for individuals, 52 per cent for most businesses, are too high.

Most economists, businessmen and legislators appear to agree with Kennedy that such rates siphon off purchasing power from individuals and investment potential from business which, if available, would boost the economy and help provide jobs for the flood of young people born since World War II.

But getting a complicated tax reform bill through Congress, starting with Mills' committee, going through the House, then to Byrd's group, then to the Senate and finally in all likelihood to a House-Senate conference, is a months-long undertaking at best.

Dozens of interests must be given their hearing. Every provision of such a bill is important to somebody. Conflicting pressures delay the measure at every turn. In fact, Congress took the better part of two years to pass a much simpler interim revenue change bill that became law in 1962. Rewriting the revenue code could take longer.

After consultation with Mills, and after some economic indicators pointed toward improvement, he gave up that idea but said a reform bill with rate cuts retroactive to Jan. 1, 1963, would be submitted to the new Congress.

Mills has promised early consideration of a tax reform bill, but he has made it plain he still favors tax reduction as part of — not separate from — tax reform. And he apparently told the President as much at a meeting in December.

Police Battle Dominican Sect, Over 20 Slain

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP)—More than 20 persons, among them Gen. Antonio Garcia Vasquez were killed in a battle between police and peasant members of a witchcraft sect, the government said Saturday.

Ambushed by the cultists Friday, police responded by burning the town of Palma Sola, center of a sect called Liborismo. Twenty-five peasants died in the flames, including two of the five brothers who had organized twice-weekly witchcraft ceremonies, the government reported.

Two hundred cane huts were destroyed and 673 persons were arrested. But 500 fled to the hills near Palma Sola, a southern town near the Haitian border. Soldiers pursued them and military units in the region were placed on alert.

The government announcement said 30 were hurt in the battle. Civil and military authorities had gone to the town from Santo Domingo hoping to convince the cultists to end their activities.

Admiral Says Soviets Plan A-Sub Gains

WASHINGTON (AP)—A senior admiral said Saturday that while this country has a long headstart on building atomic-powered submarines, the Soviets "now have a greater number than most people realize."

Vice Adm. John W. Thach, the Pacific Fleet's antisubmarine warfare chief, did not mention any numbers. There have been reliable reports that 10 Soviet nuclear-powered subs are in commission or nearly so, and that the Soviet atomic sub fleet may double by the end of 1963.

The United States has 27 nuclear-powered submarines, nine of them Polaris missile-firing craft. Within the next year, the U.S. atomic sub force is due to grow to 41 boats, including 18 Polarises. It has 115 conventional submarines for a total of 142.

This country commissioned its first nuclear sub, the Nautilus, eight years ago.

As late as six years ago, the Soviets put on a massive sub building campaign—turning out about 85 new vessels in 1956 alone. But they were diesel-powered boats and this was a "serious strategic blunder," said Vice Adm. Elton W. Grenfell, submarine force commander with the Atlantic Fleet.

The Soviets evidently realized this, because they stopped building conventional subs and began gearing up for production of nuclear submarines armed with missiles, Thach said.

The Soviet navy's nuclear sub building program is doing "better than expected," he said, and "I know of no reason to doubt" claims that they have fired ballistic missiles from submerged craft.

It appears likely, Thach said, that the Soviets gradually will replace their 400 or more conventional submarines with nuclear-powered craft—"if not boat for boat, then on a ratio of perhaps two of the new for three of the old."

This ratio would mean about 265 Soviet nuclear-powered submarines eventually.

Under present plans, the American nuclear submarine force will total 81 boats—41 of them carrying 656 nuclear-tipped missiles able to reach 2,800 miles to hit targets deep inside the Soviet Union.

STARTING NEW YEAR'S DAY

Uncle Sam To Dig Deeper Into Taxpayers' Pockets

WASHINGTON (AP) — Uncle Sam is going to dig a bit deeper into your pockets starting on New Year's Day.

For all of the 70 million Social Security taxpayers, this will mean up to $24 additional a year for the wage and salary man with a like amount due from his employer. The self-employed will pay up to $33.60 more.

For every user of the mails, it means a penny more on first-class letters, air mail stamps and post cards. These increases take effect Jan. 7.

For federal taxpayers generally, including many types of businesses, it means an estimated $855 million of additional levies resulting from provisions of the 1962 tax revision law.

The Social Security tax hike, which takes effect Jan. 1, is a long-planned move to provide necessary financing for the far-flung system. Two similar increases are scheduled in 1966 and 1968.

The new 5-cent letter stamp and other postal rate boosts stem from passage by the 1962 Congress of the bill asked by President Kennedy to supply new funds to cut the huge postal deficit.

The $855 million in new federal levies will result from provisions of the broad revision act asked by the President to tighten up the tax code for numerous business groups and individuals.

Over-all, however, the increases will be more than offset by the $1-billion investment credit provided for business in the bill as an incentive to modernize its plant and equipment.

Most provisions of the new revision law take effect Tuesday.

The Social Security tax boost will change the rate from 3 1-8 per cent to 3 5-8 per cent each for the employe and the employer; the tax withholding in the first 1963 paychecks will reflect the increase.

For self-employed persons, the rate will move from 4.7 to 5.4 per cent.

The Social Security Administration estimates that the higher levy will produce about $14.6 billion in Social Security taxes in 1963, as compared with $12.2 billion for this year.

Social Security benefits this month went to slightly more than 18 million persons, including 12.7 million receiving retirement payments, 4.1 million survivors of deceased persons, and 1.3 million disabled.

The payments totaled $1.18 billion in December, or an annual rate of $14.16 billion. Thus the benefits at present are exceeding the amount brought in by taxes in 1962 but will be below the estimated yield of the new rates for the next year.

The Social Security trust fund, built up from the excess of revenues over benefits in the 25 years of the system, now totals about $22 billion. In addition to tax revenues, the system obtains about $500 million annually in interest on this fund.

The higher postal rates will bring in about $600 million in additional revenues when the 1962 law is fully effective. This will not be until 1965 for some of the increases.

The letter and other first-class hikes will come in one bite, however, a week from Monday.

The 4-cent letter rate, which has been in effect since Aug. 1, 1958, goes to 5 cents. This alone will bring in more than two-thirds of the new funds, or $410 million.

Air mail will be raised from 7 to 8 cents, post cards from 3 to 4 cents, and air mail cards from 5 to 6 cents.

Second-class rates, applying to newspapers and magazines, and third class, mostly advertising circulars, also will be increased, but chiefly in three steps.

New Skybolt Test Success Claim Issued

WASHINGTON (AP)—The controversial sixth test of the Skybolt missile "was successful and attained all test objectives," an Air Force spokesman said Saturday in reply to a question about the latest row over the soon-to-be scrapped program.

There has been unhappiness in the Defense Department over the test announcement issued by the Air Force at Cape Canaveral shortly after the test a week ago.

The announcement said "The USAF air-launch ballistic missile, Skybolt completed a successful test flight;" that it "flew its full mission range" and "impacted in the target area."

The version in some Pentagon quarters is that the Skybolt could not have "impacted" because no re-entry nose cone was carried for impacting purposes—and that if it had carried one the cone would have landed almost 100 statute miles beyond the predicted point of impact.

The Defense Department said Saturday a final report on the test results will not be completed until mid-January.

Semantics may be involved in this new wrangle over the missile. One school talks in terms of a precisely predicted point; the other speaks of a target area. The former reference is to a particular point of latitude. The latter refers to an area which usually is rectangular and may cover scores or hundreds of square miles.

The Air Force declined to expand on its brief comment that the test was successful and produced all objectives. But it seemed probable that when the Skybolt was fired from a B52 bomber the intention was to test its capability to fly a distance such as would be needed in combat and to keep on course over that range. There was nothing to indicate that either of these apparent objectives had failed.

IRS Warns Tax-Exempt Foundations

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government told tax-exempt foundations Saturday it will tolerate no questionable profit-making operations. From now on, they must report in detail on the dollars they collect and invest.

Declaring the law has been abused, the Internal Revenue Service said organizations classified as tax-free for charitable, educational and other beneficial purposes will have to give more information and open their reports to public inspection.

IRS announced it will propose next week rules for future information returns by tax-exempt organizations, which range from family associations with assets of a few hundred dollars to such giants as the Rockefeller and Ford Foundations with resources in the billions.

IRS sources said the regulations, subject to change, are aimed primarily at smaller foundations which invest or buy stock in companies controlled by their principal benefactors.

For the first time, foundations must supply details on salaries, stock holdings and other investments of their officers, political and lobbying activity, capital gains, other income, transactions and relationships with contributors and the cost of raising their funds.

The regulations will apply to information returns filed for next year.

IRS announced earlier it intends to audit foundation returns more closely "in order to correct abuses under existing law and to attain a higher level of compliance by exempt organizations."

More than 50,000 information forms were filed last year, including about 15,000 from family, private and company foundations. Neither past nor proposed rules require foundations to list their contributors for public inspection. Names and addresses of persons receiving grants and their relationship to foundation benefactors will be made public.

The new regulations, IRS said, incorporate suggestions of Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., chairman of the House Small Business Committee, who has investigated and criticized vigorously the tax practices of foundations.

Patman has contended an "appalling" lack of detailed information has enabled individuals to profit through foundations.

IRS sources said it is not possible to determine the extent of potential revenue involved.

The most obvious target is the contributor who receives a tax deduction for his donation and gets an immediate return in the form of a loan or a foundation investment in a corporation he controls.

RESEARCHERS REPORT

Fat Pounds Vanish On Reducing Diet

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—On a reducing diet, those pounds lost are practically all fat, Purdue University researchers said Saturday.

They learned this by measuring gamma or X rays—about 20,000 per minute—zipping from radioactive potassium atoms which occur naturally in all human bodies.

These gamma rays form part of the natural radiation to which everyone is unavoidably exposed all his life, at a very low level. Nature created the radioactive potassium long ago as part of all potassium, and so some of it is present in our foods.

The amount of radioactive potassium in the human body can be measured by putting a person inside a huge scintillation counter at Purdue's bionucleonics laboratories. It counts the gamma rays coming from the body.

Almost all the potassium in the body is in the flesh part, or lean body weight. There's only a tiny bit in bones or fat.

So if a person loses weight, and the amount of potassium remains constant, it means the lost weight was in pounds of fat.

This is what Profs. John E. Christian and Wayne V. Kessler of the bionucleonics laboratories, and Dr. L. W. Combs, a physician, found when 51 men and women, ranging in weight from 137 to 280 pounds, were put on reducing diets.

In eight weeks, on a balanced diet providing 900 calories a day, they lost from 12 to 36 pounds. Their lean body weight, measured by the popping potassium atoms, remained the same. Thus, it was fat the group lost, the scientists told the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

The technique can be applied to studying effects of age, varying levels of nutrition, disease, drugs, physical fitness states and other factors on lean body weight and body fat of humans and animals.

The big counter—in which a person lies for four minutes—also can show how much of his weight is lean flesh and how much is fat. Some persons who are overweight by the usual standard tables are not obese. They're muscular.

The average man weighing 150 pounds has about five ounces of potassium in his body. The radioactive portion emits about 400 gamma rays per second, of which two-thirds of them escape from the body and can be detected, Christian said. The radioactive potassium atoms decay or change into atoms of calcium and argon.

Ferriday Man Is Shot While On Deer Hunt

FERRIDAY (Special) — W. A. (Jack) Chandler, 36, of Ferriday, was accidently shot Saturday morning about 8:30 by a fellow hunter, Earl L. Webb, also of Ferriday.

The two men were both in deer stands when a deer ran between them. Webb shot at the deer and the buckshot scattered, hitting Chandler in the neck and hip.

The accident occurred near Clayton, about five miles from Ferriday on the Tensas Parish line.

Chandler was taken to a doctor in Ferriday for emergency treatment. He was then transferred to Jefferson Davis Memorial Hospital in Natchez.

His condition was described as "good."

No charges will be filed.

Accident Fatal To Baton Rouge Man At Natchez

NATCHEZ, Miss. (Special) — William C. Windham, Jr., 28, of Baton Rouge, died at 9:45 p.m. Friday in a local hospital as a result of injuries received in a one - car accident at 3:15 p.m. Friday seven miles south of Natchez on U. S. Hwy. 61 south.

A passenger in Windham's car, David McGee, 26, of Baton Rouge, sustained head lacerations in the wreck.

Windham was traveling south and attempted to pass another vehicle, whipped back into the right lane of traffic and apparently lost control of the auto, investigating officers said.

The auto plunged over an embankment, turned over and landed right side up back on the road. The two men had been on a deer-hunting trip in the area.

They were returning to Baton Rouge when the accident occurred. McGee was reported in good condition Saturday.

Booth Elected Director By Builder Group

A. Lee Booth, Monroe home builder, has been elected national representative for Louisiana of the National Association of Home Builders.

As national representative, Booth will serve on the 51-member NAHB Council of National Representatives as liaison between the national association at Washington and affiliated associations in Louisiana.

The three regular meetings of th ecouncil in 1963 will be at Washington, D.C., in April; Honolulu, in August; and Chicago, in December.

1962 Was Year Of Expansion For Many Churches In The Twin Cities

By FRANK NOONAN
Staff Writer

The past year was one of expansion for many churches in the Twin Cities area.

This is a view shared by presidents of the two local ministerials groups.

"Nearly every church is experiencing growth and spiritual expansion," said the Rev. John O. Stewart, president of the Monroe Ministerial Association, commenting on the regularity with which new church buildings took shape during the past year.

"Our own church membership maintained a very high degree of attendance during the past year, and I have heard that there has been good attendance in general," said the Rev. E. B. Emmerich, president of the West Monroe Ministerial Alliance.

NOTED GAINS

Both ministers noted gains for the churches in other respects.

"I would think that in suburban type churches that the Sunday Schools are booming," said Rev. Stewart, "and I think in downtown churches the Sunday School growth is slower. In suburban churches the children might attend without their parents, but in downtown churches they generally can't go unless their parents go with them. That and the problem of providing parking for autos are two big handicaps for the downtown churches."

Rev. Stewart is pastor of a downtown church, the First Christian Church of Monroe.

Rev. Emmerich is pastor of the First Methodist Church of West Monroe, also a downtown church. Both of their churches, however, have expansion programs.

On the point of spiritual growth during the past year, Rev. Emmerich said, "I feel that across the whole country there have been several tendencies, one of them being back to the Bible. That does not necessarily go back to the old interpretation, but to a new discovery within the Bible of the essential nature of God.

TENDENCY

"There has been a tendency within the church to move toward a deeper understanding of the Holy Spirit, and across the whole country more and more ministers are feeling drawn together."

To explain the latter point, Rev. Emmerich said, "Someone remarked the other day that a lot of ministers seem to preach the same sermons. Recently two other ministers and I were comparing sermons for the Advent Season. They dealt with the judgment, fullfillment, and love of God. In comparison of the sermons we found that we were not preaching identical sermons, but were all preaching essentially in the same realm.

"We could not in any way say it was in the materials we were reading. We all read different books, except for the Bible. The Bible is so vast in its coverage that we may not hit the same verses, but come out the same."

Last year, as it has in previous years the growing tendency toward materialism became a special point for concern by local church leaders. Ministers, businessmen and church laymen banded together to call for a curtailment of business activities on Sunday.

Said Rev. Stewart, who took part in the movement, "We had proposed that an ordinance be drawn up restricting sales of certain goods on Sunday, but the Legislature passed a law that was practically the same as the one we wanted in the city."

Following the Legislative act, the drive for Sunday sales bans ordinances in Monroe and West Monroe, was halted.

AGAINST PRAYER

A U. S. Supreme Court opinion against prayer in public schools brought considerable opposition locally.

"I think people in this part of the country are to a large extent in disagreement with the Supreme Court opinion on the matter of prayer in public schools," said Rev. Stewart, "and the decision has been interpreted in many different ways."

A weekly television program featuring panel discussions on the Old Testament, last year brought considerable response. The program was sponsored by the Monroe Ministerial Association. This year, the association, with cooperation of the West Monroe Ministerial Alliance, will conduct a series of weekly programs dealing with the New Testament.

The West Monroe Ministerial Alliance during the past year started a program of holding meetings at various leading institutions in the community to foster a better understanding of them.

Said Rev. Emmerich, "The West Monroe ministerial group has been carrying on a wonderful work in that it has started a program of visiting many of the outstanding institutions of our community. Among them were Glenwood Hospital, The Boy's Club, Chamber of Commerce, and West Monroe High School. Glenwood Hospital has helped in setting up a chaplaincy there which we have set up under the Alliance. Dr. Hugh Bradshaw of Memorial Presbyterian Church heals the program where one of our ministers becomes the chaplain of the week there."

A number of Twin Cities churches are planning building and facilities improvement programs for the coming year, and drives to get new members, and to encourage more of their regular members to attend services.

Finances are a continuing problem, and progress in bringing about new building programs and expansion of services is achieved only with considerable effort, but local church leaders are facing the new year with hope.

Space, Chemicals Give State Big Boost In 1962

The reactivation of the Michoud plant by the National Aeronautic and Space Administration combined with over $83 - million spent by the chemical and petrochemical industries gave the state its third best increase in industrial employment since World War II.

These findings were announced today by Henry Davis, executive director of the Louisiana Department of Commerce and Industry.

Total spending for new manufacturing facilities during 1962 was $157,083,293, Davis reported. This included $12,275,422 which was spent by the Federal space administration in reactivating the giant Michoud-NASA facility in East New Orleans. The $12.2 million was part of a total $283,893,165 in contracts administered during 1962 by the NASA office at Michoud. Prime contractors, Boeing Company and Chrysler Corp., received $271,617,743 of this total for the development of the two Saturn boosters being developed at Michoud.

Investment during the current year brought the total invested in new manufacturing facilities since 1947 to $3,241,302,197.

In commenting on the industrial spending Davis pointed out that 7,618 new permanent jobs were added to the Louisiana manufacturing work force.

"One noteworthy aspect of this year's industrial development," Davis noted, "is that the total employees added is the third highest increase since 1947."

All - time high total was 1947 when 13,446 new employees were hired by Louisiana manufacturers.

Looking into the future Davis forecast one of the best years in the past five.

He pointed out that several firms have already announced sizeable plant would be built in the state during 1963. Among these are Allied - Union Chemical Corp., U. S. Rubber Co., Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Corp., and Noralyn Paper Co.

"These carry - overs, together with continued expansion of the Michoud - NASA facilities and indications that the chemical and paper industries expect to accelerate capital spending give rise to an optimistic attitude among our industrial development personnel," he added.

Detailed breakdown of the investment during 1962 shows that the chemical - petrochemical industry again led all others in dollar value of facilities added with a total of $83,173,699 invested in 16 Louisiana parishes (counties).

This category was followed by metals and metal products (including Michoud) with $26,934,596 and electric power with $19,637,000.

Paper and paper products and food products rounded out the top four with $12,164,295 and $10,491,433, respectively.

Slightly below the annual average since 1947, the $157.1 million total "is still a respectable investment in a time when industry has been over - cautious in plant investment throughout the nation," Davis said.

"However, while the total was $15.5 million less than that invested in 1961, the total number of employees added this year was nearly triple that of last year, and almost double that of 1960."

A parish breakdown reveals that East Baton Rouge led all others in dollar investment with $30,390,653. It also led all but Orleans in number of jobs added with 519. Orleans added 4,848 employees to manufacturing payrolls.

Following East Baton Rouge in dollar value of investment was St. John Parish with $24,764,105 and 400 jobs added.

Iberville and Calcasieu were next with $19,637,000 and $17,579,332. These added five and 89 jobs, respectively.

Orleans, Jefferson and Caddo rounded out the parishes which added $10-million or more during the year. These picked up $14,113,107, $11,318,341 and $10,307,439.

Average investment in new manufacturing facilities per day for the year comes to $430,414,47.

Further analysis of developmental spending demonstrates, Davis pointed out, the importance of Louisiana's waterways.

Of the total spent in the state during the year, $126,837,635 was invested in 19 south Louisiana parishes which border the Mississippi River and the Intracoastal Waterway.

Explosion Kills Negro Child In Providence Area

LAKE PROVIDENCE (Special) — A Negro man threw a can of diesel oil into a wood stove to build a bigger fire Friday and the resulting explosion killed his 1½-year-old stepdaughter and injured several others, authorities here said Saturday.

Dead was Brenda Mae Gilmore, daughter of Mattie Gilmore. The stepfather was identified as Dave Beckwith.

Authorities said the house was destroyed by the blaze. The house was located west of Transylvania on the Mounds Plantation.

Names of those injured were not available.

3-Inch Rainfall Floods Mobile

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI)— A predawn downpour dumped 3.10 inches of rain on this port city, leaving many persons with stalled cars, clogged sewers and wet basements.

The official rainfall reading was 2.37 inches by the U. S. Airport 14 miles from here. However, city officials came up with the higher figure.

The rain stopped at about 6 a.m., and temperatures soared into the 60s accompanied by bright sunshine.

A program aimed at bringing more happiness and better spiritual understanding to the boys at Louisiana Training Institute here has been conducted for some 20 years by church women of the Twin Cities. This is a report on its accomplishments.

By MARY ANNE CORPIN
Staff Writer

"What do you come out here for?" the young boy asked. Suspicious, skeptical, he was testing the middle-aged woman.

"Because I love you. I love all the boys," she replied softly.

The boy was visibly moved. His whole attitude changed. Her answer had made a deep impression.

RECREATION ROOM

Occasion: One of the monthly parties given by women from each church group in Monroe and West Monroe, for the past 20 years.

Mrs. William A. Smith, who has been chairman of the church party phase of the UCW for 12 years, gives an insight into the boys' feelings toward the get-togethers:

"The boys look forward to the parties. They stand outside, and watch for you to come."

The Rev. W. D. Tyndall, Baptist minister and Protestant chaplain at LTI, says, "The parties mean a lot to these boys . . . just to see an outsider. They follow you with their eyes."

United Church Women of the Twin Cities, and every other denomination, including Baptist, Roman Catholic and Jewish who do not belong to the UCW, provide a party on the second Thursday of each month.

Although each of the nine LTI cottages has a married couple, a house "father and mother" to help provide a homelike atmosphere for the boys and supervise them, these parties add to the boys' daily routine.

A different group of churches is responsible for the parties in each house, and several groups of church women sponsor the monthly parties for one house.

Each time, a birthday cake and gifts are provided for all boys in the house who are having a birthday that month.

The regular meals at LTI are a wholesome fare — the kind that mother and dad provide in a well-adjusted home. But the parties add the extra touch . . . cake, cookies, soft drinks, candy and even on occasions, hot dogs, that normally are not served at regular meals. The ladies go all-out in preparing these foods, knowing how much the boys appreciate it.

In December, the boys reverse the role, stage a Christmas pageant, and then have a party at each house for all the church women . . . and men. This year, the men's group of one church has become interested in participating in the activities.

More than the social activity, the party each month provides "one of the best opportunities in the world for personal evangelism," Mrs. Smith reveals.

INTEREST GROWS

The Rev. Tyndall explains: "A friendly lady comes into the cottage, sits down and starts talking with one boy during the party. Curiosity prompts one or two other boys to listen in, and soon, she is surrounded by a whole circle.

"The boys are at a party, so they are not expecting anything like this. They hear general personal testimony about the lady's own feelings toward Christ and the soul."

What's the reason for the need of such personal contact? Is there any advantage beyond the regular church services, which the boys at LTI attend regularly?

The Rev. Tyndall gives the answer:

"All boys here, except for a few have been declared delinquent by a judge. The boys fall into four categories:

"1. Mentally retarded.

"2. Neglected and dependent.

"3. Seriously emotionally disturbed in some way, but there are various levels.

"4 The true delinquent.

"Many of the delinquent boys have had a terrible home situation, torn by internal strife, arguments, drinking parents, delinquent mothers, alcoholism.

"Truancy is a big problem. With no one to motivate them to go to school, they just don't go.

"A boy who is in trouble with society is generally in trouble with himself. He is in trouble with himself because usually he is in trouble at home. And he is in trouble at home because mother and daddy are in trouble with each other.

"As a general rule, the boys are easy to get along with, but they are impulsive. Emotional disturbances make it hard for them to get along with society.

"They get to know and admire these ladies . . . and the boys are willing to listen to their attitudes on religion and life in general."

There is a relaxed atmosphere on the campus at all times, and especially on party nights. This makes it easy for a church lady to sit down and talk with the boys about her relationship with people and her own relationship with the Lord — just a woman speaking out of her heart.

The parties also consist of hillbilly bands, bingo, movies, special music groups.

Officials point out that as the years have gone along, the quality of the program has improved greatly at the parties.

"Interest and enthusiasm are high.

"In fact, one of the church groups is trying to get a piano for the cottages, the Pilot club presented us with a portable organ at our annual Christmas party last week, and another lady is starting a religious library for us."

First Methodist of West Monroe, Stone Avenue Methodist, Westminster Presbyterian, First Methodist, Southside Methodist, St. Paul's Methodist, St. Matthew's Catholic, Grace Episcopal, First Presbyterian, Covenant Presbyterian.

St. John's Christian, St. Alban's Episcopal, McGuire Methodist of West Monroe, Brownville Methodist, Claiborne Methodist, Memorial Methodist, First Christian, First Baptist, West Monroe First Baptist, Lakeshore Baptist, Temple B'nai Israel.

SERVING BIRTHDAY CAKE to youngsters in Pecan Lodge cottage at L.T.I. are Mrs. Grace Weston, Mrs. E. Auttonberry, Mrs. R. A. Mason, all from Trinity Baptist Church, and Mrs. E. J. Moody, housemother, who with Moody supervise the boys in this cottage. (Photos by staff photographer John Fogleman.)

L.T.I. STUDENTS display some of the handicraft items which they have designed and made, to admiring church women Mrs. Charles Guraedy, Mrs. James Fletcher and Mrs. J. E. Muckleroy.

RELAXED ATMOSPHERE at L. T. I. provides perfect occasion for ladies who sponsor monthly parties for the boys, also to give their personal testimony about the Lord. Mrs. E. N. Jackson, left, of First Methodist church, who serves as president of the United Church Women, and Mrs. Jimmie Simmons of Shreveport, state president of United Church Women, are surrounded by interested group of youngsters, as they discuss the part which religious belief plays in everyday activities.

Colorful Storybook Tracks

The trains of the Alaska Railroad are not noted for being on time, but passengers are treated to some wonderful views of the north country. When heavy snow falls moose take to the tracks which are kept clear of it. Then the problem of clearing the tracks of moose arises.

By GORDON W. SCHULTZ

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) — The blue and yellow diesel engines of the Alaska Railroad (ARR) shuttle back and forth today on one of the most colorful storybook tracks in the United States.

With only 538 miles of road, reaching from Seward at the Gulf of Alaska to Fairbanks in the heartland of the 49th state, the ARR is a unique little line that captures smiles from veteran railroaders, railroad buffs and thousands of tourists.

The ARR's passenger trips are not famous for being on time. A note on ARR timetables advises:

"Attention: NOT responsible for train delays because of moose on tracks."

Passenger runs between Anchorage and Fairbanks, a 356-mile trip, have been as much as three and four hours late because of the stubborn critters.

HEAVY SNOWS

The animals generally stay off the tracks until the heavy snow comes. It's hard for them to walk in the deep snow so they stay on the tracks where the snow has been cleared.

"We've chased them for as long as 15 miles," veteran railroader Bob Prator said. "Sometimes they run like h--- and other times we have to follow them at a speed of three or four miles an hour. Blowing the whistle doesn't help.

"When the engineer nuzzles them with the engine, sometimes they just kick back. Other times they turn around, lower their heads and come charging straight at the engine."

Sometimes the moose have to be shot. Other times they are accidentally run over.

The animals that are killed, 200 to 300 a year, are picked up by railroad maintenance crews and skinned out. The drawn meat is given to orphanages and state institutions.

Under the jurisdiction of the Interior Department, the ARR has paid its own way since it was first started in 1915.

The ARR today is one of the main supply lines to interior Alaska and serves miners, missionaries, prospectors, traders and trappers by way of transhipments to river barges on the Tanana and Yukon rivers in the Alaska interior. The ARR owns the barges and also has up-to-date piggyback rail - truck facilities.

Although 45 diesel - electric engines haul the ARR's 2,014 pieces of rolling freight stock and 72 passenger coaches of all types, one steam engine is still kept in operating condition since the ARR converted to diesel 10 years ago. The steam engine is brought out of semi - retirement only when diesel engines can't get through water deeper than four inches on the tracks during the spring months.

Dominican Voting

By American standards, the recent election in the Dominican Republic was chaotic: Nearly a tenth of the polling stations in the capital, Santo Domingo, ran out of ballots. One precinct station shut down two hours early while angry crowds outside in the rain protested. The "indelible" red ink smeared on each voter's fingers to prevent multiple voting easily washed off. And complicated voting rules placed many polling stations far from the voters' homes.

But all things considered, the election went beautifully for a nation that has had no free election since 1924. More than a million residents of the Caribbean nation turned out to vote, far more than expected. And there was no violence.

As the slow tally of votes neared completion, Juan Bosch, a 53-year-old writer, had a two-to-one margin over his major opponent, Viriato A. Fiallo. Bosch was a candidate of the mildly leftist Dominican Revolutionary Party. If elected, as seemed assured, he will be inaugurated to a four-year term next Feb. 27.

He built up his commanding lead in the slum areas of Santo Domingo and in rural districts. Fiallo's backing was middle class and more conservative.

Although the issue was largely one of personalities, both candidates ran on reform platforms. In the final days of the campaign, Bosch promised to give 16 acres of land to each of 70,000 landless peasant families and to seek a $100 - a - month minimum wage, very high for Latin America.

Against the flamboyant Bosch, Fiallo campaigned on his record of opposition to the 30-year regime of dictator Rafael Trujillo, who was assassinated 18 months ago. Bosch spent most of the Trujillo years in exile; Fiallo stayed in the country and drew several prison terms from the Trujillo government.

There was another winner: The United States. Washington has deluged the Dominicans with dollars, technical aid, and diplomatic sympathy since the last Trujillo relative fled the island a year ago.

The fate of America's effort to prime Dominican democracy rested largely on the Thursday vote. Everything so far indicates the results matched Washington's most hopeful expectations.

There was worry of a pro-Castro uprising or a rightist military coup to prevent the vote. Both groups stayed calm. While both Bosch and Fiallo are considered pro-American, there was fear that the race would be so close neither man would gain a majority in congress, with proportional representation giving a few splinter parties the balance of power. But Bosch's commanding lead seemed to guarantee his party would win a congressional majority, and be able to legislate effectively.

The only incident that might have sunk the vote and Washington's hopes occurred in the final week of campaigning. A Roman Catholic priest charged that some of Bosch's writings in exile showed he was a Red sympathizer. Bosch denied it and demanded a 30-day postponement in the vote. He contended he couldn't get a fair vote with the charge hanging over his candidacy in the heavily Catholic nation.

The priest and Bosch last Monday met in a fiery four-hour television debate that ended when the priest retracted his charge. Bosch then dropped his postponement demands.

Rafael F. Bonelly, head of the year - old caretaker government some observers feared might nullify the vote in a power grab, issued a "patriotic call" to both parties to respect the vote. He said the voting gave the Dominican Republic "a firm base for our democracy."

Work Laws And Jobs

The Dallas (Tex.) Morn. News —

For more than a decade, labor union bosses have fought right-to-work laws with all the weapons at their disposal. And for a good reason. In 19 states where these laws are in force, arbitrary power of the union bosses has been curbed and corrupt union practices limited.

This, of course, isn't the argument used by labor leaders when they try to convince the working public that right-to-work laws are evil. They wouldn't get far arguing that such laws should be defeated or repealed in order to increase corruption and arbitrary power.

The rank-and-file laborer is told that such laws lower his standard of living and work against the creation of new jobs. This is demonstrably false. In fact, the opposite is the case, as a study by the research department of the Valley National Bank of Phoenix, Arizona, shows.

In the 15-year period, 1946-61, the study revealed that states which have had right-to-work laws in force led the nation in the creation of new jobs. The top three states—Arizona, Florida and Utah —all have right-to-work laws. Among the top 10, six have such laws in force — including Texas.

Failing Made Easy

We parents are always trying to push our children to the tops of their classes. As a consequence, the bottom of the class is being neglected, and there is very little competition for it. Those whose natural abilities enable them to arrive at the bottom of the class easily have a head start, of course, but there's no reason why other sufficiently-talented children can't also not make the grade.

A recent study made in the U.S. and Canada of 25,000 students in 35 high schools gives us a clue as to how we may hasten our youngsters along the road to the bottom! Buy them a car. The study shows that 17 pct. of the 25,000 students covered actually own their own cars, and that nearly half of these students are in the bottom quarter of their class. Most students having use of a car, either their own, or their parents were rewarded with a marked drop in academic standing after they began to drive.

Of the 18 pct. who had been in the top quarter of their class the year before, 87 pct. fell in their standing after they began to drive. And the more often the student had use of a car, the lower his grades were. Thus, the percentage of students in the bottom quarter varied from 19 pct. who had the car one night a week, to 61 pct. who were able to drive it seven nights a week.

No studies were made on whether a student was able to get lower grades with a convertible than a sedan, or whether sports cars were favored over conventional automobiles by the bottomers. Neither did the researchers determine whether a student with two cars could do more poorly in school than the youngster who has to struggle along with only one car. But parents confronted with stubborn cases of straight A's or B's might try making their children accept a second, or even a third, car if the first one does not do the trick.- Ormund Powers.

Vast Powers Of Lobbyists

Fulbright Promises 'Most Explosive' Hearings On 'Agents' For Foreign Governments

WASHINGTON — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee is going to rock the new Congress with some jolting revelations of the vast powers of lobbyists for foreign governments in the U. S.

Headed by Senator J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., the Senate investigators will highlight a number of cases where these foreign agents received fees ranging from $20,000 to $250,000 to influence U. S. foreign policy and obtain large sums of economic and military aid for their clients.

Some of the eye-popping details of these lobbying activities which the senators plan to air at public hearings in January and February are:

A New York law firm received $100,000 for arranging a special presidential economic mission to its client country. Result: The country received more than $100 million in U. S. aid.

A Washington lawyer represented a foreign government that received a large loan from the Development Loan Fund. The lawyer's fee, $20,000, was paid by another U. S. agency.

An American documentary film producer, under contract with a foreign government, prepared and distributed TV and movie films favorable to its client. When shown to the public, the films carried no mention that the foreign government had paid for them.

An east coast lawyer was paid $350,000 for representing a Central American government for two years. The amount included a $10,000 "personal gift" from the country's president for arranging a highly successful visit to the U. S. The lawyer listed his Washington "entertainment expenses" at $22,000.

Even more startling activities of a number of the approximately 400 registered "foreign agents" are still under investigation and due to be ready for public airing during the hearings.

Unknown to 30 of these lobbyists, committee investigators are quietly checking their tax returns to see if their income and expense figures tally with the public reports they filed with the Justice Department as required by the Foreign Agents Registration Act.

These probers found the reports so incomplete that Senator Fulbright is requiring all the registered lobbyists to fill out a special committee questionnaire on their activities.

The tax inspection authority was granted the committee last month by President Kennedy after Senator Fulbright wrote the White House requesting the power so that the committee could determine whether any registered foreign agents are violating federal law.

BRINGING RESULTS — Already the committee's investigation, under way for more than a year, has stirred Attorney General Robert Kennedy to action.

He has summoned a federal grand jury to probe the registration reports of the foreign government representatives to ascertain whether they are complying with the law.

Since 1954 the Justice Department has not brought an action under the Foreign Agents Registration Act for failure to list all activities, expenses, or money received.

"This failure to prosecute does not necessarily reflect full compliance with the law by the registrants," according to a staff report prepared for the committee. "On the contrary, our study of the foreign agents registration statements accepted by the Justice Department as complete, discloses a number of apparent omissions and-or evasions."

Aides of the attorney general are forecasting that the grand jury will return at least one indictment before the Senate committee opens its public hearings. Six Justice Department attorneys are now working on the investigation.

THE POWDER-KEG — An unannounced decision by Senator Fulbright to include nationalities groups in his investigation has touched off the first controversy within the committee.

Senator Frank Lausche, D-O., has demandeed full information on why these anti - Communist groups, which represent peoples under Communist domination, are being summoned to appear, and whether the State Department is behind this move.

In a memorandum to committee members, Senator Fulbright contends that "often these nationalities groups concentrate on influencing U. S. foreign policy in directions designed primarily to promote the interest of foreign organizers or supporters" and should be proved.

Other senators say that Fulbright plans to use this inquiry to launch an investigation of the Central Intelligence Agency, since many of these groups receive money from that agency.

On this possibility, Senator Fulbright is remaining noncommittal. All he will tell other senators is that the coming hearings will be the most explosive he has conducted "since the Reconstruction Finance Corporation investigation." The RFC probe, during the Truman administration, caused a number of government officials to resign.

DR. PETER J. STEINCROHN

Stress 'Disease'

Husband Nervous And Tense, Complains He Is Exhausted

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My husband is a healthy man, according to our doctor, but he continues to complain about always being exhausted. He always seems nervous and tense. He can't relax. I wonder if that might have something to do with it. How can I get him to relax? —Mrs. V.

Comment: I have seen many patients like your husband who act sick yet aren't sick. Tension (the medical term for it is stress) is one of the great problems and bugaboos of our age. Let's just say it's due to the world we live in.

Some can adjust to it while others can't. Some take their jobs in stride while others lose appetite and sleep worrying about their work. Others adjust to home tensions which may be created by illness in the family or by problems in raising children, but others are under great stress and react by becoming irritable, nervous and chronically exhausted.

When stress becomes very great and protracted, it plays a part in causing, or at least aggravating, such conditions as coronary disease, ulcer, diabetes, hyperthyroidism and many other illnesses. Others, like your husband, stay healthy except for the dragged out fatigue and nervousness.

There isn't space here to tell you how your husband may be able to lighten his load. However I suggest that you — and others with a similar problem — send for my leaflet on the subject. It lists 18 tips, any one of which may happen to be just the right medicine for your husband's tension and fatigue. Write to me, in care of this newspaper, enclosing 10 cents and a stamped, self - addressed envelope and ask for the leaflet, "How To Overcome Tension and Fatigue." It has helped others and should wash out some of the tensions in your man.

DIET AND ACNE

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Is there any special diet which is sure to clear up pimples? Both my son and daughter (aged 18 and 19) have been bothered lately. — Mrs. C.

Comment: We don't know the exact cause of acne. We know that (gland) endocrine imbalance must have something to do with it because the condition is most common in youngsters in their teens when the entire glandular system sometimes goes into turmoil. For example, it is not uncommon to find that a youngster with acne breaks out more a few days before she expects her period.

Excessively oily skin is a factor, which may or may not be due to glandular action. As there is no specific treatment it may run the gamut from ordinary facial cleanliness to antibiotics, hormones and X-ray treatments.

As for your question about diet, we are not sure of that either. But the experience of many doctors seems to have settled on a few foods which aggravate acne. Chocolate, sharp cheeses, oils, nut, and seafood seem to be culprits.

Iodized salt sometimes causes acne to worsen.

In addition to all this, make sure your attitude towards the children is one of sympathy and understanding. Don't just pass it off as something unimportant or say, "Forget it. There are worse things."

Nothing is more important to the youngster who suffers from acne. It can affect his social life and leave bigger psychological scars than those found on his face. I think that visits to the doctor periodically are important if for no other reason than for encouragement.

For Mr. W.: In your case, I don't believe that it is right to say that cigarettes are guilty and that pipe smoking and cigar smoking are completely absolved from blame.

BASCOM TIMMONS

Merchant Unions

Not Justified In Organizing Foreign Seamen

The United States Supreme Court now has under consideration a case whose outcome could determine in large measure the future of a huge fleet of merchant ships vital to this country in peace and in war.

At issue is a claim by the National Labor Relations Board that American maritime unions can legally organize foreign seamen on foreign ships as long as the ships are regularly engaged in United States foreign commerce or if they are owned by United States interests.

The Federal government, through a brief filed recently by the Solicitor General, says the unions are not justified in seeking to organize these foreign seamen. But the American maritime unions, backed by the NLRB, feels just the opposite.

Also involved deeply in this land - mark case are the governments of Great Britain, Canada, Panama, Honduras and Liberia. They have told the high court that the NLRB is ignoring the age - old international law of the sea which identifies a ship by its flag.

In an effort to keep their heads above the economic waters a group of American shippers sail their vessels under what they call "flags of convenience" or "flags of necessity." In other words, these vessels are registered in foreign countries, use foreign crews and sail under the flags of those countries. The reason is simply this: a U. S. seamen's wage rates are three to five times higher than that of the foreign sailor. For instance, it is estimated that it costs between $650,000 and $750,000 more per vessel each year to operate an average ship under American flag than it does to operate under virtually any other flag in the world.

Major opposition to this view is probably best expressed in these words by Joseph Curran, president of the National Maritime Union: "Some people say that we should lower our own standards in order to save American flag shipping. We say the way to do it is to raise the standards of our brother seamen of other countries." Shortly before making this statement Curran and the NMU won a 17.4 per cent package increase from U. S. shipowners following the three-week maritime strike in the summer of 1961.

The Defense Department has taken a keen interest in the dispute since all these American-owned ships flying foreign flags are subject to immediate recall by the U. S. Navy in event of international crisis. On the other hand, if these ships were sold to other maritime nations — as the American shippers say would be done if they lose their case — this valuable reservoir of ships would be lost forever.

It is the position of the Justice Department that there are treaty violations inherent in NLRB decisions on the matter. It maintains that the United States does not have the right to interfere in the internal operations of a foreign flag ship nor with its crew.

In general, the Federal government wants the NLRB to uphold the long - established international law of the sea which recognizes the nationality of a ship by the flag it flies, not by the nature of its ultimate ownership, nor by its physical contacts with U. S. ports.

The dispute has kicked up an international storm of sorts, as witness some of the briefs filed by foreign governments or through protests submitted to the State Department.

The Honduran government, for example, said it "can never accept that a foreign union like the National Maritime Union of America, or any other represent the seamen of Honduras that work on vessels of the Honduran flag."

Panama put it more bluntly: "This undue arrogation of jurisdiction on the part of any agency of the government of the United States is an infringement on our sovereignty and the respect to our flag and constitutes an interference by the government of the United States in the internal affairs of the Panamanian state."

A decision is not expected for many months.

How Do You Stand, Sir?

By BARRY GOLDWATER

Every time Congress decides to cut down on the amount of American foreign aid, as it did in the last session, the administration in office always claims that a blow has been struck at this country's effort to combat communism.

This reaction from the President and his advisors has become almost a reflext action. It doesn't seem to make any difference whether funds already appropriated for the purpose haven't yet been spent. The argument is always to the effect that congressional prudence, in the matter of foreign aid, will create an overseas picture of growing United States parsimony that may alarm potential allies.

On this basis, of course, any cut at any time in any proposed foreign - aid budget — no matter how ridiculous that budget might be — could be interpreted by government officials as detrimental to their idea of the way to fight Communism.

All of this, however, has not diminished the heavy and increasing criticism both in and out of Congress over a program which has cost this country nearly $100 billion and produced only negligible results.

The cut of over $1 billion in the last foreign - aid appropriation seemed only to whet the appetite of those who believe that our adverse international balance of payments and our dangerous gold position require further economizing in the field of overseas largesse.

And, significantly, the Kennedy administration has now taken official notice of this attitude on the part of the lawmakers as well as of a majority of the American people. Of course, it is too much will prompt the New Frontier to slash its demands for new foreign-aid money. This is not the objective. The goal now is to either apply a bipartisan coat of white-wash to the present foreign-aid program or to change it in some minor details that will make it more palatable to Congress and the people.

How do we know that the President is fully aware of the growing criticism? We know it because he recently created a committee to take a new look at the foreign-aid program and make recommendations. As the White House announcement explained it:

"At the President's request, the committee will undertake an immediate review of our military and economic assistance to determine whether the level and distribution of these programs is contributing materially to the security of the United States and is directed to specific and attainable goals of economic and political stability in the free world."

The committee, which is called The Committee to Strengthen the Security of the Free World, will be headed by Gen. Lucius D. Clay, until recently President Kennedy's personal representative in Berlin. Other members of the study group include Robert A. Lovett, former Secretary of Defense; George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO; Prof. Edward S. Mason of Harvard; Eugene R. Black, retiring president of the World Bank; Robert B. Anderson, former Secretary of the Treasury; L. F. McCollum, president of Continental Oil Company; Herman Phleger, former State Department legal advisor, and Clifford Harden, chancellor of the University of Nebraska.

Although it wasn't made clear in the announcement, it was understood by Washington reporters that next month has been fixed as a deadline for the new committee to report its findings. If this is true, the administration's intentions should be called into question. For one month is certainly not time enough for any group of men, no matter how brilliant, to determine what effect, if any, the foreign-aid program is having on the security of the United States.

I suggest that the President's action in naming this committee amounts to nothing more than a hasty move to try to head off the growing tide of foreign-aid criticism before the next session of Congress gets down to serious business on the question of new appropriations.

How do you stand, sir?

Today is Sunday, Dec. 30, the 364th day of 1962 with one to follow.

The moon is approaching its first quarter.

The morning stars are Venus and Mars.

The evening stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

Those born on this day include British poet and story teller Rudyard Kiplin, in 1865.

On this day in history:

In 1927, Japan dedicated the first subway in the Orient, which covered a route of not quite two miles.

In 1936, one of the most bitter labor and management feuds of all times was started when members of the Automobile Workers Union staged a "sit-down" strike against General Motors in a bid for recognition.

In 1947, Rumania's King Michael agreed to abdicate, saying he was being forced off the throne by local Communists aided by the Soviet Union.

A thought for today — the English editor and poet, Sir Herbert Read, said the period from 1919 to 1939 was "the no-man's-years between the wars."

The World For 1963— What's Coming Up?

EDITOR'S NOTE — What is ahead around the world in the new year? The Associated Press sent this question to its correspondents in 10 key areas. Here are their reports.

Britain and Commonwealth

By TOM OCHILTREE

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Macmillan faces 1963 with enough problems to test the patience of Job. He could easily fall from power if these overwhelm them.

Britain, shorn of empire, is trying to find a new role in world affairs. For that reason the coming year promises to be as full of strain and confusion in the political, diplomatic, defense and economic fields as any faced by this island kingdom since World War II.

Britain's special relationship with the United States may undergo revisions now that Washington is calling into question the value of Macmillan's separate nuclear deterrent.

The British government still intends to seek membership in the European Common Market. Failure to reach agreement thus far with this Continental grouping has caused mounting concern in London's business and financial community.

The Common Market negotiations are expected to extend deep into 1963.

At home, voters continue to drift away from Macmillan's Conservative party. A new parliamentary election is not required by law until the autumn of 1964, but events could force one in 1963.

The British economy remains sluggish with unemployment rising, particularly in the north. The Christmas holiday season produced signs, however, that better times are returning.

Overseas, the Commonwealth ties remain fragile, but the differing interests of the member countries become more clearly defined each year.

The process of granting independence to former colonial territories will go on as before. New constitutional talks are scheduled for Malta and eventually British Guiana.

Western Europe

By RICHARD O'REGAN

BERLIN (AP) — Western Europe's hopes of peace, prosperity and security look brighter in 1963 than at any time in the last five perilous years.

Since the Soviet Union's disaster, the Kremlin has taken a new soft line in its approach to Europe's main problem — Berlin. The Russians appear more willing to negotiate a Berlin settlement which might protect Western rights in the city.

The Russians may be counting on help through a change of political leadership in West Germany. Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, Khrushchev's unwavering opponent, has said he will retire in 1963.

They may be encouraged too by an increase of Communists in the French Parliament, although President Charles de Gaulle, at 72, is more firmly in power than ever and, like Adenauer, is firmly opposed to dealing with the Soviet Union.

Politically, 1963 looks like a secure year for Europeans with no major crises. In Italy, however, there are general elections in May and the issue is whether the country will swing more to the left.

In Spain, Gen. Francisco Franco at 70, has to find a king to succeed him. Portugal's Premier Antonio Salazar may face growing dissension.

Economically, West Europe's Common Market is expected to bring greater prosperity to Frenchmen and Italians (Germany already has reached its peak).

Denmark, Ireland, Norway, Austria, Sweden and Switzerland all hope for full or associate membership in the Common Market so they can share some of Europe's growing wealth. But their membership depends on whether Great Britain is admitted.

If the Common Market grows to take in most of Europe in 1963, it may become the United States' greatest trading competitor.

Middle East

By WEBB MCKINLEY

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)— This next year could be the year of the showdown between Arab republicans and kings.

In 1962 the long struggle between old and new in the Middle East came suddenly into focus in remote Yemen, whose feudal monarchy was overthrown by republican revolutionaries.

Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic rushed to the rebels' aid and found himself in a power fight with Saudi Arabia's uneasy royalty and Jordan's King Hussein.

For Yemen, itself, 1963 should be more peaceful now that the United States has bolstered its new government with recognition. But the rivalry of Nasser and the kings will grow.

Nasser has promised support for all "popular" revolutions—and his followers would consider one in Jordan, Saudi Arabia or republican Syria—once Nasser's northern province—very "popular."

Saudi Arabia in particular was shaken by the Yemeni revolt and, stirred by Cairo radio, faces grave threats in the coming 12 months.

Nasser will pay more attention too to his western neighbor, Libya which is becoming an economic force as it enters the world oil market.

Observers regularly have been predicting the downfall of the Kassem government in Iraq and few will be surprised if they are proved correct in 1963. Abdel Karim Kassem, who has survived by a clever balancing act, still vows he will "return" oil-rich Kuwait to Iraq.

The Mideast's two major non-Arab states, Turkey and Iran, face common problems, among them long borders with the Soviet Union and restless students.

In Turkey, a shaky coalition under Ismet Inonu is trying against a diehard opposition to make economic headway and open the way for $1.5 billion in loans from an international consortium. Another paralyzed Parliament could result in another army takeover.

In Iran, where rigging ballot boxes is a traditional art, the shah has called for honest elections after 19 months of rule by government decree. One potential storm is the controversial land reform program opposed by land barons.

Indian Area

By HENRY S. BRADSHER

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Communist China's invasion of India and then its unexpected partial withdrawal have left a tense military stalemate for the new year along the Himalayas.

Tedious diplomatic exchanges between New Delhi and Peking will continue for several months. A new eruption of fighting then is a strong possibility as the Indian army recovers from its defeats with the help of U.S. and British aid.

The Chinese challenge will lead to new questioning of Prime Minister Nehru's leadership and of his policy of nonalignment. It also will cause a pruning of India's economic development program, delaying the day when India breaks out of its grinding poverty.

India and Pakistan will have difficult negotiations over Kashmir State. The breakdown of talks will constantly loom as a possibility. A final result that leaves both nations satisfied over the status of Kashmir seems impossible to find. Rising Indian anger over Kashmir, some of it diverted toward Washington and London urging a solution of the dispute, will threaten to obscure the resolution to face the Chinese challenge.

Pakistan's constitution, written by President Ayub Khan to give him strong personal control, will be somewhat liberalized. Agitation for a return to a fully representative government will grow stronger, despite constitutional concessions.

In Ceylon, democracy will be strained further by the degeneration of parliamentary processes and by economic problems that seem to the leaders to demand strong measures.

King Mahendra will retain his personal hold on Nepal at a cost of continued stagnation. His new constitution will fail to inspire popular enthusiasm or lay the groundwork for reforms.

Afghanistan's self-defeating feud with Pakistan will continue while the Afghan economy slides downhill as a result of closing the trade routes through Pakistan. However, the Soviet Union, which has been trying to strengthen its position in Afghanistan, is expected to gain little political benefit from trading going its way.

Southeast Asia

By JOHN T. WHEELER

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya (AP) — Most of Southeast Asia enters 1963 with a worried frown.

South Viet Nam is fighting a bitter, and so far indecisive war, Against Communist guerrillas. The government, backed by massive American support, has made progress but Communist strength seems to grow. Years of elusive fighting lie ahead. President Ngo Dinh Diem maintains a tight but uneasy control over his country.

Laos, a pawn in the cold war, is stumbling toward a stable government with uncertain prospects of success. Neutralist Premier Souvanna Phouma has threatened to resign if left- and right-wing factions do not make good their promises to cooperate.

Indonesia confronts a major economic crisis that could undermine the government. It takes over West New Guinea next May. The country continues its military buildup, leading to speculation whether Portuguese Timor may be Indonesia's next target.

Gen. Ne Win's military regime in Burma is giving the Buddhist nation a taste of tough government to revive the flagging economy through a Socialist approach. There are a few early signs of success but a strained year is in prospect.

The proposed Federation of Malaysia is expected to go ahead, with a deadline of Aug. 31. It will include Malaya, Singapore, Sarawak, North Borneo and possibly Brunei. Inclusion of the Sultanate of Brunei has been thrown into doubt by this month's rebellion, subdued by British forces.

Philippine President Diosdado Macapagal has emerged as a strong leader. His efforts to clean out graft and corruption in government and to develop economic programs have won popular support at home. The Philippine claim to North Borneo has cast a shadow on the future of the Association of Southeast Asia which includes Malaya and Thailand.

Thailand is returning to normal after a year of excitement which included a U. S. troop buildup when the civil war in Laos threatened to spread across the border.

Cambodia, embroiled in a border cold war with neighboring South Viet Nam and Thailand, enjoys political stability. A military buildup is under way as Cambodia's relations with its neighbors continue to deteriorate. Foreign aid still bolsters the wavering economy.

Each Southeast Asian nation eyes the colossus of the north, Communist China, and wonders whether the new year will bring Communist aggression to the area.

Far East

By JOHN RODERICK

TOKYO (AP)—To all appearances, Red China will move into 1963 with a chip on its shoulder.

Its tough stance, and that of neighboring North Korea, may spell trouble in the months ahead.

Criticized not only by their enemies but by some fellow Communists as well, Peking and Pyongyang seemed determined to prove their "hard line" against the West is more effective than Soviet Premier Khrushchev's profession of peaceful coexistence.

Chinese troops in the Himalayas are under a cease-fire in the China-India border, war, but China may renew the fighting, perhaps in the spring, if India refuses to accept terms for negotiation.

North Korea has ordered a strengthening of its military forces. This could foretell pressures and possible increased subversion against South Korea which is scheduled to move in 1963 from military to modified civilian control.

A virtually unarmed Japan, loser of one war, will continue looking the other way if trouble breaks out in Asia. Concentrating on its temporarily slowed economy, it aims for more steady progress and more international trade, but with a higher cost of living.

Hong Kong, prospering in the midst of a building and tourist boom, may be asking itself some anxious questions. One of them: How will China react to Khrushchev's taunts that Peking tolerates a full-fledged colony next door?

For Red China's old enemy, Chiang Kai-shek, 1963 will be another year of watchful wating for signs of an attack on the offshore islands combined with efforts to keep the Formosa economy stable despite a rising population and defense drains. Chiang may dream wistfully, too, of a mainland invasion, one not likely to be launched in 1963.

North Africa

By ANDREW BOROWEIC

TUNIS (AP)—Algeria's painful emergence amidst political and economic chaos and the continuing struggle against underdevelopment will dominate the North African scene in 1963.

The possibility of Communist success has diminished considerably. By now, most North African leaders believe the Soviet bloc is not equipped and not willing to provide massive aid to this part of the world.

Hence the trend in trade and political orientation is expected to be favorable to the West, although officially North Africa will remain a vocal backer of nonalignment.

There will be much talk about North African unity—the union of Tunisia, Algeria and Morocco. Few concrete steps toward this aim are expected.

For Algeria, the year will be crucial. It will determine whether the country has a chance of recovery with the aid of France or whether it will careen toward complete anarchy.

France has indicated readiness to help but with certain conditions. The nature of these conditions and the extent of the aid are to be determined.

Tunisia will begin a period of austerity amid rising popular dissatisfaction. Lack of sizable natural resources and the country's generally weak economy have prompted the government of President Habib Bourguiba to cut imports and adopt austerity.

Morocco's 33-year-old King Hassan II has won a major victory over his left-wing opponents. The Moroccans massively approved a constitutional monarchy granting more power to the king. France continues to exercise strong economic influence on the country.

Both Morocco and Tunisia follow step by step the evolution of Algeria. The future of North African development and unity largely depends on the course Algeria will take.

Africa Elsewhere

By RICHARD KASISCHKE

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—Stormy political weather racial strife seem in store for southern Africa, from the Congo to the Cape, in 1963.

And for the new and emerging states of Middle Africa the new year is likely to bring more groping toward stability, with an increasing tendency toward one-party rule.

The Congo—after 20 crisis-torn months of independence, it would be comforting to think things in the Congo were bound to get better.

On the credit side the Congo is safer, some of the administrative chaos has been unsnarled and there may soon be a final decision on Katangan secession.

On the debit side are problems created by independence and still unsolved. Katanga is still a breakaway province. Its rich mines still pay no taxes to the Leopoldville treasury.

Central Premier Cyrille Adoula enters the new year with serious trouble in Parliament. There is always the threat of a coup d'etat.

Taxes the central government manages to collect go for upkeep of the army and police, though personal safety still cannot be guaranteed. The government must pay other expenses by printing money or relying on the United Nations and U.S. aid.

Central African Federation—formed by Britain in 1953, this union of Nyasaland and Northern and Southern Rhodesia is headed for almost certain breakup. Britain already has agreed in principle to the secession of Nyasaland, smallest and poorest of the three, under African leaders headed by Dr. Hastings Banda. Mineral-rich Northern Rhodesia got a black majority legislative council in a fall election and its African leaders plan a secession drive early in the new year. In face of these developments, Southern Rhodesia's white voters rejected proposals for multiracial rule and elected a right-wing white government to try to hold on to their privileges. White Southern Rhodesians look toward friends on their flanks—where Portugal still holds Angola on the west and Mozambique on the east coast. But most of all Southern Rhodesians look southward to rich, white-ruled South Africa.

South Africa—the ruling whites, outnumbered almost 5 to 1, have been arming to the teeth to defend what its government increasingly considers the last redoubt of "Christianity and white civilization" in Africa. South Africa has an expanded police on constant alert to combat African underground terrorists and "white inciters" blamed for a series of racial clashes and persistent sabotage. For these purposes the government has not only strengthened its internal and external defense forces but armed itself with stern antisabotage and political control laws.

Communist Europe

By PRESTON GROVER

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union and all the Eastern European Socialist states are facing their toughest year since the war.

All are beset by serious economic disorders. There is a ferment of discontent and uneasiness over the very basis of their existence—communism.

Party control of every phase of life in each of these countries simply isn't working well and all have started large-scale reorganizations, including purges.

Moreover, the Soviet Union is engaged in a mud-slinging leadership battle with China that has already put Albania out of the Soviet flock and promises to get worse, not better, in the year ahead.

In Bulgaria, Premier Anton Yugov was thrown out of office because he was an old Stalinist. Yet in Czechoslovakia, Stalinists remain in the saddle. East Germany has gone on rations and Poland is appealing for more American wheat.

Hungary has pulled a lot of nonparty technicians into the government, both to appease those still troubled by 1956, and simply to get brighter administrators.

Yugoslavia and the Soviet Union are patching up an old quarrel, highlighted by Tito's visit to Moscow.

The Soviet Union, hard-hit in prestige by the Cuban affair, and economically strained, will cut down its foreign aid program still more, both to Socialist and other states. A massive reorganization both of the party and the Soviet government is under way in an effort to make the economy run better.

More and more it appears that the revolutionary enthusiasm of the early years is fading away. Premier Khrushchev's apparent easing of the grip on writers is offset by his tougher blows at liberal artists.

The new year will find party watchmen at almost every worker's elbow to goad them to harder work, and prevent cheating. Moscow shops are offering the shabbiest kind of New Year festival food.

Every Muscovite can see that things are better than, say, three years ago, but not much better, and not enough better to make people happy about the increased work demand, and higher prices charged.

Latin America

By FRAN K. BRUTTO

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—Latin America faces the new year with Fidel Castro vastly diminished in prestige but with national problems still towering in size and threatening to grow bigger.

Financial difficulties, political uncertainty and the need for stepped-up social reform continue as the general lot of Central and South American countries.

Communism, even with the Cuban bridgehead stripped of its Soviet sting of missiles and bombers, continues to be a problem, especially in poverty-stricken belts.

Several nations, including giant Brazil and volatile Argentina, face the uncertainties of elections. So do Peru, Venezuela, Guatemala and Chile.

The Communists, openly and from underground positions, can be counted upon to continue their assault against President Kennedy's $20-billion Alliance for Progress program, which has not yet met with enthusiastic response and cooperation. Two former presidents, Juscelino Kubitschek of Brazil and Alberto Llermas Camargo of Colombia, form a special two-man committee to try to find out what is impeding the program.

Brazil, with a deficit of nearly $2 billion and its cruzeiro at a record low, faces the need of new financing that the United States alone — one authoritative source says — can not provide. A Jan. 6 referendum is likely to restore presidential powers and give President Joao Goulart a chance to institute social and other reforms.

Argentina, which survived a shooting crisis in 1962, also faces mounting financial and political difficulties. It will hold important elections June 16: Peronists, Communists and others considered to be totalitarian will be barred from running.

Colombia, which broke relations with Peru after the Prado downfall, is expected to renew those relations in 1963.

Venezuela will have a stormy political year with presidential elections next December. President Romulo Betancourt may be the first civilian president ever to succeed in finishing his term of office.

Fewer Wells Finaled For Past Year

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Fewer oil wells were completed in the United States in 1962 than in any year since 1947.

Gas well completions jumped to a record level.

Fewer wildcat tests were made than in any year since 1950.

Total completions, including dry holes, dropped to their lowest level since 1952.

These 1962 trends were reported this week in year-end estimates by both the American Petroleum Institute (API) and the Independent Petroleum Association of America (IPAA).

Figures included in the estimates by the two trade groups varied a bit but the trends were the same.

The API estimated total completions at 46,600, the IPAA 46,500. Either figure is the lowest since 1952 when there were 46,895 completions.

The all-time high of 58,259 was set in 1956.

IPAA's oil well completions exceeded the AP estimate, 21,500 to 21,325, compared to a record 31,540 in 1955 and a previous low of 17,961 in 1947.

The emphasis on new gas wells is reflected by API's estimate of 6,000 completions and IPAA's estimate of 5,800. It was the fourth consecutive year for gas wells to increase. A record 4,918 completions were made in 1961.

API's estimate of 8,985 indicates a fourth consecutive annual decline for wildcat completions. The record of 13,034 was set in 1956. The IPAA estimated there were 6,000 completions in unproved areas this year.

The API figures indicated a minor increase in oil wildcats. Oil completions were estimated at 836, compared to 815 in 1961 and a record 1,812 in 1955.

Gas wildcats were placed at a record 600 compared to 1961's previous high of 491.

The domestic industry set records in 1962 in both crude production and refinery operations.

The API report indicates domestic operators produced 7,327,000 barrels of crude daily. The IPAA estimate was 2,000 barrels lower. The old record of 7,183,000 was set in 1961.

Only the API report included estimates on refinery operations. Crude runs to stills were estimated at 8,407,000 barrels daily, compared to 1961's record 8,184,000. Total domestic oil refining capacity was placed at 10,152,120 barrels a day, compared to the previous record 10,105,147 barrels at the end of 1961.

The IPAA report indicates the domestic industry's idle or shut-in crude producing capacity at year-end approximated 2,765,000 barrels a day, a decline of 39,000.

This is only the second minor decline in excess productive capacity since a world-wide oil surplus of oil developed in early 1957 at the end of the Suez Canal emergency.

Idle capacity totaled only 1,939,000 barrels a day in 1956 but jumped to a record 2,866,000 two years later. Improved operations in 1959 dropped the figure to 2,628,000 but shut-in capacity climbed back to 2,804,000 barrels daily by the end of 1961.

Shut-in capacity in 1956 was equivalent to only 27 per cent of the year's actual production that averaged 7,151,000 barrels daily. This percentage jumped to 42 per cent in 1958 when actual output averaged only 7,709,000 barrels daily.

The current shut-in capacity of 2,765,000 barrels a day is equivalent to 37 per cent of 1962's estimated record daily output.

OIL AND GAS

Activity Slows In Area Fields

Activity slowed somewhat last week in the Monroe Oil & Gas District when only 15 locations were staked for new wells in the 14 - parish area. However, nine wells were completed, four of them in the Monroe Gas Field in Ouachita and Union Parshies.

Other completions included two each in Avoyelles and Concordia Parishes and one in Rapides. The new locations included two in Ouachita Parish and one in Morehouse, as well as others in Catahoula Parish, where six sites were staked, LaSalle, Rapides, Richland and Tensas Parishes. Ouachita and Morehouse stakings were in the Monroe Field.

Of a total of 12 wells active, according to District Manager Duncan S. Cook, one was in Ouachita Parish, drilling at 6567 feet in the Calhoun Field, and another in the Monroe Field, Union Parish, was drilling at 2000 feet. Also actively drilling or testing were wells in Caldwell, Catahoula, Grant, LaSalle and Tensas Parishes.

A single recompletion during the week came in LaSalle Parish, being the Goodpine No. F-85 of the Hunt Petroleum Corporation, in section 21-7-3E of the Nebo-Hemphill Field.

Six wells were plugged and abandoned and inactive sites numbered 114, while there were 40 locations, 26 of them drilling.

Market Holds To Tradition With A Rally

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market last week managed to maintain the Wall Street tradition of a year-end rally, but not by much.

Past history favors the chances of a rise in stock prices between Christmas and New Year's Day. Unless there is a fairly sharp sell-off Monday, the final session of 1962, the tradition will be upheld.

Brokers explained that tax-loss selling has been going on for so long that this customary item in the year-end dealings was overbalanced by new buying on the part of investors and speculators. The margin to the upside, however, was thin.

It was the second straight weekly rise. The list was so muddled by tax transactions of one sort or another and portfolio switches by big investors that no special import could be read into the performance, so far as 1963 prospects are concerned.

Volume for the four-day trading week, cut short by Tuesday's Christmas holiday, was 14,359,630 shares, compared with 18,900,752 for the full five-day trading week preceding it.

Average daily trading was only 3,589,907 shares, compared with 3,780,150 the week before. These compared with November's daily average of 4,802,857.

This slackness of trading, brokers said, mirrored an uncertainty on the part of the stock market community as to what the new year would bring. Wall Street watched President Kennedy and his advisers for some clue as to the nature and timing of the 1963 tax cut promised by the President, but no really solid indication was forthcoming. Most Wall Streeters agree that, given a substantial and prompt tax cut, the stock market should advance sharply.

Selective buying of blue chips to dress up the portfolios of investment companies was one feature of the week and this accounted in part for the rise in the averages.

The New York City newspaper strike, now past its third week, continued to deprive many investors of their usual sources of financial news and buying ideas. It was an abnormal situation, to which a good part of the light dealings was attributed.

The Monday (Christmas Eve) session was an irregular one with volume of 3.18 million shares the lightest in two months. It was the last day on which stock could be sold "regular way" (four-day delivery) in the time for entry in 1962 tax returns. The post-Christmas session provided the sharpest advance of the week, but on mediocre volume.

On the bond markets, corporates held steady during the week, based on the AP averages, while government issues were lower. Corporate volume fell to $18,586,000 par value for the four working days from the $27,163,000 the previous week.

Field Assured For Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Triad Oil and Gas Co.'s new wildcat oil well in Smith County assures a new deep oil field in south Mississippi.

The Clark No. 1, sec. 9-10n-15w, located two miles southeast of Mize, is flowing 325 barrels of oil daily. The well was drilled to 11,836-51 feet and has a gravity of 36 degrees.

Triad is also testing a second discovery in Smith County, the Stewart No. 1, sec. 29-1n-8e, located northeast of Mize.

Operators are testing a sand at 12,827-37 feet in the Sligo formation. A sand in the Rodessa at 12,336-51 feet will be perforated and tested.

Total depth of the well is 13,521 feet with casing set to 12,895 feet.

HIGH SCORER

BOSTON (UPI) — Don McKenney of the Boston Bruins has scored 20 of more goals in all but one of his eight seasons in the National Hockey League. The veteran center enjoyed his greatest season in 1958-59 when he bagged 32 goals.

FACING COMING YEAR

Business At Slow Pace

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Business approached the new year during the week at a slow between-holidays pace and in a moderately optimistic frame of mind.

The Christmas holiday cut into production in major industries and retail trade simmered down after an 11th-hour spurt that sent holiday buying to a new record.

A strike of 60,000 members of the International Longshoremen's Association paralyzed ports from Maine to Texas. Newspaper strikes in New York City and Cleveland dragged on.

Much of the optimism about the outlook for 1963 hinged on the possibility of a reduction in personal and corporate income taxes.

President Kennedy interrupted his holiday at Palm Beach, Fla., to meet with his economic advisers to hammer out final touches on tax-cut plans. Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon and his staff are now ready to put the program into form for submission to Congress. But no details have been disclosed.

Most leading businessmen participating in the annual year-end symposium of the Commerce and Industry Association of New York viewed 1963 prospects optimistically. These opinions were tempered by some anticipations of declines or continuation of the present level.

Representatives of the drug, retail, food, cooper, oil, life insurance and securities industries generally felt good about the outlook. Real estate and construction executives predicted that building of commercial office and luxury apartment buildings will slow down.

A survey of 179 manufacturing companies indicated that about half look for higher pretax profits in the first half of 1963 than in the first half of 1962. About 30 per cent expect no change and 20 per cent anticipate a drop.

Most companies in the electrical equipment, hardware, instruments, apparel, construction materials and food industries said they expect their capital spending in the first half to be above the average rate for 1962.

Christmas turned out to be a happy one for merchants who, for a while, had felt that Santa Claus was likely to skip them. Gift buying got off to a slow start because of unusually warm weather and then was hurt in some sections by storms.

But in the final days the surge got under way, and the National Retail Merchants Association estimated that dollar volume set a new record, exceeding the 1961 level by three or four per cent.

The longshoremen's strike began along the Atlantic and Gulf coasts after an earlier walkout had been interrupted by an 80-day cooling-off period invoked under the Taft-Hartley Act.

Shannon Leads Florida To Gator Bowl Victory

Penn State Eleven Upset Victim, 10-6

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Brash sophomore quarterback Tommy Shannon fired two touchdown passes for underdog Florida which stunned Penn State 17-7 Saturday in one of the biggest upsets in Gator Bowl football history.

Better than a touchdown underdog, the fifth-place finishers in the Southeastern Conference rocked back the Eastern collegiate kings in the spirit of a crusade implied by the Confederate flags emblazoned on their helmets.

Shannon launched a 7-yard scoring strike to his brilliant sophomore running mate Larry Dupree and hit Hagood Clark on a 19-yard aerial maneuver at the start of the final quarter.

After end Sam Holland recovered a Roger Kochman fumble early in the contest, sophomore Bob Lyle kicked the longest field goal in Gator Bowl annals—43 yards—and the first of the season for Florida.

Shannon from Miami, Fla., the most surprising performer in 1962 for the unpredictable Gators, outshone senior record-breaker Pete Liske of the Nittany Lions, who saw a string of three Bowl triumphs in as many years snapped under leaden skies.

Quick, darting runs by all-SEC choice Dupree, with assistance from Sam Mack, aided the Florida cause but it was on defense where the Gators from Gainesville demonstrated the superiority they weren't supposed to have.

Another fumble recovery by end Bruce Starling set up the first abbreviated scoring drive of 24 yards. Starling intercepted a Liske pass late in the third period, touching off a 49 yard drive.

Penn State, which had lost only one game this fall to Army 9-6 via the only other successful field goal against it, got untracked only for a beat-the-clock march just before halftime. Liske rolled out for a yard on fourth down with 36 seconds on the clock.

Liske steered the favorites 76 yards in 18 plays, completing three of his four passes to his astounding little flanker back, Junior Powell. Another pass end ed in an interference call which produced a first down at the Florida 9.

The maneuver recalled a year ago when Georgia Tech had run up a lead as Florida had done Saturday in the Gator Bowl only to be overwhelmed in the second half 30-15.

But the fighting Floridians this time just wouldn't let up. The underdogs had monopolized the ball for 13½ minutes, all but five plays in the pening period of their ball-control masterpieces.

Penn State did not register a first down until nearly 26 minutes had elapsed as a Liske to Buddy Yost pass touched off the scoring drive.

Penn State's Al Gursky had just picked off a Florida pass in the early moments of the contest when Roger Kochman began a sweep only to see the ball suddenly pop from his grasp at about the 20. End Sam Holland captured it at the 29.

When the attack bogged down, Lyle hit his field goal which surpassed the previous Gator Bowl record 22 yarder by Clemson's Jack Miller against Missouri in 1949.

Don Caum of Penn State let a punt touch him later in the opening quarter and Florida wingman Starling pounced on the opportunity 24 yards from the Nittany Lion goal. Shannon, voted most valuable player in the game, came up with two successful fourth down gambles en route to the score — a running jump pass to end Russ Brown at the 12 and a mad dash down the sidelines to the 6. A penalty pushed the Gators back to the 6, they lost another yard, then Shannon found Dupree who had sifted in behind two defenders in the rear of the end zone.

So much did Florida dominate play it had the ball 41½ minutes to 18½ minutes for the losers.

All America end Dave Robinson was selected the outstanding performer for the losers, contributing brilliant individual efforts as did tackle Chuck Sieminski and guard Harison Rosdahl and Joe Blasenstein. Florida had its field day at the expense of the Penn State corner backs.

In the final statistics Shannon completed 7 of 9 passes for 79 yards and ran an additional 26. Dupree rang up 66 yards on the ground to Kochman's 51.

ANNUAL SHRINE CONTEST

Lamonica Leads East To Victory Over West

By JACK STEVENSON
Assviated Press Sports Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Notre Dame's Daryle Lamonica fired three scoring passes of 41, 69 and 29 yards and steered his club on a winning 88-yard drive in the waning minutes Saturday as the East beat the West 25-19.

Sonny Gibbs of Texas Christian also threw three touchdown aerials for the West and appeared to have a 19-19 tie assured with less than three minutes remaining in the 38th annual Shrine charity football game.

Then Lamonica connected on six passes in the long drive and finally sent Iowa's Larry Ferguson over from the 2 for the winning tally with 1 minute 27 seconds remaining.

A crowd of 60,107 filled Kezar Stadium to watch the explosive nationally televised battle between the Lamonica-led East and the West with Gibbs at the controls.

Never before in the 38-year history of this game had a player thrown three touchdown passes. But Lamonica had his by halftime and Gibbs hit Hugh Campbell of Washington State with his scoring pitch with less than three minutes remaining—still enough time for the East to come back and win.

Lamonica promptly rallied the East forces on the long touchdown drive and won unanimous recognition as the game's most valuable player in the vote of newsmen.

Lamonica hit 20 of 28 passes for 349 yards. He had three intercepted. Gibbs connected on 22 of 37 passes for 271 yards and had two intercepted.

Campbell was honored as the outstanding lineman, setting a game record with 10 receptions—two going for touchdowns on 25 and 23-yard plays.

The Syracuse end got behind the secondary of East's first two scoring plays, those of 41 and 69 yards.

Paul Flatley of Northwestern grabbed the third scoring aerial from Lamonica. Gibbs connected with Ronnie Goodwin of Baylor with his initial scoring pass covering 27 yards. The next two went to Campbell.

Lamonica threw the first bomb in the afternoon's aerial cannonading when he hit Mackey on a 41-yard first quarter play. The 6-foot-2 end raced behind defenders Larry Balliett of California and Jim Johnson of Missouri to grab the ball alone on the West's 7. Michigan State's Jim Bobbitt, a bulwark on defense, booted the conver ion.

UCLA' Kermit Alexander started the West toward its first score when he picked up a punt in the second period just before it was to go out of bounds, caught the East off balance and returned 21 yards to the East 34.

A penalty and two plays later, Baylor's Goodwin snared a Gibbs throw at the 18 and scored on a play covering 27 yards in all. Washington's Ray Mansfield kicked the conversion.

Two plays after the ensuing kickoff, Lamonica handed off to Michigan State's George Saimes who returned the ball via a lateral with the Notre Dame quarterback uncorking a long pass to Mackey. Mackey again outran Johnson and Balliett, caught the ball on the West 30 and romped in to score on the 69-yard play. This time Bobbitt's kick sailed wide.

The West surged back 68 yards in eight plays — the final three passes from Gibbs to Washington State end Hugh Campbell for 15, 15 and 25 yards. Mansfield's kick went wide and with 3 minutes, 49 seconds left in the half the score stood deadlocked 13-13.

It took just five plays for the East to move ahead again on Lamonica's throwing arm. He connected on a 29-yard toss to Flatley at the goal to finish off a 71-yard drive, taking just 2:09. Lamonica tried a 2-point conversion pass and hit Saimes in the flat, only to have the halfback slip and fall at the 5.

Campbell gained 152 yards on his 10 receptions for the West. Mackey had 146 on 5 and Flatley 100 on 8 for the East.

Florida Represents SEC With Victory

By F. T. MCFEELY

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — "Our boys were defending the Southeastern Conference versus the East," coach Ray Graves beamed in explaining how his Florida Gators came into the Gator Bowl game as underdogs and played Penn State off its feet in a 17-7 victory Saturday.

The boys felt like they were playing for the whole conference," Graves continued after he survived a ride off the field on the shoulders of his players and a dunking in the dressing room shower.

"This was a great boost for the SEC," Graves went on. "Our boys felt they had played a tougher schedule than Penn State and we had to uphold the Gator Bowl selection."

There was much criticism of Gator Bowl officials for matching Florida with a 6-4 record against the 9-1 of the Penn State Nittany Lions, whose only loss was an upset by Army.

It gave Florida coaches an opportunity to use psychology and they played it to the hilt.

"This was our best 60 minutes of football all year," Graves said. Coach Rip Engle of Penn State wouldn't disagree with him.

"They played well. We knew they would," Engle said. "They have a well rounded team."

"Ellenson helped put in a new defense," Graves said. "We call it the monster defense."

It is virtually a five man line with four linebackers and two deep backs. The corner linebackers characteristically fire into the opponent's backfield.

"We gambled to win," Graves said of the defense he put in with only five days to practice it, "and it paid off."

It worked effectively, holding Penn State to 89 yards rushing and 51 passing. This for a team that gained an average of 345 yards a game during the season.

Engle was jovial as ever after the game—in fact far more relaxed than when he and his team arrived Wednesday night after a weather-harrassed trip from Pennsylvania.

Saturday's weather wasn't to his liking either—too hot (in the 70s) and too slippery—"if a couple of our kids hadn't slipped—" from damp weather of recent days.

But the veteran who hasn't had a losing season in 13 years at Penn State wouldn't blame the weather for the loss.

"I don't want to take anything away from Florida," Engle said. "They worked harder for it and they got it. They got long yardage on key plays."

McKinley Blasts To Net Victory In Sugar Bowl

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Little Chuck McKinley, playing a superb all-court game, blasted his way to a 6-4, 6-2 victory over John Maloney in the opening round of the Sugar Bowl Tennis Tourna ment Saturday.

McKinley, the United States' top-ranked player, scored time and again with both forehand and backhand passing shots, while Maloney, a tall South African, was hampered by service faults and indecisive court play.

Frank Froehling III, ranked second both here and in the U.S Lawn Tennis Association ratings, defeated Lt. Norman Perry, 6-4, 7-5.

Ron Holmberg outlasted Andy Lloyd of Shreveport in a battle of ex-Tulane stars, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4, and Mike Franks defeated Louisiana State champion Dr. Robert Borders of Shreveport 8-6, 6-2.

Tribe Track Stars Run At Sugar Bowl

By DAVID ZINMAN

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Distance stars Bruce Kidd and Tom O'Hara—young sensations of the spiked shoe circuit—follow the sun to New Orleans for the Sugar Bowl track and field meet Monday.

Some 70 athletes will compete in seven running events and the pole vault in the year-end outdoor games, usually held in balmy temperatures.

The meet, an offshoot of the annual New Year's Day grid classic, —reportedly the result of the NCAA-AAU squabble over track control.

The 20-year-old Kidd, AAU 3-mile champ and winner of the recent British Empire 6-mile run, will fly from Toronto for a 3-mile dual with Dale Story of Oregon State. Story is the 1961 NCAA Cross-country titlist.

In with them are transplanted Britisher Malcolm Robinson of Southwestrn Louisiana, Gulf States mild king, and Southeastern Conference 2-mile champ Jim Taylor of Mississippi State.

The quartet will be making an assault on Greg Rice's 21-year-old meet record of 14 minutes 13 seconds.

O'Hara, 20 - year - old Chicago Loyola whippet who reeled off a sparkling 4:01.7 mile this year before annexing the NCAA cross-country title, is in a big 10-man field.

He'll match strides with Bill Crothers, Kidd's Toronto University teammate and holder of the Canadian 880 record at 1:49; and Laurie Elliott, Houston sophomore and brother of Olympian Herb Elliott.

Charles Strong of Oklahoma, the Big Eight 440 champ and last year's Sugar Bowl quarter-mile winner, is back for his specialty. He'll be running against former schoolboy record holder Ted Nelson of Texas A&M, and GSC 440 champ Randy Walker of Northeast Louisiana.

Billy Hardin of Louisiana State and Charles Mosely of Alabama, who wound up in a dead heat in the SEC meet, will battle each other again over the 120-high hurdles.

Cincinati Takes Ohio University In Lopside Win

CINCINNATI (AP)—Top-ranked Cincinnati held Ohio University to only 14 points in the first half Saturday night and scored a lopsided 73-43 victory.

George Wilson produced 26 points—his best night as a collegian—heading the NCAA champions in their 27th straight victory, including nine this season.

The taller Bobcats kept the issue close in the slow first ten minutes when Cincinnati reached a 13-10 edge. But Wilson scored 9 straight points in a speedup while his colleagues held Ohio scoreless more than five minutes and Cincinnati had a 38-14 halftime lead.

The Bobcats' best scorer was 6-foot-5 Don Hilt with 17 points.

GULF SOUTH CLASSIC

Centenary Races To Tourney Title

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Centenary College—aided by 39 free throws—won the Gulf South Classic Saturday night for the second straight year by defeating Eastern Kentucky 87-74.

Eastern Kentucky couldn't control its fouling, particularly in the second half and it resulted in 54 trips to the charity line for the Gents.

Centenary cashed in on 39 free throws to build up a substantial lead late in the final half.

The game was close for about 30 full minutes, although Centenary took the lead early, only to hand it back to Eastern Kentucky four times before intermission. The Gents were ahead 48-43 at halftime.

Centenary's 6-foot-2 Jimmy Williams, a junior, paced scoring with 21 points, including 13 free throws. Herman Smith collected 15 for Eastern Kentucky. The victory boosted Centenary to a 6-3 mark and left the Maroons at 3-4.

Texas Christian defeated George Washington 77-62 to win the consolation title. The Horned Frogs, deadlocked 36-36 at intermission with George Washington, also depended on free throws to come out ahead.

TCU's 6-foot-4 Johnny Xowler dumped in 20 points to lead his team to a 3-6 mark for the season. Sophomore Kenny Ligis, 6-foot-6, hit 18 for George Washington. no2 4-5.

West Texas State won seventh place with an 86-77 triumph over Northwestern (La.) State as Scottie Pierce clicked for 19 points for the Texans. West Texas is now 2-8 while NSC, led by Tommy Mathis' 19 points, is 2-7.

Louisiana Tech, a three-time winner of this tourney, whipped Southern Mississippi 83-77 for third place as Joe Abendroth collected 23 points. Eddie Maher led Southern, which dropped to 4-6, with 20 points. Tech climbed to a 5-3 season mark.

Centenary's 6-foot-5 Riley Wallace was named most valuable player and a member of the all-tourney team. Joining him were Eastern Kentucky's 6-foot-7 Ron Pickett, Legins, Pierce and 6-foot-2 junior Jerry Wade from TCU. South Classic (top to come)

Loyola In Win Over Wyoming For Meet Title

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI)—Unbeaten Loyola of Chicago got the scare of the season Saturday night but managed to fight off a determined bid by unsung Wyoming to win the All-College basketball tournament title game, 93-82.

Loyola, the nation's No. 2 team, had to battle all the way as Wyoming almost matched the Ramblers in speed and teamwork. But it was the usual well-balanced scoring attack, built around a fruious fast break, that earned Loyola its 10th victory without a loss.

Flynn Robinson, Wyoming's sensational sophomore guard, tried valliantly to pull his team through as he had done in two previous games here. The 6-1 sharpshooter ended with 24 points and was named the tournament's most valuable player.

Warriors Spurt In Last Minutes To Earn Victory

NEW YORK (AP) — The San Francisco Warriors spurted in the last two minutes and broke away for a 114-109 victory over the New York Knicks in a National Basketball Association game at Madison Square Garden Saturday.

The victory was the sixth in the last eight games for the Warriors and their fifth in five days.

The Warriors' Wilt Chamberlain, playing with a bruised side, was sub-par through most of the contest but had a key role in his team's rally from a first half 17-point deficit, 49-32. Chamberlain scored 33 points and grabbed 23 rebounds.

Hawks Get Win Over Boston 5 In St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The St. Louis Hawks came through with their third straight cliff - hanger win over the world champion Boston Celtics at home this season with a 102-100 decision Saturday night.

The victory was St. Louis' 12th consecutive win at home as they came from behind in the closing minute of play.

The Hawks trailed through most of the game. The Celtics broke fast in the opening minutes of the third and fourth periods to increase their 51-48 halftime lead to as much as 10 points.

St. Louis went ahead to stay on a basket by Lennie Wilkens with a minute remaining. The score put them on top 102-100. St. Louis, trailing 100-99, tied it when Phil Jordan made one of two free throws after a Boston basket was nullified because of a foul by Bill Russell.

Hagan grabbed the rebound after Jordan missed his second free throw to pave the way for Wilkens' basket.

Portland, Rams Capture Crowns In Bonita Play

BONITA (Special) — Sue Adair led Portland over Ouachita, 49-38, for the title here Saturday night and Robert Malson led Bastrop's Rams over Sterlington, 62-50 to take the boys title of the Bonita Holiday Invitational. Both Adair and Malson were named most valuable players in the three day event.

Miss Adair scored 33-points for the Portland lasses while Janet Glenn, a member of the six player all-tourney girls' team, scored 24-points for Ouachita.

Malson scored 25 - points to take high scoring honors and Joe Pratt, a member of the five player all-tournament boys' team, scored 14 for Sterlington in a close game. Bastrop pulled away from the Panthers late in the game before winning with a 12 - point margin.

The all-tourney girls' squad is composed of Miss Glenn, Mary Bawcom, McGehee, Ark., Janice Nale, Sterlington, Linda McGee, Portland, Sandra Lovette, Ouachita and Marilyn Turner of Portland.

Grambling Wins Dillard Tourney

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Grambling overwhelmed Texas Southern 106-84 Saturday night behind the 34-point performance of Hershell West to win the first Dillard Invitational Basketball tourney.

Southern University beat host Dillard 83-62 for third place.

Grambling, one of the nation's small college basketball powers, took a 56-33 intermission lead and coasted to victory in the second half as coach Fred Hobdy emptied his bench. Willis Reed, Grambling's 6-foot-8 playmaker, sank 24 points.

Southern had a 32-27 halftime advantage over Dillard and widened the gap in the second half. Robert Love paced the Jaguars with 24 points while Charles Breaux hit on 16 for Dillard.

Reed was named the tourney's most valuable player.

NFL CHAMPIONSHIP CONTEST

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Green Bay's crunching power game and sticky-fingered pass defense make the defending champion Packers a one-touchdown favorite over Y.A. Tittle and the go-for-broke New York Giants in Sunday's National Football League title rematch at Yankee Stadium.

A roaring, sellout crowd of 64,892 will jam the stadium at prices ranging from $8 to $10. Millions will follow every play on network (NBC) television and radio, although the New York metropolitan area will be blacked out on television. Game time is 2:05 p.m. (EST).

With an estimated $600,000 gate at the stadium, plus $615,000 for the radio-tv rights, gross receipts of about $1.2 million could bring each winning share over $6,000 an each loser $4,000 plus, both records.

Few expect a repetition of the 37-0 rout of last New Year's Eve when the Packers practically chased the Giants into the snowbanks surrounding Green Bay's frozen City Stadium. The Giants come into the big game with a nine-game winning streak and a 12-2 season record that compares favorably with the Packers' 13-1 season, marred only by a Thanksgivng Day 26-14 disaster at Detroit.

New York has gone mad, simply mad over Tittle, the Giants' 36-year-old quarterback who threw a new record 33 touchdown passes this year. At the same time they still chant "Huff, Huff, Huff" for Sam Huff, the handsome linebacker who is the symbol of Andy Robustelli's veteran defensive unit.

Once again Green Bay has been rechristened "Titletown, U.S.A." and the 1,500 tickets alloted to Packer fans were gobbled up in a matter of minutes.

Allie Sherman, the NFL coach-of-the-year for the second straight time, herded his Giants to Bear Mountain and the vast field house at neighboring West Point for their final tune-up drills. Vince Lombardi's Packers worked at home in sub-zero temperatures after finishing the regular season in California.

Green Bay has the player-of-the-year in fullback Jim Taylor, a bruising charger who rambled through — and over—enemy defenses this season for 1,474 yards and 19 touchdowns and ended Jimmy Brown's 5-year reign as rushing leader. Taylor's running mate will be either Paul Hornung, the Golden Boy hero of last year whose 19 points against the Giants set a playoff record, or Tom Moore who took Hornung's place when Paul was crippled by a knee injury. Hornung's true condition probably will not be known until game time but he has given indication in practice that he again will be ready to block, catch passes and run that deadly pass option play.

JIM TAYLOR, the power house of the Green Bay Packers' backfield, is expected to anchor the running game for the western division champs today when they meet the New York Giants in New York for the National Football League title. (AP Wirephoto)

Tittle's arm accounted for 3,224 yards on 200 completions in 375 attempts, but the Packers also have a capable air arm in Bart Starr, the statistical passing leader with a 62.5 per cent completion average. Starr throws primarily to end Max McGee, flanker Boyd Dowler, and Ron Kamer, his 6-foot-3, 230-pound tight end — but hits Hornung and Moore with his long "bombs" when the occasion demands.

In 1961 the Packers beat the Giants 20-17 in regular season play with Taylor gaining 186 yards. In the title game, Taylor was bothered by a back injury and was used more as a decoy while Hornung romped for 89 yards.

A powerful Packer front wall, manned by center Jim Ringo, guards Fuzzy Thurston and Jerry Kramer (who missed the '61 game), and tackles Forrest Gregg and Bob Skoronski open the holes for Taylor, Hornung and Moore.

Tittle's passes to split end Del Shofner is the basis of the Giants' long-striking air game by Y. A. also throws often to flanker Frank Gifford, who is making a fine comeback after a year of retirement, tight end Joe Walton and frequently hits fullback Ales Webster with a screen pass.

The Giants' running game was only the eighth best in the league (Green Bay's was first) but the "big black" system, copied from Lombardi, has made effective use of Webster and Phil King.

On defense, the Packers are the best at snuffing out an opponent's passes. They led the league in that category and also intercepted the most, 31. Four interceptions on Tittle ruined the Giants last year.

The Packers' deep defense of Herb Adderley, Jesse Whittenton, Willie Wood and Hank Gremminger and the star linebacking trio of Dan Currie, Ray Nitschke and Bill Forester back up the big four in front—Willie Davis and Bill Quinlan at the ends and Hawg Hanner and Henry Jordan at the tackles.

Green Bay gave the Giants' vaunted defense quite a going over last year. However, Robustelli and Jim Katcavage at the ends and Dick Modzelewski and Rosey Grier at the tackles bounced back with a fine season. Rookie Bill Winter firmed up the linebacking trio with Huff in the middle and Tom Scott on the right side. Erich Barnes and Dick Lynch at the corner positions and Jimmy Patton and Allan Webb at safety often give up the short passes but are deadly on the long ones.

The weather could be an important factor. Most experts think the Packers have the edge in heavy going and the Giants' main hope is a dry, fast field. However, a passing attack often is more effective in slippery going because the receivers run set patterns and the defenders have trouble making their switches.

If the Giants expect to run, as Sherman has hinted, it will be behind the line of tackles Rosey Brown and Jack Stroud, guards Darrell Dess and Greg Larson and center Ray Wietecha. These five men, plus King, also must give Tittle the protection he needs on pass blocking.

The Packers are primarily the same club that won last year, but with the return of the injured Jerry Kramer permitting Gregg to return to his regular tackle job, Gregg had to play guard in the last playoff. The only other change is the move of Adderley to the first team and the demotion of John Symank. The Packers do have four fine rookie reserves, including a powerful fullback in Earl Gros.

The Giants have made many changes. Larson moved to guard and Stroud took over at tackle, stiffening the pass blocking. Kyle Rote retired and Gifford came back to play flanker. Winter replaced Cliff Livingston at left linebacker and Webb became a regular safety. King took the job shared by Joe Wells and Bobby Gaiters last year.

Both teams have dangerous punt return artists—Wood for the Packers and rookie Johnny Counts for the Giants.

Hoppman Sparks Win Over Grays

By REX THOMAS

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Iowa State's hard-running quarterback Dave Hoppman led the Northern all-stars to a 10-6 victory over their Rebel opponents Saturday on a Blue-Gray gridiron left soggy by overnight rain.

Hoppman, twice an all-Big Eight selection and second only to the famed Paul Christman in total yardage in conference history, called the signals part of the time, and shifted to halfback at other times.

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—Statistics of the Blue-Gray football game.

Passes	1-10	12-23
Passes intercepted by	2	2
Punts	6-32.5	5-41
Fumbles lost	0	2
Yards penalized	15	15

The 6-foot-1, 195-pound runner from Ecorse, Mich., received the accolade of sports writers as the game's outstanding player.

Despite Hoppman's ability to move the ball, it was the field goal and extra point kicking of Jim Kanicki of Michigan State which made the difference on the scoreboard.

Kanicki, a 265-pound, 6-4 guard, put the Northerners ahead early in the game with a 40-yard field goal, then added a conversion after the Blues scored their touchdown in the second quarter.

The Yankees' margin almost certainly would have been greater except for an alert Rebel pass defense which broke up the North passing game. Hoppman, who completed 40 of 89 passes for 679 yards during the regular season, threw seven without finding a receiver.

Only one Blue aerial was good throughout the day. It was a 9-yard toss thrown by quarterback Pete Smith of Michigan State.

A crowd estimated at 18,000 sat through most of the televised game under a bright sun which broke through the overcast shortly before the kickoff after a night and morning of drizzling rain.

The Yanks' touchdown came on a yard plunge by Bob Butts, Ohio State fullback, after Kanicki had recovered a Dixie fumble at midfield.

Southern coaches led by Tom Nugent of Maryland were worried at the outset of the game by the lack of kicking talent on their squad, but the kicking ability of an untried punter, Gambrell, kept the Rebs out of trouble several times.

The South Carolina halfback, drafted in desperation, got off one boot for 63 yards, another for 50, and two others which traveled 45 yards or better. His average for the day was 41 yards.

Gambrell was the sports writers' unanimous choice for the best Southern player on offense.

The victory was the 10th for the Yankees in the Blue-Gray series. The South has been on the winning side 14 times.

'BAMA, SOONERS

Defense Powers In Orange Bowl

By BOB HOOBING

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Alabama and Oklahoma, reconstructed football powers who do things big defensively, will collide in the Orange Bowl Tuesday with President Kennedy among the expected 73,000 spectators.

National tlevision, ABC, 2 p.m., EST, also will be focused on proceedings where the mighty Red Elephants of Alabama are slight favorites over the eight-ranked Sooners thacks to a more versatile attack.

A crisis seems to have passed in the Oklahoma camp now that top quarterback Monte Deere, throttle man behind the nation's second most prolific rushing offense, has returned to the practice field. Earlier he had been ordered to bed because of the flu and a sore throat.

Fifth-ranked Alabama permitted only five touchdowns during a 9-1 season and the lone setback, 6-7 to Georgia Tech, came by the margin of a missed two-point conversion gamble. The last time coach Paul Bryant's warriors surrendered more than seven points to a rival was 24 games ago and it has happened only twice in 42.

Led by All-America center-linebacker Lee Roy Jordan, the Crimson Tide is particularly poison to running, limiting the combined opposition to a mere 588 yards.

Winning its last seven games in a row, Oklahoma's youngest bowl entry under coach Bud Wilinson allowed six touchdowns. Notre Dame alone managed to run the ball across the Sooner goal and that was 34 periods back.

Wilkinson, who serves as special consultant to President Kennedy on youth fitness and will have the chief executive on his side of the field throughout the game, warns it won't necessarily turn into a defensive struggle.

"This looks on the surface like a low scoring game," Wilkinson said. "But sometimes these things work just the opposite. It's impossible to tell. We might be trading a lot of touchdowns out there Tuesday."

Both sides concede Alabama has the better passing game gunned by standout sophomore quarterback Joe Namath. It is precisely in the aerial defense department, however, where Oklahoma shines, ranking seventh best among major colleges.

Namath seized command from the start as a yearling and bettered school records in pass completions (76) and passing yardage (1,192). Ed Versprille came from virtually nowhere and handled the fullback ssignment so well he took team rushing honors. Meanwhile, senior Cotton Clark, not fast but shrewd, rang up 92 points and broke loose for 830 yards divided among rushing, pass receptions, kick returns and interception runbacks.

On the Oklahoma side, Wilkinson had for the first time nominated a sophomore as his quarterback in 1962 — Tom Pannell. When he was injured Sept. 10, Deere, a defensive halfback last season, was pressed into emergency service and developed quickly.

If the game is as tight as expected, Alabama can muster a clear edge in the placekicking department with Tim Davis who boosted 22 of 25 conversion attempts and four field goals.

Ole Miss, Hogs Renew Rivalry At Sugar Bowl

By BEN THOMAS

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Mighty Mississippi and once-beaten Arkansas — no strangers to bowl games — meet in a post-season classic for the first time next Tuesday when they renew an old rivalry in the Sugar Bowl.

Under Johnny Vaught, the taciturn Texan who molded Mississippi into a national power, the Rebels will be making their sixth consecutive bowl appearance—of which Ole Miss has won five.

Frank Broyles, who graduated from Georgia Tech in 1947, the year that Vaught became head coach at Ole Miss, has taken his Razorbacks to post-season games for the past four years.

But the red-haired, 39-year-old Broyles has only been victorious in one post-season game, his inaugural in the 1960 Gator Bowl, when the Porkers beat their coach's alma mater 14-7.

Broyles has yet to defeat the 52-year-old Vaught. The two clubs ended their regular season rivalry in 1961 with Ole Miss owning five straight triumphs over Broyles-coached teams.

The Razorbacks have done their post-Christmas training on the nearby Mississippi Gulf Coast, where Alabama drilled last year before beating Arkansas 10-3 in the 1962 Sugar Bowl.

"We hope the tradition can hold up for us," Broyles said. "But we'll again be facing the No. 1 defensive club in the nation. Last year, Alabama led the nation in defense. This year, Ole Miss is the top defensive team."

Vaught is leary about training on the Gulf Coast. The last time he took the Rebels there for post-Christmas workouts, Navy shellacked Old Miss 39-7 in the 1955 Sugar Bowl. Since then he has preferred to stay at the Oxford campus as long as possible.

Broyles says he porkers "have got to hustle. Ole Miss outweighs us about 15 pounds per man. In fact, nobody except Green Bay of the National Football League is bigger than those Rebels."

The game shapes up as a duel between two flashy quarterbacks Ole Miss' talented Glynn Griffing and Billy Moore, Arkansas' exponent of the roll-out option play.

Moore, a slight, 178-pound, 5-foot-10 Little Rock product, and fullback Danny Brabham, a 6-4, 211-pounder from Greensberg, La., made the Razorback's belly-wing work.

Moore had the best passing accuracy in the Southwest Conference while Brabham, converted to fullback—his old high school position—this year from the line, was the SWC's leading rusher.

Incidentally, Brabham will be playing in a stadium where he once was slated to perform regularly. He was signed from high school to a grant-in-aid by Tulane, but due to an academic deficiency in his high school credits shifted to Arkansas before attending his first class. Brabham is a straight-A student at Arkansas.

The sugar Bowl Stadium, which will be filled to capacity with 83,000 persons for the nationally-televised game (NBC, 1 p.m. CST) is Tulane Stadium 364 days a year.

Brabham was a first round draft choice of the American Football League. Picked by Houston Brabham was also draft in an early round by the rival NFL's St. Louis Cardinals.

While neither Arkansas nor Ole Miss feature an All-America on their rosters, both Moore and Griffing landed on The Associated Press' second team All-America.

The 6-1 200-pound Griffing led Ole Miss to its victory over Louisiana State this season and the Southeastern Conference crown. It was the first time since 1957 that Ole Miss had been able to defeat the powerful Tigers from Baton Rouge.

No slouch as a runner, Griffing is called by Broyles as the best passer in college ranks. Heralded last season as one of the two best pro quarterback prospects, the New York football Giants picked Griffing as a future choice in 1961.

Spearheading the stingy Ole Miss defense is 270-pound tackle Jim Dunaway, a baby-faced, 21-year-old giant who was a first round pick in both the NFL and AFL drafts.

Vaught's third-ranked Rebels, who gained their first unblemished regular season in the university's history, wound up as the No. 3 team in the final AP rankings. Arkansas, which lost only to Texas in its 10-game schedule, was rated sixth.

Vaught and Broyles, who have been close friends since their days as assistant coaches at Georgia Tech, will anchor the Yankee wall. Jordan, tackle Jim Dunaway of unbeaten Ole Miss and Georgia Tech's Jim Guthrie will fit into the Southern line.

Reb quarterbacks Glynn Griffing of Mississippi, and Virginia's Gary Cuozzo will do the signal calling chores. From above the Mason-Dixon line to do the job for the North come Jerry Gross of Detroit and Pat McCarthy of Holy Cross.

Senior Bowl Stars Begin Warming Up

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Senior Bowl players started arriving into Mobile Saturday to begin warming up for the 14th annual All Star game that pits North against South.

Fifty of the top collegiate stars of 1962, coaches and scouts from every professional football team in the country and Canada will be here by Saturday for the nationally televised game.

Head coaches of both teams—Baltimore Colts' Weeb Ewbank and Dallas Cowboys' Tom Landry—have predicted one of the closest games in the Bowl's history.

Ewbank, heading the Southerners, said the teams are "the two most evenly matched squads in the history of the game. I also believe the caliber of the players is the best ever."

The South won last year 42-7.

Spearheading the Rebel defense is 6-foot-2 215-pound Lee Roy Jordan of Alabama All American.

Michigan State's two big tackles, Ed Budde and Jim Kanichi, and Ohio State's Daryl Sanders will anchor the Yankee wall. Jordan, tackle Jim Dunaway of unbeaten Ole Miss and Georgia Tech's Jim Guthrie will fit into the Southern line.

LSU 11 Relaxes For Cotton Bowl

DALLAS (AP) — It was a time for relaxing for the Tigers of Louisiana State Saturday.

BACKS OF Louisiana State University's Go Team run through light drills to sharpen up their running attack they will use New Year's Day in the Cotton Bowl game against Texas University. DEDICATED FOOTBALLER

Jerry Stovall Finishes Career As LSU Bengal

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — All-America Jerry Stovall, a tall, wiry man dedicated to football and his coach, runs, kicks, blocks and tackles for the last time as a collegian Tuesday when he leads Louisiana State against Texas in the Cotton Bowl.

The 197-pounder, whose gridiron career won't be over although it will be turned to play-for-pay in the future, couldn't have picked a tougher outfit to close out against.

Darrell Royal's finest defensive team, headed by demon linebackers Pat Culpepper and All-America Johnny Treadwell, stand in the way of Stovall in his desire to wind up with a victory for coach Charlie McClendon.

"We seniors decided we would win this one for the coach," said Stovall. "There are 18 seniors on this squad and we all want to leave something to be remembered by."

A determined man is the future dentist who has the knack, according to McClendon, of coming up with the big play in every game.

Drafted by St. Louis of the National Football League and the New York Titans of the American Football League, Stovall says he plans to play with one of them but it isn't the money that will govern his actions. "I'm going to be a dentist anyway," he said.

Texas doesn't have a player boasting a record to compare with the versatile star of the Tigers, but Texas does have more overall backfield strength. Fullback Ray Poage has gained more yards rushing than Stovall. So has halfback Tommy Ford and the other halfback, Jerry Cook, is only yards back.

Lynn Amedee, the LSU quarterback, bests Johnny Genung, the Texas field general, in passing but only because he has thrown more. Tommy Wade is well ahead of the second top LSU passer, Jimmy Field.

But nobody is quite as good as Stovall when everything is considered. He's even the star of the glittering Louisiana State defense that hasn't allowed a touchdown via rushing in 16 games.

The teams have outstanding records. Texas has a 19-1-1 mark in two years. Louisiana State is 18-2-1. Texas has lost only one game in the last 26.

LSU's defense has given up only 206.2 grudging yards per game. Texas has allowed just Offensively, Texas is slightly ahead but it's only 18.1 yards per game. Stovall can make that up with just one of his twisting runs.

The teams appear nearer equal in strength than any other two ever to be matched in the Cotton Bowl.

There will be 75,504 in the stands and the nation can see the game on television, CBS. The kickoff is at 1:45 p.m., CST.

ROSE BOWL

Rags-To-Riches Set To Struggle

By BOB MYERS

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)— The "rags-to-riches" football teams of Wisconsin and Southern California were as ready Saturday as they can be for their Rose Bowl struggle.

There was a drill, and there will be a final one Sunday. Then both go into seclusion on the eve of the New Year's Day contest. Southern Cal, the unbeaten, untied National Collegiate champion, and the Badgers, top machine in the Big Ten Conference, escaped major casualties in the final practices on the Rose Bowl scene.

Wisconsin may well have been handicapped with the loss of two players who couldn't even make the trip because of injuries. They were both guards, Jon Hohman, and Dion Kempthorne, and good ones.

Coach Milt Bruhn shifted Mike Goss into the left guard position. It would appear this spot could be vulnerable, but Bruhn, who could be whistling in the dark, insists Goss will fill the needs.

Athletic Director Jess Hill of Southern California was the man who applied the "rags-to-riches" title on the rivals.

Neither team was expected to shine in the regular college grid season.

Yet here they are in the Rose Bowl and rated the one-two teams in the nation, the Trojans with a perfect 10-game slate, Wisconsin 8-1. The Badgers' lone loss was to Ohio State.

Woody Hayes had the Buckeyes fired up for that one—and we have not beaten them at Columbus in 44 years," Bruhn said.

"But we never thought we'd go anywhere this year," he continued. "We have a lot of sophomores. We figured we were a team for the fugure, such as next season.

"But the wonderful development of our quarterback (Ron Vander Kelen) and the come-through performance of some of our sophomores made the difference."

McKay and the Trojans were regarded a little higher in preseason estimates. In their conference, the Athletic Association of Western Universities, or Big Six, Southern Cal and Washington were expected to fight it out for the Rose Bowl honor.

The Trojans won out, and then rolled on into national prominence and the No. 1 spot at the conclusion of the regular season.

Each team has a motive for victory beyond the usual desire. The Trojans have a Rose Bowl record of 9-3-0. In their last appearance they lost to Ohio State 20-7 in 1955.

This will be Wisconsin's third trip to the Pasadena bowl. They have yet to win, and with Minnesota, are the only losers from the Big Ten since the Coast-Midwest pact went into effect in 1947.

Lakers In Win Over Syracuse; Three Lead Way

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—Paced by Elgin Baylor, Jerry West and Jim Krebs, the Los Angeles Lakers scored an easy 132-123 National Basketball Association victory over the Syracuse Nat Saturday night.

Baylor led the scorers with 32 points, West added 30 and Krebs contributed 26 to the three-pronged attack.

Getting off to a quick start, the Lakers jumped to a 12-1 lead in the first minutes of the game. Krebs exploded for 18 points in the quarter, hitting on nine of 11 shot. A fine Laker defense forced the Nat into making many mistakes and by the end of the first period, the Lakers led by 19 points. At halftime they were out front, 71-50. Only in the fourth quarter were the Nats able to put together any scoring threat, pulling to within 10 points, 110-100, on a three-point play by Dolph Schayes.

But a foul shot and a basket by Frank Selvy and two baskets by West put it out of reach of the Nats.

Longhorns Hold Final Full Drill

AUSTIN (AP)—The University of Texas Longhorns held their last full workout Saturday before meeting Louisiana State University Tuesday in the Cotton Bowl.

The Southwest Conference champions appeared on the drill field in full dress but the only contact work came during live drills on protection for punts and extra point placements.

A bright sun greeted the squad Saturday in comparison to Friday's drill on a soggy field. Coach Darrell Royal said Saturday actually was the last real practice before the bowl date.

The team leaves by plane at 1 p.m. Sunday for Dallas. There will be a light limbering up exercise in the Southern Methodist University Stadium and a similar muscle stretching session Monday afternoon.

COMIN' UP AFIELD

States Adopt Safe Colors

With Sam Hanna

Use Blaze-Orange

Late in the afternoon when the woods get so quiet you can hear the birds walking through the leaves, deer begin to move. Often it's hard to tell between a deer and a man outlined against the trees.

This is the time of afternoon when the hunter's chances are best for killing a buck. It's also the best time to make a fatal mistake and shoot a man.

The same rule applies to the early mornings when the sun is catching a last-minute snooze.

Or substitute the time of day for the thickness of the woods and again you have conditions best suited for the careless hunter with a deadly weapon in his hands.

Or let a target, such as a deer, get between two hunters and sometimes it happens — like it did Friday in Tensas Parish when a buck got between two men.

For these reasons, some states encourage hunters to wear "daylight fluorescent" colors for safety purposes. At least one state, the State of Massachusetts, has a law that reads:

"Whoever, during that part of the open season on deer in which shotguns are legal for hunting deer, hunts or enters the woodlands for the purpose of hunting must wear in a conspicuous manner on his chest and back, or on his head, chest and back, a minimum of two - hundred square inches of clothing or material of a daylight fluorescent red or orange color."

In Louisiana, most deer hunters wear red, thinking of course that red stands out in the woods and therefore should be easily seen by another hunter. Colors mean little to deer.

But optical experts and the U. S. Navy, according to the Massachusetts Division of Fisheries and Game, have both proved that red is one of the poorest colors for visibility in poor light such as hunters often hunt in.

They also proved that yellow can easily be mistaken for white and this is important because the Louisiana deer hunter is often looking at the white end of a whitetail deer.

Both Navy and Air Force tests settled on fluorescent blaze-orange as the best color to mark aircraft, survival equipment and so forth. Blaze - orange is the color seen on many Air Force planes.

The Information and Education Division of the Massachusetts Division of Fisheries and Game worked with the American Optical Company and the U. S. Army at Ft. Devens in extensive tests regarding various fluorescent and non-fluorescent colors.

They concluded that blaze-orange was the best since it was most easily seen.

This test and its results have been endorsed and final reports published by both the National Safety Council and the American Optometric Association.

Daylight fluorescent orange is the easiest color to see and recognize. It draws attention. We've seen a few hunters with it on and they stood out plainer than anybody else in the woods.

Of course the wearing of daylight orange would be best for deer hunters, but it also would be a good thing for quail hunters and rabbit hunters who are often separated by thickets and briars.

We will agree that hunting is safe, as long as safe hunters are involved. We will agree that the accident rate is low in hunting.

But we also believe that the loss of one life by hunting is too much.

For this reason the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission should conduct a study of the use of daylight orange and submit its report to the Legislature recommending that a law be passed requiring deer hunters to don daylight orange.

We must cope with the rising number of deer hunters and the increasing danger of a wonderful sport afield.

Arkansas Deer Kill

Arkansas deer hunters are wrapping up the last of their seasons this weekend. The season closes Monday.

But if the December season is anything like the November season in Arkansas, the total kill should be something to behold, because:

The Arkansas Game and Fish Commission announced this week that 15,595 deer were killed during the November 12-17 hunting period. Of these, 3,183 were does.

Ashley County, our neighbor to the north, led the state, as it usually does, with 1,306 deer killed — 807 bucks and 499 does.

Arkansas, you know, has a huge hunting area in the White River Refuge, which produced a total harvest of 1,533 bucks and 1,867 does—a total of 3,400.

That alone probably equals Louisiana's total so far.

Ashley, 1,306 (499); Chicot, 996 (547); Drew, 953 (250); Union, 805 (240); Monroe, 799 (407); Desha, 721 (468); Arkansas, 714 (324); Lincoln, 528 (208); Ouachita, 426 (no does); and Dallas, 393 (no does.

Little Man's Corner

The weather, miserable as it's been, separated the men from the boys afield where the little men made news.

Mr. Sawyer, who has a place on Sawyer Ditch, near the Russell Sage Wildlife Management Area killed a big 8-point buck out there Wednesday morning.

Area supervisor Jack Rushing says the Lafourche area has a lot of big bucks, but so far most of the local deer hunters have driven on past to greener pastures in Madison and Tensas.

From Bastrop, John Blanchard and Raymond McDuff had a successful quail hunt recently in the Epps area, but of course that takes in a lot of country.

And in the Lake Providence area, the No. 1 bear hunter, Red Gilbert, has been out after them, but hadn't had any luck by Friday afternoon.

While most sportsmen were directing their attention to hunting, J. W. Thornton and Willie Reems of Winnsboro landed 25 bass weighing a total of 85 pounds in Cow Lake in Franklin Parish. They fished with the H&H baits. And the largest bass weighed 6½-pounds.

Willie and Herbert Zeagler also caught 26 bass in the same Cow Lake.

On the duck hunting side, the season closed on Christmas Eve, but before it did Gordon Surguine and his party got in some good shooting. Harry Cooper had a good last day in Wham Brake.

And Steve Henry, our guest columnist occasionally, and his collegiate crowd have had several successful duck hunts.

Now for the big story, which is true. Charles Schnieder of Monroe, hunting with three other local sports, killed a white-wing dove about one mile north of Collinston.

Charles was hunting with Dan Hall, who said he had seen several white-wing doves in the Collinston area. The white-wing dove is a Western bird that is a shade larger than our dove and has bigger feet and a bigger beak.

Biologist Cliff Williams says the white - wing dove shows up quite often in South Louisiana but rarely in North Louisiana. Charles and Dan were hunting with Buddy Newman and Guy Smith.

OHIO FAVORED

Sun Bowl Contest Is Slated Monday

By JIM IRWIN

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — It will be wide-open Western style explosiveness against the Midwestern pound-'em-in-the-head game when West Texas State meets Ohio University in the 28th annual Sun Bowl football game Monday.

The Ohio Bobcats were given a slight edge by El Paso observers who saw West Texas pulverize Texas Western, the local collegiate group 49-0 this season.

The West Texas Buffaloes are the more colorful of the two quads, featuring two of the nation's more powerful runners in Pistol Pete Pedro, the sixth best major college rusher this season, and Jerry Logan, the leading collegiate scorer.

Ohio, on the other hand, has five backs who gained more than 500 yards during the season and averaged 4 yards a whack doing

West Texas State's explosive offense struck to the ground, scoring 33 of its 42 touchdowns via the land route and finished fifth in the nation in rushing offense.

Pedro, the Lynn, Mass., 160-pound junior halfback, scooted for 831 yards on 134 carries and scored eight touchdowns—far off his production of last season when he was the nation's No. 2 scorer.

Pedro's No. 1 playmate is left halfback Jerry Logan, who led the nation in scoring with 110 points on 13 touchdowns, 28 conversions and two two-pointers.

And there are others beside Pedro and Logan. There's fullback Ollie Ross, who gained 240 yards from scrimmage and didn't lose a yard all season and second string fullback Russ Mundy, who carried for 474 yards and only lost 2 yards.

Auburn Defeats Houston In Overtime For Crown

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Layton Johns, Auburn's 6-foot-7 all-Southeastern Conference center, scored two layups in overtime Saturday night to give the undefeated Tigers a 71-69 victory over Houston for the Sugar Bowl basketball championship.

Auburn's victory overcame a brilliant all-around performance by Houston's 6-foot-7 center Lyle Harger, who scored 24 points and was a tower of strength off both backboards.

The Cougars, who knocked off defending champion Mississippi State Friday night, jumped to a 41-34 halftime lead. But Auburn, paced by the jump shooting of Larry Cart, narrowed the gap and took a 64-61 lead with 47 seconds to play.

But two layups by Harger, sandwiched around a foul shot by Cart, tied the score at 65-65 at the end of regulation time. Houston won the overtime tap, but Johns tied up Harger and Auburn controlled the next jump, leading to Johns' tie-breaking basket with 3:12 to go.

Huarger and Cart tied for high point honors with 24 points apiece. Johns scored 16 and John Blackwell 14 for Auburn.

The victory was Auburn's eighth straight of the season, while Houston dropped its fourth game of 11.

Earlier, all-SEC stars Leland Mitchell and W. D. (Red) Stroud led Mississippi State to a 75-66 victory over Xavier of Ohio for third place.

Cart, Stroud, Harger, Johns, and Mitchell were named to the all-tournament team by sports writer Mitchell, who scored only 12 points in Mississippi State's 79-66 loss to Houston Friday night, led both teams in the opener with 20 points, 13 in the first half when he made 6 of 8 field goals. Stroud scored 19 for a 2-game total of 42.

After the score see-sawed in the opening minutes, Mississippi State went ahead 9 - 8 on a foul shot by Joe Dan Gold with 16:40 to play in the half and led the rest of the way. At intermission, the Maroons led 40-32.

In the second half, State's lead never fell below 4 points, despite the fine outside shotting of Xavier's Tom Freppon who scored 18 points, 14 in the second half.

Fourth Ranked Illinois Takes Holliday Festival

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP) — Fourth-ranked Illinois outscored West Virginia 25-5 in the final 6 minutes to overcome a 69-67 deficit and went on to defeat the Mountaineers 92-74, capturing the Holiday Festival Basketball Tournament championship Saturday night.

A crowd of 12,125 at Madison Square Garden saw the undefeated Illini register their eight triumph—the third in this tournament—with a spirited second half rally after trailing throughout most of the first 20 minutes.

The stubborn Mountaineers of West Virginia, led by All-America candidate Rod Thorn, stayed even with the Illini until the final 6 minutes when they simply ran out of firepower against their taller and more rugged Big Ten opponents.

The game was deadlocked 15 times—13 in the second half—as the teams matched basket for basket most of the way.

Bill Small, a 6-foot-2 senior, sparked the Illini comeback, scoring 19 of his 25 points in the second half. Eleven came in succession with Small sinking all his five shots and tying the score after West Virginia had moved ahead by two points each time.

Despite Small's spectacular performance, the tourney's most valuable player award went to Barry Kramer, the NYU junior who scored 91 points in three games.

NYU finished third, defeating St. Bonaventure 91-80 in the second game of the tripleheader. Penn nipped Boston College 71-69 for fifth place on a pair of foul shots by Dave Robinson with 4 seconds remaining.

Small's 25 points led the Illini scorers against West Virginia as all five Illinois starters scored in double figures. Starnes had 16 and Dave Downey and Bill Burwell 15 each. Tal Brody, the playmaker, had 14. High man for West Virginia, which now is 6-3, was Thorn with 21.

Steve Jordan and Kramer collected 56 points between them as NYU took third place with its sixth victory in eight games. Jordan collected 30 and Kramer 26 before fouling out with 7 minutes remaining. His 91 points was well off the tournament record of 122 set by Cincinnati's Oscar Robertson in 1959.

The Violets snapped an early 9-9 tie, forged into a 35-19 lead and were never headed although St. Bonaventure manged to cut the bulge to 78-71 with 4 minutes remaining.

Miles Aiken of the Bonnies led the scorers with 33 points, although he missed six of nine foul shots. He scored 24 of the Bonnies 37 points in the first half. Teammate Fred Crawford, who was sidelined last year with tuberculosis, was forced out of action in the second half with a hand injury.

Robinson was the high man for the Quakers, who came from behind to win their seventh game in eight starts by beating Boston College. They trailed early 21-11, narrowed the Eagles' lead to 29-27 at halftime and took the lead for the first time midway in the second half, 42-40 on a basket by Robinson.

The Eagles, paced by Gerry Ward, fought back to tie it at 69-69 with 23 seconds remaining on a steal and basket by Dick Capp. But Campp fouled Robinson a few seconds later and the Penn standout sank the winning points Ward led all scorers with 27 points.

RACING ROUNDUP

Kingomine Tops Stakes' Entries

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP)—Kingomine won the $68,625 California Breeders' Champion Stakes and Native Diver raced to an easy triumph in the $29,300 Malibu Stakes in a racing double-header at Santa Anita Park Saturday.

A crowd estimated at 45,500 watched jockey Willie Shoemaker pilot Kingomine to a hard-won triumph over a field of 16 California 2-year-olds for his fourth win of the afternoon.

Shoemaker went on to win five races, the fifth time he has hit this figure riding at Santa Anita. He won on Shoo-Me in the second race for a $4.80 payoff, on Luck O'Lea in the third for $9.00, on MacDan in the fourth for $12.00, his victory in the seventh, then wound up the day on Sir Leveller in the eighth to pay $6.60.

Switchback, coupled as an entry with Kingomine, came with a rush to take second place. Royal Grounded was third.

The time for the 7 furlongs was 1 minute 23 3-5 seconds.

Kingomine is owned by Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Leavitt and Switchback is owned by th Sky Blue Stable. Both horses are trained by C. B. Leavitt.

Kingomine wore down Royal Grounded in the rush to the wire and Switchback got up to beat out Royal Grounded.

The entry paid $3.80, $4.20 and $3.00 and Royal Grounded returned $5.60 for the show.

The winner's purse was $46,125.

The Malibu Stakes was no contest. Veteran jockey Ralph Neves turned Native Diver loose and he ran off and hid from 12 other year-olds, winning by 6½ lengths.

En route to his fifth stakes victory, the California colt got out of the gate first and had built up a lead of five lengths at the far turn of the 7 furlong race.

Native Diver is owned by Mr. and Mrs. L. K. Shapiro. Two of Native Diver's stakes victories were cored at Hollywood Park last summer and two recent ones at Bay Meadows. Saturday's victory was worth $18,050.

Emil Dolce's Grid Iron Hero was second and the A. B. C. Stable's Humoso was third.

The odds-to, favorite, Native Diver returned $3.40, $2.60 and $2.60. Grid Iron Hero, with Manuel Ycaza aboard, paid $3.20 and $3.00 and Humoso, ridden by Pete Moreno, paid $9.40.

The time was 1:21 3-5, the third fastest in the annuals of the race. The fastest and still a track record of 1:20 3-5, was set in 1954 by Imbros, the sire of the Diver.

Fashion Field Hints At Drop In Hemlines

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Hints that hemlines are in for a drop in 1963 pervade the fashion industry.

But don't rush into letting out seams. Based on the bulk of spring and summer 1963 shows from New York designers, the hemline for a while at least promises to remain at kneecap height where it has been for several seasons.

But the hints are there. The Burke-Amey spring collection for instance, dropped skirts to calf length, one of the most drastic hand-downs New York fashion has seen in several years.

Last June, James Galanos of California paraded hemlines down an inch from his previous collection. Simonetta and Fabiani, in their Paris shows last July, both showed lengthening skirts.

"Dames no longer want to look like juvenile delinquents with knee-high skirts and beefed-up hairdos," said Riley. He foresees "longer skirts in the mood of the alluring Vionnets named for one of Paris' most famous designers of the 30's . . . not the Dior 1947."

Fashion otherwise offers a smorgasbord of ideas, with the emphasis on easy-fitting clothes, softness from bias cut, and more variations of the pullover than you'll find in a locker room. Also still very much around is the heightened waistline.

Coats come both slender and full, but the slender silhouette is the leader for spring.

AT HOME COSTUME

Trim, wool tapers — for at home entertaining come in the most luscious pastel wools and silks. Top them with an overblouse in gay, geometric print a brush stroke silk shirt or a linen pop-on.

Newellton Church Scene Of Jenkins-Crane Vows

Miss Gloria Ann Crane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Talmadge A. Crane of Newellton, became the bride of Charles Davis Jenkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Audrey L. Jenkins of Crowley, on Sunday, December 23. Rev. A. D. Foster performed the double ring ceremony at 4 p.m. in the Newellton First Baptist Church.

An arch entwined with greenery, flanked by candelabra holding lighted candles, palm trees and baskets of gladioli formed a setting for the exchange of vows. Candles were lighted by Kirk Crane and Mike McDonald, following a program of nuptial music by Mrs. W. B. Netterville, organist, and Larry Long, who sang "Whither Thou Goest," "O Perfect Love," and "Wedding Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown of white peau de soie, featuring a Sabrina neckline with insert of Chantilly lace embroidered with seed pearls. Fashioned on princess lines the skirt extended into a chapel train, also embellished with the lace motifs. Her veil of illusion was held in place by a large peau de soie rosette, encrusted with seed pearls, and her bouquet consisted of a white orchid, surrounded by stephanotis and satin streamers, atop a white Bible.

Miss Margaret Melville, maid of honor, wore a gown of scarlet peau de soie, fashioned with scoop neckline and circle skirt. Her headdress was a matching peau de soie bow with tulle veil and she carried a white muff adorned with a cascade of red carnations. Dressed identically to the honor attendant were the bridesmaids, Mrs. John F. Armstrong, Mrs. Patrick Williams, Miss Johanna Hulls and Miss Patricia Isbell. The junior bridesmaid, Miss Jackie McDonald and flower girl, Debbie Cook, wore dresses of scarlet peau de soie, styled similarly to the bridesmaids.

Howell Lane Cheatham III served as best man and groomsmen were H. M. Dartlone, Charles Simmons, Kurt Satter and Dallas Baucum. Junior groomsmen was Morris Rucker and ushers were Dale Crane, Keith Crane and Ken McDonald with Mark Melville acting as ring bearer.

Mrs. Crane chose for her daughter's wedding a gown of Nile green lace over taffeta with matching shoes and small flower hat. The bridegroom's mother wore a white brocade ensemble with matching accessories. Both mothers wore corsages of white cymbidium orchids.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the American Legión Hall, where baskets of gladioli formed a background and an arrangement of white carnations graced the mantel. The bride's table was centered with white carnations in a silver container, flanked by white candles in silver candelabra. Ivy encircled the punch bowl and the tiered wedding cake at opposite ends of the table. Mrs. S. S. DeWitt and Mrs. Clyde Ratcliff Jr. served the cake and Mrs. Glenn Ramsey and Mrs. Mark Taylor presided at the punch bowl.

Mrs. John Harvill presided at the table which held the bride's book with a memory candle, encircled by white carnations and stephanotis. Tea girls were Misses Amelia Hill, Elizabeth Hennigan, Glenda Cook, Bettye Wallace, Sue Cook and Kay McDonald.

For a wedding trip the bride changed into a gray ensemble with hat of white ostrich feathers, black lizard shoes and bag and the orchid from her bouquet. Mrs. Jenkins graduated from Newellton high school, Northwestern State College and is presently teaching mathematics at Vinton high school. Mr. Jenkins graduated from Delhi high school, Hinds Junior College and will graduate in January from Louisiana Polytechnic Institute. Rear View Counts Most In French Fashion Now

By IRENE FERRIS

PARIS — (WNS) — When a man takes a well-dressed Parisienne to dinner this season, he gets the check but the fellow at the table behind gets the view.

French fashion interest is currently focused on the back. Hairdos are plain in front but prettily bepeweyed in back. Decollete gowns do some deep plunging—but in the rear only.

Necklaces are worn down the back instead of the front. They help to fill in the deeply dipping back necklines.

Couturier coats open in back. Belts buckle or tie in the rear. Blouses, dresses and suits are preferred buttoned down the back, although they can seldom be buttoned by wearers who are not contortionists or yoga experts.

The chic Frenchwoman now chooses her hat for the way it looks from behind, and always pins her best jewel just below her left shoulder blade — if she can.

Since a girl has to be as pretty going as coming, the famous French "walk avec hip wiggle" is now more important than ever.

At the theater, Paris ladies are certain to wear their very best back-view fashions. Some smart men-about-town are threatening to buy seats one behind the other, instead of side by side.

Several husbands among the young-marrieds have showed up at cocktail parties with one or more fingers in a sling, supposedly due to back - buttoning service beyond the call of duty.

Single girls, unable to button themselves up the back, have been known to call on bachelors across the hall for aid. This has occasionally led to such un-French behavior as calling each other by first names.

On a dressy Friday night at Maxim's, as many as 22 per cent of the women now back into the restaurant as they enter, often pretending to be talking to the doorman or waving to a stranger outside.

Backing out of cabs and cars is allowed, but backing across the street to put your best foot forward has been described as dangerous by Paris traffic officials.

The new bathing suits being designed for starlets to sport at St. Tropez next season are bateau-necked in front, but submarine-necked in back, and some are for long-slung spines only.

It is predicted that an unprecendented number of male bathers will drown from inattentiveness.

Women's Wiles Get Cash From Friend Hubby

PALMA DE MAJORCA, Spain — "When is the best time to ask hubby for money for a new dress or hat?" asked a questionnaire distributed to international visitors by couturieres Madeleine and Rina. The replies:

"When he's late for an appointment and hasn't time to argue," reported Christine Heisenberg of Frankfurt.

"When we're with friends," confessed Gerda Retvig of Copenhagen. "He doesn't want others to think he's a tightwad."

"After he's read his newspaper and discovered that his stocks are up," declared Alice Lloyd of Boston.

During Christmas, out of town guests and our visiting college students are inspiration for a number of social affairs which fill the calendar. On Thursday morning, local alumnae of KAPPA DELTA sorority were hostesses at a coffee honoring new pledges home from school.

The affair was held in the home of SARAH RHYMES on Myrtle Street, which with its green decor lent itself to decoration in the sorority colors of green and white. A small white Christmas tree with tiny lights stood on a table in the living room, and white ornaments were used with gilded foliage on the mantel. In the dining room, white roses, sorority flower, were used with white coral and silvered foliage in the centerpiece and on the buffet.

New Kappa Delta pledges from Monroe are KAY THOMPSON, JUDY COBB, LINDA CROW, MOLLY SHELTON, and JANET PERKINS, from Louisiana State University; CAROLE PARKER at Southwestern Louisiana; and LAURA ALLEN, MIMI LANDRY, and MIGNON SCOGIN at Louisiana Tech.

Receiving with the honorees were MARTHA KIPER, alumnae president; BETTY FARR, vice-president; and Sara Rhymes. About fifty Kappa Deltas called between ten-thirty and twelve, including some from out of town. From Oak Grove were GAYLE WEEMS and MARTHA ANNA LIPP, active members of Alpha Chi chapter at Tech; MARY EVA WOMACK, LSU active; and alumnae KATE M'INTOSH.

Last Thursday night, DOTTIE AMMAN entertained with open house for members of her graduating class and their dates. Dottie, home from Hollins college, Roanoke, Virginia, for the holidays, had as her special guest MARY TERRELL of Shreveport. Mary, who is president of Rollins' freshman class, is the daughter of JOHNNY TERRELL, a former Monroyan. She wore for the party a sleeveless silk print in shades of red and orange, with bell skirt. Dottie's dress was of black wool, styled in the new A-line and caught with a large rhinestone clip.

Colors of green and gold keynoted holiday decorations in the Amman home for the party. A garland of gilded cones and balls, centered with a green velvet bow framed the mantel. Gold candles, graduated in size, and nestled in gilded magnolia foliage, stood before the pier mirror. On a side table was a small gilded tree covered with tiny green velvet bows.

In the dining room, white ice roses encircled with gold balls decorated the dining table. Punch was served from the silver bowl at one end, and eggnog from the cut glass bowl at the other. About sixty guests attended the party.

An open house at the home of LUCILLE TURPIN last Friday evening honored OWEN JOHNSON, home from Washington for Christmas with his parents, the U. U. JOHNSONS. The garden room, always the hospitable heart of this house, was particularly festive with a large tree hung with red and blue decorations. Cheery poinsettias were banked in the fountain and repeated in the lava- o and other vantage points. Particularly delicious snacks were set out on several small tables in his room. Tiny hot fried pies, whole shrimp marinated with olives, little hot sausages, turkey, ham, clam dip, were all arousing delighted comment from the guests.

In the dining room, Laura Johnson presided at the silver coffee service at one end of the table. At the opposite side, assorted cheese dips were served in a silver lazy Susan. The centerpiece was of roses in a cupid epergne which stood in a ring of small lighted candles.

Visitors from Connecticut were honored when the BRIDGER HORNHILLS and ROBERT LAYTONS were hosts at a party at the Lotus club last Saturday evening. They were LEILA and STEVE STEPHENS of Greenwich: their children, LELIA BOYLE and JOCK M'LEAN of Old Greenwich; and the Laytons' children, CAROL and JOE PARSONS of Old Greenwich. Holiday red and green decorated the club for Saturday's party. Balsa, magnolia foliage, and poinsettias were used. On the green - covered library table, a branched candelabra with red tapers was flanked with twin wine coolers holding red carnations. Candles and holly decorated the mantel.

Swags of balsa with gilded sconces were used on each of the four sides of the large square pillar which centers the club's main lounge. On the desk was a small holly tree with red candles. Over a hundred guests called to greet the visitors. The Stephens plan to remain in Monroe through the winter season, while the McLeans and Parsons are to return home after the holidays.

LEILA EWING arrived Wednesday from Atlanta, Georgia, for a visit through today in her former hometown. On Thursday afternoon, ANN WESTROM and ANNE HOLMES invited Leila's old neighbors and bridge club for a sherry party. Christmas decorations were used throughout the Westrom home, where the party was held. Focal point in the living room was a white candle tree wreathed with holly. The dining room table was centered with camellias in an antique epergne.

One of Monroe's most delightful traditions, which becomes ever nicer, is open house at the home of JANE and JOHN SHERROUSE, JR., on Christmas day. Each year Jane introduces some new touch making this party one of the high points of the year. Arousing most comment this year was the tablecloth the hosts ordered while in Europe last Spring. A bright Christmas red, it featured a center medallion and deep hem of Brussels lace. Eggnog was served from the silver punch bowl at one end of the table, while silver coffee service stood opposite. Stunning asymmetrical arrangements of red roses were held by twin cupid epergnes.

In the living room, a lighted tree blinked over the mantel, and red roses filled a silver bowl on a side table. Garlands of fruit, pine, and wood roses framed the library fireplace. On the hearth, Christmas cards filled a three-tiered brass container. One wall of the garden room held a large wreath of Christmas greenery highlighted by the ribbons—red, blue, and purple — won by the Sherrouse daughters with their horses.

Beautiful, beautiful white flowers decorated the home of DOLL and HENRY BIEDENHARN, JR. for the party at which daughter JODY's engagement to BISH JOHNSTON was announced last Saturday night. White roses and white orchids were used in a trio of arrangements which centered the dining table. Ropes of smilax extending from the large silver container looped the smaller bouquets in matching silver compotes at each side. In the living room, a branched silver epergne held specimen white Empress camellias on the coffee table.

Word has come back home from New Orleans of the fabulous party given there by MARIE LOUISE and GEORGE SNELLINGS, honoring their debutante daughter NANCY and her friends HELEN GRACE and ANN WISDOM.

New Orleans Country club was decorated for the party with ropes of pine sprays and red apples swagged around doors and cornices. At vantage points were ceiling height pine trees with long stemmed red roses "blooming" in their branches. An arrangement of five dozen American Beauty roses stood on the mantel. On the serving table was a pyramid of pine and apples. Low coffee tables throughout the reception area were ornamented with horizontal arrangements of white chrysanthemums and stock.

Nancy wore for her party a ball gown of American Beauty satin, cut on Empire lines with two panels of the material falling to the floor from the back of the square neckline . . . Marie Louise was stunning in black velvet, beautifully fitted, and flared from the knee. She wore her hair pulled high and pinned with camellias . . . Several hundred guests danced to the music of Rene Louapere from ten until two.

Members of T.C. (The Club) and their dates were entertained at an informal dance at the home of ART SMITH last Saturday night. Seasonal decorations of gold were used in the living room where the Christmas tree stood. A gold sleigh and reindeer was placed on a side table, and gold tapers with magnolia foliage on the dining room table. In the den, where the group danced, pyracantha and Ponderosa pine cones decorated the refreshment table. Entertainment for twenty members of the high school set was provided by BILLY LEDBETTER and his Golden Guitar.

At this time of year, everyone is taking inventory. Consider this one compiled some time back by Dorothy Parker:

Four be the things I am wiser to know:
Idleness, sorrow, a friend and a foe.

Four be the things I'd been better without:
Love, curiosity, freckles, and doubt.

Three be the things I shall never attain:
Envy, content, and sufficient champagne.

Three be the things I shall have till I die:
Laughter and hope and a sock in the eye.

SCALLOPED CORN AND OYSTERS

This recipe makes a good luncheon dish: Thaw a can of frozen condensed oyster stew. Add a cup of cream - style corn and 2 tablespoons of melted butter. Crumble about 20 saltine crackers and arrange alternate layers of the crumbs and corn mixture. Dot with butter. Bake in a preheated oven at 400 degrees F. for 20 minutes. Serves 3 to 4.

Do-It-Yourselfers, Rebel!

Are you tired of people telling you How To Do It?

How to make Christmas ties from left - over yarn. (Who'd wear them?) Or how to "create a novel gift apron" from your husband's discarded shirt? (Just picture the face of the friend who received THAT present.

Hints on How to Keep Serene while your family is home for the holidays don't consider these variables: The ambidextrous housewife, while refereeing bouts between children, often has searing decisions to make. Such as, would it be sanitary to go ahead and serve the fruit cake that the cat has licked the top of? (Answer: Yes, if nobody saw her but you.)

Women, as usual, receive all the tips on personal grooming. The homemaker should stay dressed neatly while stuffing the turkey. But nobody tells you where to buy the garment that will withstand both cookie - cutting and child - cradling.

How to Look Human Before Breakfast articles urge you to jump out of bed FIRST, even if it is Christmas morning. Quickly remove those pin curls, and camouflage your face. Then try to act as gay as if you had not been up all night putting together that East - Does - It doll house.

(Have you even seen a column suggesting that the man of the house get out of bed first and shave? He'd never bother to read it, or To Do It.)

Father usually looks quite bleary - eyed at 5 a.m. on Christmas morning, when the children pounce on his midriff and shout: "NOW? Can we open the presents NOW?"

He nods feebly. After all, he was up until dawn, too, fitting the 187 pieces of that skyscraper together.

"Next year," he groans, "please pay the $1.98 more and get the — thing ALREADY assembled!"

And next year we just might. After all, if we were expected to spend our days — and nights — fitting intricate toys together we'd have been born with something more handy than 10 thumbs.

Women Drivers Need To Know Auto's Problems

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — You back the car out of the garage and see a puddle of greasy car stuff on the garage floor.

It's oil that wasn't there last night when you parked the car.

What should you do? Tell hubby about it when he returns from work? After all, the motor sounds fine. Why be alarmed.

An oil leak in a car isn't as harmless as a leaking faucet, or, didn't you know? Your car's motor can burn out when the oil supply seriously disturbed or depleted.

Replacing a motor ruined by neglect is costly, yet it happens on occasion. Paying the bill hurts. The trouble was preventable.

Maintenance of the car once was strictly man's work. But with 33 million females licensed to drive those four-wheeled extensions of the home, maintenance more and more is becoming woman's work.

Philip E. Robinson, executive vice president of the Association of Rayon Tire Cord Manufacturers (Tyrex Inc.) made these points in an interview about what every woman driver should know about proper maintenance of the family car.

Since late fall marks the beginning of generally dangerous driving conditions, Robinson advocates that the women drivers avail themselves of the preventative maintanance programs that are offered by auto clubs.

"If the driver of an automobile is sincerely concerned about the well-being of her passengers, she should know that certain parts of the car need periodic inspection—oil, battery, tires and water, for example," he said.

"It is wise that she simply know when this equipment should be checked and what the symptons of their ill-repair are."

Here are additional tips Robinson cited:

—Battery: Have distilled water levels checked when you buy gas. If the correct water levels are not maintained, the resulting acid may corrode your battery and render it useless. Have the battery's cable connections greased every four months.

MISS GLENDA JOYCE WARD'S engagement to Sp/4 A. J. Nolan of Fort Campbell, Kentucky, formerly of Farmerville, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Glyn Ward of Perryville. The future bridegroom is the son of Mrs. O'Leania Nolan of Farmerville and L. B. Nolan of Minden. The wedding will take place January 25 at 7 p.m. in Antioch Baptist Church of Farmerville.

Victorian Custom Is Revived

PARIS (WNS) —At top dinner parties in Paris this winter an old - fashioned custom, familiar to every reader of Victorian novels, has been making a strong comeback.

After dinner, the ladies have taken to "retiring," to use the language of that era. They stay away for a set interval, leaving the men along "over their port." Actually, very little port is imbibed. It's mainly brandy nowadays. But the principle is the same.

High - society hostesses after ignoring the tradition for many years, are again insisting on it.

"It makes for a logical break in the evening," the Duchess de la Rochefoucauld asserted. "And when the ladies return, their presence is that much more pleasing to the men. I think the people who envolved the custom knew very well what they were about."

The duchess and others admit some of the younger women object to the idea. They are afraid they are going to miss something. Then again, some women reject a certain inferiority implied in leaving the men to discuss "serious" matters.

"Of course," one hostess pointed out, "they don't discuss weighty matters at all. What they mainly talk about are women, though not necessarily those in whose company they have just been."

Separation of the sexes after dinner was a regularly observed custom in Paris until World War II. After the war it was dropped in the general tendency toward informality and sexual equality. Now, with the trend swinging back again — formal entertaining, for example, in definitely on the increase here — the old traditions are being revived.

The interval during which the female guests absent themselves varies. Most hostesses regard 30 minutes as the optimum period. But, in some foremost houses, it is as long as 45 minutes or an hour.

If the custom is revived in England or America, the ladies will have a traditional place to retire to: the withdrawing room. That's what it was called before the word was shortened to "drawing room."

REFRIGERATOR AMBROSIA

This dessert recipe is convenient to serve for company dinners as there's no last minute preparation. Combine 1 cup drained, crushed pineapple, 1½ cups sour cream, 1½ cups miniature marshmallows, 1 cup flaked coconut, 1 cup chopped walnuts or pecans, 2 cans (11 ounces) Mandarin oranges, drained, and 2 cups seedless grapes. Chill 8 hours in refrigerator. Serves 8.

Unique Uses Devised For Leftover Yule Junk

By IRENE FERRIS

GSTAAD, Switzerland — (WNS) — In the chalet land of Elizabeth Taylor, Audrey Hepburn, William Holden; Noel Coward and Karim Aga Khan, the year - end question is: what to do with leftover Christmas paraphernalia.

Josef Bachmann, major domo at the smart Saanen Daheim, is offering a choice of prizes for the most original solutions.

He has nominated these as the best suggestions to date:

Stale champagne: Leftover champagne in opened bottles makes a good facial astringent, and is splendid to have your hair set in. Also marvelous to bathe in or to water a terrace garden with. Flowers thrive on it, even when quite stale.

Last year's wrist watch: Use it as a novel collar for your Siamese cat. It is not only chic and original, but if you can't find your new watch you may get the time from the cat.

Mink stoles that are definitely out and show both your age and your ignorance: Cut in two, they make elegant coverings for two small sofa pillows and feel good to cuddle against. The mink can also be used as a lining for a pet's bed; it offers a touch of elegance.

Discarded wigs: Keep them in your sports car to use for cleaning off windshields or polishing fenders.

Long white kid gloves: If you lose one, give the other to your favorite man. It is most enchanting to see a man pull one out of his pocket to wipe his sun goggles with.

Over - supply of vodka: Serve it for breakfast as a rapid eye-opener. Croissants, coffee and vodka now make the most elegant breakfasts in Europe.

Antiques that clash with your new abstract paintings: Paint them in brilliant colors and use as conversation pieces in the rumpus room. If you have no rumpus room, they make the most amusing firewood for modern fireplaces.

Out - of - style jewelry: Give it to your husband, especially if it was a gift from a former boy friend. An old diamond necklace becomes fashionable again when it is worn by a man as a chatelaine between his breast pocket and his lapel buttonhole. To be worn only for evening, of course.

Spare closets: Covert to telephone booths so there is one for every teen - ager in the family. An effective way to get rid of your children for hours at a time. You may learn to enjoy the privacy yourself.

Last year's fiance: It is not kind just to drop him and leave him floundering. Instead, introduce him to last year's girl friend, push them into each other's arms, and stage a big jealously scene in public. He'll be so confused that he won't even ask for his gifts back.

Leftover caviar: Place it on yesterday's newspaper, roll it up carefully in the paper, and throw them both into the garbage pail. This is also a good way to get rid of yesterday's newspaper.

Yellow Tones Make Gay Accent For Blue Room

By BETTY PEPIS

Q: I always wanted a "blue room' and would appreciate your suggestions. Walls are papered in pale blue and rug is a royal blue. I am considering a three - piece sectional sofa covered in red naugaweave and a love seat in deep blue naugaweave. What color do you suggest for an overstuffed chair, a divanola and also draperies? Woodwork is blond birch.

A: It is my feeling that you may tire of so much red with blue and I would recommend a canary yellow instead. Cover the sectional in the blue and the loveseat in yellow. Chair, divanola and draperies in a print in pale blue with much yellow and white.

Q: Will you please tell me if I have goofed in decorating the living room of a small apartment? The colors seem to lack all interest. Walls are off-white with faint beige cast. Draperies are beige-on-beige stripe and carpet is light beige and cocoa tweed. Two Danish chairs are medium blue, a large club chair is in a print in lime, green, aquamarine and the throw pillows are blue. Have many green plants around. I can make some changes.

A: An emphatic color in the room would make it more appealing. For instance, change the blue on the Danish chairs and pillows to a rich lime green.

Q: Please help me. We are decorating our bedroom and I am making blue - turquoise draperies. Our furniture is blond. Since my husband likes blue I would like to use this color. What do you suggest for walls, bedspread, throw rugs and a Hollywood day bed and lamps?

A: Have walls in pale blue of the curtains, even paler perhaps. Have the top of the bedspreads the same as the draperies. Cover the day bed in a small scale print in pale blue ground with apple green, true blues and some white in the print and use this for pleated dust ruffles. Have apple green throw rugs and the lamp in Bristol blue.

Q: I need color suggestions for my new living room. The walls are a French beige, the draperies in a predominately melon print were expensive and I must keep them. What color for the sectional sofa, chair, an odd chair and the rug?

A: You may think this too monotone but I suggest shades of soft beige for the rug and sofa. The odd chair could be a citrus green or a check in melon, beige and citrus green. Pick up green in plants and small objects.

Adopted Child's Story Appears In Book Form

NEW YORK (UPI) — Boys and girls around age 10 sometimes yen to run away from home — or consider, at least, adopting a new set of parents.

A word of advice to the dissatisfied darlings:

Don't. It won't work. Even if you find a married couple who are what you might call "up for adoption."

This I got from Poppo himself — and he knows.

Poppo, if you haven't heard, is the impish, enchanting nine-year old Puerto Rican boy from the slums of New York who won his way into the hearts of a Brooklyn couple and "adopted" them.

His story has just got into a book and a national magazine and is now on the negotiating stage in Hollywood.

Poppo wasn't abused at home. His parents were divorced, but he adored his mother and the five other little children of his family.

The story of how he wandered into the comfortable home of Josef and Dottie Berger — "a beauty place," as he described it — of how his friendship with them grew for three years, and of how eventually he decided he wanted to be Josef Berger Junior," is told in the just published book, "Poppo" (Simon and Schuster).

"It's a love story and a true one," Joe Berger said in an interview. "With a child and a grandchild of our own, a long marriage and a full life, Dottie and I needed Poppo like a hole in the head.

"But we had fallen in love with this little boy, as I think anybody would have, and his affect for us was very real, very deep.

He had made up his mind to be 'adoptioned' by us, and we couldn't resist him."

It was one of those trial adoptions. If it worked, it was to be made a legal one. The Bergers went to Poppo's parents, Maria and Julio, and obtained their consent, in separate interviews.

"Mario and Julio each gave the same answer," Berger said. "That was — 'You can do more for him than we ever can.'"

So Poppo moved in with the Bergers. A new home, clothes, toys, a bed and room of his own, a whole new way of life in "the beauty place."

There was love, There were problems, deep troubles — all the things that happen between parent and child in the best of families.

"But there was the one other element that even the best in human beings couldn't overcome — divided love, divided loyalties, and one little boy torn apart between them," Berger said.

That's why it didn't work. And that is why, one day a year ago, Poppo told Joe — "I can't help it, Joe. I just got to go back."

Back to the slums, to the struggles that living "on welfare" mean to any child. But back to the tie that is stronger than any other in the life of human beings the yearning of a child for his mother.

"Much as Dottie and I love Poppo, that's what I call a happy ending," Berger said.

P.S. —The Bergers are now sort of "adoptioned" grandparents to Poppo. And the young man shares in the proceeds of the book in which he stars. The money's being placed in trust for his education.

Most Kissable Starlet Offers To Share Secret

ROME (WNS) — Starlet Rossanna Renzi, who was voted "the girl with the most kissable lips" by film workers at the Cinecitta studios, believes that the most kissable American man are Rock Hudson, Frank Sinatra and Fred Astaire.

"Each has his own attraction," she said. "Together, they almost have the appeal of Marcello Mastroianni, Alain Delon or Curt Jurgens."

1. Wear very little lipstick, and blot your make-up so that it doesn't get on the man you kiss.

2. Select your perfume with care, and use little. "Most men are charmed by light floral scents. Some blondes need heavy odors to give them pep."

3. Brush your teeth after every meal, gargle before each date, and drink lots of water to keep the breath fresh.

5. Limit your cigarettes unless your partner is a heavier smoker than you. Avoid hard alcoholic drinks.

6. Keep hair styles simple so that they do not frighten a man from touching them.

Compliments Work Two Ways For You

By JEANNE SAKOL

NEW YORK (WNS) — Everybody likes compliments! But few people know how to give or accept them with poise.

Receiving a compliment is the most difficult. A young man says to his date, "Boy, your hair looks nice tonight!" His eyes are full of love and admiration but what does she reply?

"Oh, my hair is awful! I washed it last night and went to sleep with it wet and half the rollers fell out and I nearly wore a paper bag over my head tonight."

Or, the young man might say, "I like your dress." To which she protests, "This old thing! The cleaners ruined it! My mother wouldn't let me buy a new one. I look awful!"

In both these situations, the girl may believe she is being modest by pooh-poohing the compliment paid to her. In fact, she is putting the boy on the spot by making him feel foolish in giving what is obviously an undeserved compliment.

By accepting a compliment graciously and with thanks, a person confirms the good opinion of the person giving it.

The difference between a compliment and blatant flattery is sincerity. A compliment is sincere; flattery isn't. You can tell your date you like his tie or that he has a beautiful speaking voice and he will be pleased at your admiration but if you tell him he's the most handsome thing you've ever seen, he's likely to feel you're making fun of him or taking him for a dope.

To express your affection and friendship — for members of both sexes — learn to be aware of noteworthy attributes. A friend gets top marks; congratulate him. A friend has adopted a becoming new hair style; tell her you think it suits her. A friend's essay is read aloud; take the time to say you enjoyed it.

Smooth, Cap-Like Hairdo Replaces Teased Mops

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mrs. John F. Kennedy's endorsement of a new, smooth and cap-like hairdo marks the end of an era in coiffures—the big head.

Kenneth Battelle, the hair stylist who arranged the First Lady's hair for that Washington television extravaganza in which she never looked more stunning, said the "inflated," the extravagantly bouffant hair styles have been on the wane for some time now.

The stylist, known in the trade as Mr. Kenneth, didn't want to predict that Mrs. Kennedy's smooth upsweep would start every woman in the country toward the beauty shop demanding a copy.

"I like to see each woman wearing what best suits her," said Kenneth. "I just don't believe in everyone copying the First Lady."

But even Kenneth, who urges women to be individualist in style, acknowledges that his best known client is one of the strongest influences in fashion today.

As any fashion observer can tell, let Mrs. Kennedy wear an easy-fitting overblouse dress and it becomes a national "ford" (best seller). Let her put a pillbox hat on the back of her head. . . and the whole millinery industry swings into pillbox production.

Let the First Lady wear a lace mantilla to church, and women by the thousands adopt the head covering. Her daytime hair style, casually puffed with a side sweep of bangs, became an institution.

Photographs of Mrs. Kennedy in that new evening hair style were featured in newspapers around the country after she and the President helped kick off a drive to raise $30 million for a National Cultural Center in Washington.

"Jackie's new look," read many of the picture captions.

Kenneth, who flew from New York to Washington to produce the style, said it was a smooth sweep of bangs across the forehead. The back was swept up from the neck, and puffed out at the back of the crown.

Did this mean a return also to upsweeps which had their heyday in the early 1940's?

"Maybe for evening," said Kenneth. "But I don't think it matters whether hair is up or down. What does matter is that the smaller head look is in. . . small,

SEW SIMPLE

By Eunice Farmer

"Dear Eunice Farmer,

"Several months ago you stated in your column that in making a coat, one should get a pattern one size smaller than the usual coat size. Am I correct, and if so, why?"

Mrs. H.L.

Dear Mrs. H. L.:

Coat and suit patterns are usually purchased in the same size as your dress patterns.

The exception to this rule would only apply to very exaggerated styles by foreign designers. If you don't care for the extreme fullness that is often used, you may find that a pattern one size smaller is better for you.

If you are using an expensive pattern and fabric and are undecided about the style of your pattern, it is more than worthwhile to make a sample in muslin. The extra time spent might make the difference between being pleased or not with the final results.

ADJUSTABLE WAIST-BAND

This week's winner of the Tailor Trix pressing board is Mrs. Luella Prehn of 24530 Calvin Ave., Dearborn, Mich. Here's her suggestion:

When buying skirts or slacks, I sometimes find that the waist is a little too large. Instead of taking in the waistband, I just run a narrow elastic through the band. This snugs in the waist just enough and helps keep it trim looking and feeling. (This is also an excellent idea when making gifts and you aren't sure of the exact waist measurement.

"Dear Eunice,

"I bought some wool jersey for a dress and I have heard it is almost impossible to get the crease out of the fold which would naturally appear at the center front of the dress. How can I get this crease out?"

Mrs. L.W.

Dear Mrs. L.W.:

The crease in knitted type fabrics is very stubborn to remove. Since most jerseys are woven in a "tube" without any cut or selvage edges, change the fold line.

Re-fold the fabric so that the two creased edges are exactly over each other. You will now have 2 new folded edges where the grain is perfect and without a crease.

TRY VELCRO

Dear Readers,

If you are making clothes for Christmas dolls, try using a small piece of Velcro instead of snaps or buttons for all closings. Much easier for tiny hands to manage.

"Dear Eunice,

"I have a red angora hand-knitted sweater and it sheds very badly. I wonder if there is any way of preventing this? Maybe some of your readers have had the same problem and have found a solution."

Mrs. S.L.

Dear Fans:

If you can help Mrs. S. L. please send your answers to Sew Simple.

Here is a noval idea to file away for next christmas. When decorating make a colorful Santa Clause to place on your light switch. Cut the face out of red felt. All trim is made out of white felt except the eyes which are black. Use pinking shears to scallop the edges. Cut the nose hold out for the light switch, and attach with a circle of adhesive tape on the back of the decoration.

Mrs. W. E. says:

"With winter approaching, many mothers have problems with lost mittens and head scrafs. I solved these problems in our family by sewing a large pocket on the inside lining of each child's coat. The pockets on ready made coats are not deep enough and result in lost mittens and scarfs.

YOUR SEWING GLOSSARY:

Velcro, brand name for a type of woven tape that has a "burr" type finish. It is used instead of hook and eye or other fasteners because the two pieces adhere to each other and will not separate.

Please send all questions and suggestions to Sew Simple in care of Monroe Morning World.

Often Wage Worms Turn On Tough Bosses

By CELESTINE SIBLEY
Women's News Service

Lady in Roanoke, Va., writes in to suggest that I write a piece about bad-mannered bosses.

"When an employee needs help on a job, who else should tell her what is wrong if the boss won't?" she asks. "Some bosses are so puffed up at their own importance an employee is scared stiff to approach them for help on a difficult job. Can you, will you, write an article for 'Big Boss'?"

This one has given me a bit of trouble. My personal knowledge of effective personnel handling procedures, top view that is, is limited to that one day every other week when the cleaning woman comes.

I begin, brashly enough, attempting to tell her what to do. If she is in one of her gracious, conciliatory moods, she does it. If not, she does something else. That's the beginning and the end end of my personal knowledge of how to be an executive.

But I have seen a few bosses in my time and I agree with the lady that not all of them are thoughtful, considerate, courteous. Unfortunately, many of them got to the little pinnacle they occupy by laborious climbing, clawing out handholds as they struggled upward, and not by sprouting the wings of an angel and flying there.

For whatever it's worth to the lady, I have seen mighty few executives who remained in positions of authority when they failed to get the support and best work of their subordinates. It simply isn't practical to allow the hired hands to fumble along without direction or to feel unused and unappreciated.

Household Fabrics Used For Clothes

Southern women during the Civil War sometimes cut up old drapes into dresses, but designers now are deliberately using carpet, bedspread and upholstery fabrics for clothes.

This new use is a result of the never - ending search for fabric novelty in an era whose fashions have become pretty well standardized. A trench coat is a trench coat, but it is new again when made of a black and white Indian bedspread.

Rudi Gernreich, California's top sportswear designer, did coats in Spanish tapestry fabric this fall, and even skirts, despite the weight of the fabric.

Heavy Cluny lace has suddenly become popular as an edging for dresses and at-home clothes, where it was once confined to curtains. Oriental silk piano covers are turned into poncho tops, fringe and all.

Women who sew for themselves frequently use drapes for dresses. They say the colors are more imaginative than those found in most yard goods. A pair of gold and white Fiberglas drapes is enough to make a slim evening gown.

Fur Hat Should Contrast Hair

If you are planning to wear any of the currently popular and fashionable fur hats, learn how to choose one correctly and to coordinate your make-up requisites to achieve the elegant sleek look that these chapeaus demand.

According to authorities you should select a color of fur that is in contrast with your hair to avoid a confused top-heavy look. If you a blond, try black, brown or white furs. If you are a brunette, an exquisite choice would be white, light mink, blond or red fox. And for a flaming redhead, furs of white, black, beige or gray will provide a striking effect.

TIES ON SUNDAY

Males in Papette, Tahiti wear ties only on Sundays, that is except for the local police who wear them seven days a week.

Luckily for a Baltimore, Md., concern with "Prince" in its name, this type of tie has gotten all the business around the warf because the populace is fascinated by princes.

TRY MOHAIRS

Pruning Time For Greenery

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

The program on pruning and espalier art brought to you by Lafayette Ruffin last Wednesday was a timely one, and I'm sure greatful helpful to you. Thanks, Lafayette, for your valuable information given to us at this time.

Now is the time, if you haven't already done so, to prune evergreens and late blooming shrubs such as crape myrtle, althea, and hollies. Also, now is the time to transplant shrubs, trees, vines and ground cover. From the book, "Plant Pruning in Pictures," by Montague Free, we are given valuable information about pruning trees when transplanting them.

Quotes from the chapter "Trees," by Free: "When the tree is a sizable one, say 10 to 15 feet tall, it is often more convenient to do the pruning at the time of transplanting before the tree is put into the ground. First trim the ends of jagged roots. Then prune the top by taking out weak branches, those nearest the ground if a clear trunk is desired, those which are too close to a neighboring branch, any crossing branches, or those which spoil the symmetry of the subject.

PRUNE TOPS

"Trees with thong - like roots will need to have their tops pruned more severely than those with fibrous roots. The amount of the top growth to be cut off depends on the kind of tree and whether it naturally makes plenty of fibrous roots or whether the fibrous roots are sparse, as in oak and hickory.

"In general it is advisable to cut off about one - third from the current shoots. Do not cut back the leader unless it is injured. If after a few weeks of warm weather in the spring, the new shoots do not appear thrifty or if there is no sign of any growth, more cutting back is indicated."

Pruning shears can be used to prune these small branches near the ground. Cuts should be made as close as possible to the tree trunk. Free continues, "It is worthwhile to look over newly planted trees to see if there is any trouble that can be rectified by pruning, paying particular attention to the V- shaped crotches which are a source of weakness. They are likely to form on trees whose buds grow in pairs. Sugar maple is particularly prone to these crotches. The remedy is to remove one of the arms of the "V" or if this leaves too big a gap you might get by with shortening the weaker one. Also, look for branches which cross and rub each other, and cut off the less desirable one."

IMPORTANT

Pruning established trees and pruning mature trees is very important to have a good source of information. Free gives this information to you also, in his book, "Plant Pruning in Pictures." He tells us, "Before you start to prune a tree it is advisable to study it thoroughly. There should be a reason for every cut that you make when pruning it. It is always safe to cut off any dead branches, also those which have been injured by wind. When two branches get together so that they cross and rub each other, one of them should be removed. If this cannot be done without spoiling the symmetry of the tree the branches may be fastened together at the point where the bark is being abraded. This can be done by boring a hole through both stems and inserting a stove bolt of suitable length. The head and the nut should be countersunk. Treated in this way, the branches are held rigidly together and grafting will take place which will remove the danger of spores of disease - causing organisms obtaining access to the tree through the wound.

"If there is an opening caused by the loss of a limb, it may be possible by pruning adjacent branches to direct the growth in that direction. If the tree is not growing completely, shortening the branch tips will force into growth buds that otherwise remain dormant."

PRUNING TIME

"The time for pruning is late winter or very early spring. There are exceptions, however, with the trees which "bleed" profusely when they are cut toward the end of the dormant season. Among these "bleeders" are sugar maple, birch, walnut, yellowwood, beech, and hornbeam, which should be pruned in September or October."

"When large mature trees are in question, pruning them is usually a job for a professional, even if his price does seem a bit steep. But is is better to pay it rather than a hospital bill. It is as good as a circus to watch these tree men work on large trees. They are agile as Tarzan and know exactly how to get around in the tree and the importance of using safety equipment. If, however, it is a case of removing a branch not too far from the ground, you may be able to do it yourself. This usually requires three cuts, the first about a foot from the trunk, making an undercut by sawing upward until the saw binds. Then cut from above about 1 inch from the first cut to remove the branch. This will leave a stub which can be supported by one hand while it is being cut off parallel to the branch or trunk on which it grew.

PREVENTION

The reason for doing it this way is to avoid the possibility of the falling branch tearing off a large strip of bark from the trunk or parent branch.

To promote quick healing, the wound ideally should be longer than it is wide. These wounds if two inches or more across should be treated to inhibit the germination of spores of disease-causing organisms, prevent cracking of the wood, and at the same time this dressing should be one that would be non-injurious to the living tissue of the cambium. Shellac or a paint made of zinc oxide and raw linseed oil is fairly satisfactory. Soot or lampblack may be mixed with the paint to make it less conspicious. Also, asphalt paints can be used with good results, or a paint especially formulated for tree wounds may be obtained from garden supply stores."

Further information on pruning — a chapter on tools, special problems, such as pruning to overcome failure to bloom or bear; pruning understocks for grafting, "fancy pruning for topiary, espaliers, and bonzai; and pruning to curb the ravages of insects and disease — all can be found in "Plant Pruning in Pictures" — a book no serious gardener should be without. If you do not own this book yourself you are welcome to borrow the copy from the Garden Center's lending library. Other valuable books on this and many gardening subjects are available at the Garden Center. Come in and look them over.

Wednesday, College Height's Garden Club, of which, Mrs. Paul Newcomer is president, brings you the T.V. and Garden Center program.

Change Seen In Styling Of Mobile Home

By LEWIS A. WEBEL

NEW YORK (UPI) — Today's mobile home is no longer a trailer and its owner no nomad — he's likely a member of the local PTA.

"The entire character of our way of living has changed so radically over the last few years that one out of every nine new homes built in the U. S. now is a house on wheels," said Arthur J. Decio president of Skyline Homes, Inc.

"Four million Americans now reside permanently on wheels in 16,000 mobile home parks across the nation. Unlike the early image of the trailer vagabond, today's mobile home dwellers live in permanent, landscaped mobil-home communities, laid out with winding paved streets," Decio said.

OWN FACILITIES

Each individual plot has sewer, gas, electricity, water and telephone connections. Some even have clubhouses. Swimming pools, and shuffleboard courts.

"The origin of the industry as it is known today dates to the 1930's when unemployment forced thousands to assume a transient and rigorously economical way of life," Decio said.

The practicality of these homes was soon seen by students and professors in need of temporary housing, by the military, by technicians and engineers engaged on specific projects for a year or more, and by retired persons who had to adjust to smaller incomes.

Today's average mobile home is between 50 and 55 feet in length and 10 feet wide. The exterior walls are made by aluminum, sheet steel or a combination of the two, insulated with spun glass or aluminum foil.

SPECIAL PATIOS

Patios, awnings, and carports are manufactured specifically for the mobilehome owner who takes root long enough to enjoy such comforts. "The average owner stays in a community twenty-seven months," Decio explained.

A typical one - bedroom mobile home in the community costs $5,700 furnished. For $45 a month rent, the home can be placed on a grassy plot containing about 2,300 square feet with a patio, utilities, and garbage disposal.

Split levels are not unusual and many are expandable. One side of the vehicle "telescopes" when it is readied for towing, bringing it down to the ten foot width permitted on highways.

Stamp News

Four new stamps depicting Red Sea fish will be issued by Israel before the end of the year. All four species are found in the vicinity of the Bay of Eilat (part of the Red Sea) and touches Israel's southern coast, reports the Israel Philatelic Agency in America. The 3 agorot features the Pennant Coral Fish. The 6 agorot shows the Butterfly Fish. The 8 agorot illustrates the Winged Fire Fish which hides in caves during the day, but swims out into the open waters every sundown. The 12 agorot depicts the Imperial Angel Fish. These stamps will be available at your local and coin departments.

Fiji has issued seven stamps changing old values and designs in their regular postal series. The three lower values are similar to the old set except that the word FIJI has been changed and the designs vary slightly. The four higher values have new designs — portrait of Queen Elizabeth Trooping the Color — 180 degree Meridian and International Dateline — White Orchid — Orange Dove. Each stamp also includes a portrait of the Queen with the St. Edward's Crown.

The Canadian Postal Administration has announced that in September of 1963 it will issue a new stamp showing four Canadian geese in flight. The release of this stamp will mean that two Canadian stamps will have geese in their designs. The single goose now appears on the 7 cent stamp, but this is being redesigned for release in 1964.

Japan has issued a new stamp showing Japanese children of various ages praying for their unhindered growth to adulthood. This procedure is part of a festival celebration in Japan whereby parents take their children to shrines for praying. Another

Sweden has issued two new stamps commemorating the 80th birthday of King Gustav VI. The 20 plus 10 Ore and 35 plus 10 Ore show a portrait of the King. The additional values on these stamps go to the King's 80th Anniversary Foundation for Swedish Cultural Activities.

The first commemorative stamp of 1963 to be issued by the United Nations will be in February, when the subject will be the United Nations' role in the "Development Through Science and Technology." The second United Nations commemorative to be issued in March will feature "Freedom from Hunger."

Planning on some New Year's resolutions? Why not include a few concerning your do - it - yourself activities around the house? The following list will give you some ideas:

1. I will never use a product without reading the instructions in detail, realizing extensive tests to determine how to get the best result.

2. I will constantly keep in mind that haste is the great enemy of the home handyman, ruining more projects than lack of skill.

3. I will remember that, while certain plumbing and electrical jobs can be tackled, many of them are forbidden by local or state codes.

4. I will make a periodic inspection of the house to determine where there are openings that can be calked quickly and easily while they are small, but which can prove expensive headaches if neglected.

PRESERVATION

5. I will make it a point to close all paint cans very tightly after use, knowing that more than 10 per cent of all paint purchased by householders is discarded eventually because air was permitted to enter the containers.

6. I will not use power tools, while engaged in conversation with a friend or relative, realizing that many accidents occur while the operators are not giving their projects full attention.

7. I will prevent trouble by providing sufficient ventilation when using finish materials and by placing paint and oil rags in a container if they can not be disposed of at once.

8. I will remember that, whether using paint or one of the clear finishes, a vital part of the job is surface preparation and that skipping it will only bring a poor result.

SHOPPING

9. I will recognize, if I decide to buy a house, that shopping around for a suitable mortgage, rather than taking the first one offered, can save me thousands of dollars over a preiod of years.

10. I will try to treat a home project even when it is a necessity, as a hobby activity and not drive myself to distraction completing it.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG

QUESTION: We have to put up some kitchen cabinets soon. The walls are plaster. I planned on using long screws, through the backs of the cabinets into the plaster and then into the studs.

I have been told that it is necessary to place some kind of heavey wooden board on the wall first, then hang the cabinets on the board, but the party who gave me the information wasn't sure why. It seems like extra work to put up the board first, then the Cabinet. What is your advice?

ANSWER: You can attach the cabinet directly to the studs, without a board, but in most cases you'll find it a lot more work. First of all, it's not easy to hold a cabinet in place while at the same time driving screws directly into the studs, even if you have help.

Secondly, doing it this way forces you to place the screws through the back of the cabinet at the exact points where the studs are located, not where you want the screws to be. On the other hand, attaching a board to the wall by driving screws into the studs is a comparatively simple matter.

Once the board is up, you can drive screws through the back of the cabinet into the board, placing the screws wherever you want without trying to line them up with the studs.

Life Begins At 40 Home Suggested

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Furnishing a second-honeymoon cottage can be a lot of fun. It comes usually when couples have celebrated their silver wedding anniversary and married off their children, and have taken a long look in the mirror to discover they aren't old. They're in the mood for the kind of home they've always wanted.

You can get through a major home rejuvenation program without scars, providing you are merciless in carving the new niche, whether you are just remodeling the old homestead or moving into a new one. It means discarding a lot of things that have served you a long while, but have been retained merely because of sentimental ties that have long gone. A hideous lamp from the old office crew or one won at bridge should be earmarked for the junk pile if it doesn't help your home to achieve its goal of unity.

If you can afford it, hire a decorator. It often is cheaper in the long run, and a painless way to have yourself separated from some objects that should be relegated to the ash can. But if you can't afford a decorater here's a plan that has worked for do-it-yourself types who know their way around a paint can. Whether the house is your old one or a new one, it should help you get a new look without spending more than you can afford:

PICK COLORS

1. Decide on colors you both like. Chances are they will be gayer than ones you now live with because there are more brilliant colors available in lower-priced fabrics. Then try to find these colors in a pattern that will go into the room — fabric, wall covering, rug or a painting.

2. Move everything out of each room to be decorated, and don't try to rush it because it's a mess. Do one room at a time. You'll want to refinish or paint your floors and paper or paint your walls. You can see everything in better perspective without clutter.

3. Consider whether you want to cover a sofa and two chairs in a gaily patterned fabric with walls painted in one of the colors in the pattern (as many decorators do in their own homes) or whether you want to use wallcovering in a design and keep sofa and chair fabrics plain. Some people like to match wall background, rug and lamp bases.

LESSONS

4. If furniture is being bought the second time around, lessons have no doubt been learned — such as comfort is as important as styling. Old pieces can be refinished if the wood is good, pickled or antiqued for new effects. Lacquer can transform old furniture, bringing up to date tables, chairs and benches. These objects lend themselves to the primary colors and gay shades such as orange when a single piece or two is used as accent. Needlepoint chair covers may be made for a personal touch.

5. If there is no further use for a family room, consider making it a library - music room or even a workshop. If it has lots of glass and opens on a terrace, it can be transformed into an indoor garden, so that in winter it has an outdoors feeling. Such things as small pool arrangements with rocks, pebbles and a little fountain, Japanese or American style, a cage full of birds, and a bit of statuary can turn the family room into an outdoor room all the year round.

Chili Costly On Theater's Special Menu

NEW YORK (AP) — Celebrating the second anniversary of hit run off - Broadway, the management of "The Premise" reports the topical revue's cast has spoofed over a thousand news events in response to audience requests.

In addition, 100,000 cups of coffee have been served at intermission, 60,000 pieces of pastry and 150,000 cookies consumed. No one has ordered the bowl of chili listed on the menu at $20.

Jo Van Fleet Heads 'Oh Dad' Road Company

NEW YORK (AP) — Jo Van Fleet is heading the road company of "Oh Dad, Poor Dad, Mamma's Hung You in the Closet and I'm Feelin' So Sad." Her replacement in the New York troupe is Hermione Gingold.

The long - run success of Arthur Kopit's comedy has made it necessary for the Phoenix Theater company to rent a second playhouse so that several other plays can be staged this season.

Resolutions For Year '63

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

Several months ago my neighbor, Jean Ritter, gave me the following to which I made a few changes and I'd like to try to live by these thoughts in 1963. Perhaps you'd like to join me in making these resolutions for the New Year:

To talk with God each morning before I walk and talk with people.

To work and not worry; to be energetic without being fussy.

To be loyal to principal even at the loss of popularity.

To be faithful to every honest obligation.

To cherish friendships and guard my confidences.

To be true to myself, false to no one, and earnest to make a real life, while trying to make a living.

To honor no one simply because he is rich; to despise no one because he is poor.

To be even tempered under criticism, charitable in my judgements.

To fear nothing but sin, hate nothing but hypocrisy.

If I can live closer to these thoughts, then I know this community will be a little better for my brief stay.

GARDENING

The use of wood in the landscape adds enrichment to any environment for living, whether it be a large piece of driftwood collected from a river bank or the peeling bark of trees. Sculptured driftwood in a ground cover of English Ivy, trailing periwinkle or monkey grass, may be a topic of conversation in a patio area and wood rounds add character and interest to walks or winding paths.

Neil Odenwald, our specialist, says that a fallen tree might be used by cutting the trunk and large limbs into log rounds. Sink the rounds in aground cover of ajuga (buglewood) or in a non-living surface of pea gravel, shell or crushed granite. Black locust, cypress and red cedar have proved to be of good duration, but treat any wood with a wood preservative for longer life.

An enclosed area for family living can be enhanced by fence panels of the same material used in the house. When the boldness of a fence is too great, a background planting of crape myrtle, yaupan or pyracantha will be helpful. A less conspicuous use is that of trees that display interesting trunks and peeling bark.

Sunlight and shadow effects are important additions to the landscape when limbs of some trees are properly pruned or removed to accent the beauty of other more pleasing forms.

SPOTS AND STAINS

One of the biggest problems during the holidays is the removal of spots and stains from furniture and linen. Mrs. Hissong, our home management specialist, offers these suggestions for the holiday problem. Heat marks can usually be removed from varnished furniture by rubbing with spirit of camphor. If this doesn't work, use any kind of oil and table salt and rub with your finger. White water marks and alcohol spots can be removed usually by rubbing with a touch-up polish. Burn spots can be treated by removing the charred area and staining the spot to match the rest of the wood. When dry apply white shellac with a fine brush until the surface is filled. Let each application dry thoroughly, then polish.

Candle wax can be removed from linens by scraping away the wax, then placing the stain between blotters. Press with a warm iron, changing the blotters as they become soiled, then sponge with a grease solvent.

INTERESTNG FACTS

Sixty per cent of our public recreation areas are located in the west where only 15 per cent of the people live, according to U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Our USDA economists believe that food will continue to take only about 19 per cent out of each dollar of the typical family's take-home pay. This is the smallest share on record, seven per cent less than the share spent for food a dozen years ago.

Instant pea, bean and lentil powders developed by the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture are soon to be market tested.

A THOUGHT

I am only one, I cannot do everything; but still I can do something, and because I cannot do everything, I will not refuse to do something that I can do.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Holly Types Little Known

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Some of our native southern hollies are not known to gardeners here in the south. Because they are wild in only the warmer sections, not many people in the hills and mountains know the yaupon, the myrtle-leaved and the dahoon hollies.

The myrtle - leaved holly (Ilex myrtifolia) with tiny leaves and myriads of small berries plays a little "hard - to - get" in that it grows out in the water of coastal plains ponds and swamps where it takes a boat to visit it. The many shades of red, orange or even bright yellow of the berries of this refined shrub or small tree put it in a class by itself.

REFLECTION

Deer hunters will tell you how these colors dance in reflection on the black waters of the more open ponds and swamps in winter.

The myrtle - leaved holly will grow on dry land as well as in the water. On the home grounds, try to locate this species where it will get plenty of water or remember to keep it well watered if you want it to show up at its best. The fine texture of the foliage will contrast dramatically with that of all other hollies that we grow now. If your nurseryman does not have Ilex myrtifolia, he can get it for you in a short time.

The dahoon holly (Ilex cassine) was thought, by some early naturalists, to be the holly from which the Indians derived their caffeine. Later, it was discovered that the native yaupon was the species used. Dahoon is not too showy a wild plant, as a rule, but a beautiful variety called glencassine is offered by nurserymen. The most striking thing about this holly is the amazingly large clusters of berries borne along the stems near the tops of the small trees. This habit has been carried over to some of the crosses between dahoon and American holly or in suspected crosses like East Palatka.

Even hill and mountain country gardeners know the beauty of the yaupon, as it is one of the most adaptable of all southern evergreens. It can be made into a large hedge or a small one or simply left to grow tall wands up to 15 feet with masses of tiny shiny berries all over. The yellow forms of yaupon are a cheerful color in winter that is startling. There are also very slow-growing "dwarf" forms, too. Although they will get big in time, it is easy to keep them down with only a few trimmings.

Yaupon was made into tea by the Indians. They dried it and carried little pouches of it into battle or on long trips. Though it contained very little caffeine, it did stimulate these red men, and they valued it highly. They even had what might be called "travelling salesmen" in yaupon and in blood - root and red - root.

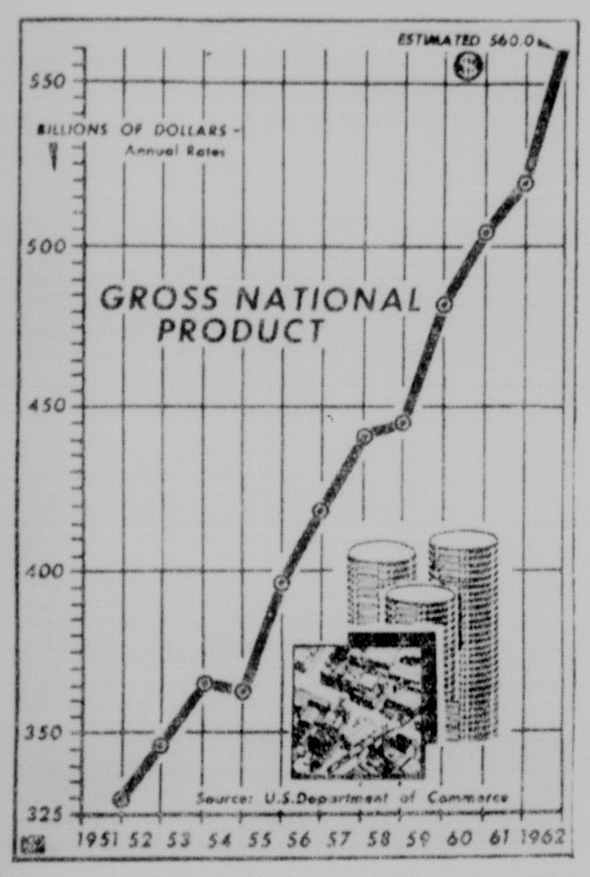
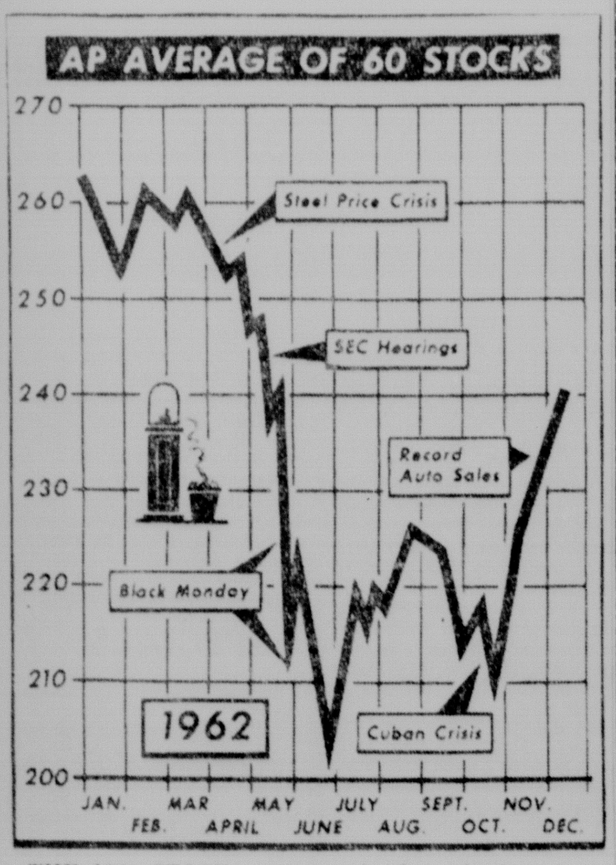
CHART BASED on figures from the Department of Commerce shows how the American consumer spent at a slow rate as 1962 opened but the amount of money he poured into the economic bloodstream increased sharply and steadily as the year progressed. Spending climbed despite the stock market plunge. It was instrumental in improving corporate profits and bolstered hopes for better business in 1963. (AP Wirephoto Chart)



THE DOLLAR value of all the goods and services produced rose during 1962 as shown by this chart. The increase was well below earlier expectations and below the total that would provide jobs for employable persons and put all of the nation's production facilities to work. The slow but steady rise was continuing at the year's end. (AP Wirephoto Chart)



THE 1962 STOCK market rode through the worst crash since 1929 but has since recovered two-thirds of its value, as shown by the 1962 Associated Press average of 60 stocks, above. Stocks had been slipping when U.S. Steel announced a price increase, soon rescinded. Securities and Exchange Commission began open hearings on the market in May. "Black Monday" came on May 28 when stocks had their sharpest break since Oct. 28, 1929. Year's low point came June 26. Since a sharp dip on Oct. 23, the average has had a six-week rise, helped on by record auto sales, which has had no precedent in market history. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

Dean's Condition Reported Better

Dr. Morris N. Abrams, dean of LSU at Alexandria, was reported "resting well" Saturday at St. Francis Hospital here after being involved in a hunting accident near Newellton Friday morning.

A friend of the family said the former Winn Parish school superintendent spent a rather uncomfortable night Friday night, but but was doing considerably better Saturday.

Dr. Abrams was wounded in the abdomen by a buckshot pellet accidently fired at him while on a deer - hunting trip near the Bruin Hunting Camp in Tensas Parish. He is expected to remain at St. Francis for a week or more, recuperating.

GENERAL ECONOMIC ROUNDUP

Fears Of Early 63 Recession Fade As Economy Picks Up

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON (AP)—Fears of an early-1963 recession have yielded to the expectation, in Washington at least, of a sluggish business advance that should pick up steam after midyear.

Many government economists believe that the national output will total $575 to $580 billion in the year ahead—a record, about $25 billion above 1962—and move on up to a rate around $600 billion by next New Year's.

But seldom have the prospects for Main Street and Wall Street been so vulnerable to decisions to be made elsewhere—at the opposite ends of Pennsylvania Avenue, at the White House and the Capitol.

The outlook for a moderately good, non-inflationary year, without boom or full employment could be brightened swiftly, the economists say, if Congress gives early approval to the substantial tax cuts which President Kennedy will formally request in a few days.

After a year-long barrage of administration arguments for a business-stimulating tax reduction, many consumers and business managers now confidently expect it. If Congress says no, some experts believe the public letdown could have a depressing impact on spending and investment.

And Congress quite possibly may say no, because the economy looks healthy enough to many lawmakers to get along without President Kennedy's costly booster shot. Congress members know that a significant tax reduction could help throw the 1964 federal budget out of balance by $15 billion or thereabouts.

Yet the prospect of higher federal spending, deficit-financed, is the main reason why the economists are fairly sure there won't be any recession in 1963.

Outlays by all governments—federal, state and local—are expected to go up $9 billion next year. This is comparable to the rise of $10 billion which helped carry the country over the economic rough spots of 1962.

On the private side of the economy, most sectors are expected to do better than hold their own. They showed remarkable resilience last year in overcoming a winter slump, a government-versus-industry battle over steel prices, a stock market collapse, a mid-summer slow down, and the Cuban crisis.

The economists predict that 1963 will see these trends in key areas of the economy:

1. High and gradually increasing consumer demand.

Total personal income increased every month in the past year. For all of 1962, it reached a record at a level $20 billion above the previous year. "Real" income also went up because incomes rose faster than prices. Savings were high.

The average consumer, in short, is fairly well heeled. But he is also well stocked with the necessities and conveniences of life. He has no reason to splurge; he cannot be expected to spark a buying boom.

He could fool the experts, however. His new car purchases in the last three months were the driving force of a fall business upsurge. This could be another great year for the auto makers, with beneficial results for the whole economy.

2. A moderate rise in business investment.

The planned outlays of industry for new machinery, plants and equipment indicate a rise of 3 to 5 per cent for such investment.

Government experts think these plans may be revised upward later in the year. Tax incentives provided in 1961 may persuade some hesitant managements to take the plunge into modernization and expansion.

But 5 per cent would be just a middling-fair increase. A 25 per cent step-up in investment would be required to achieve a full-employment economy, and such an increase is not considered remotely possible.

3. Cautious buying for business inventories.

The outlook for consumer sales is not bright enough to induce business men to change the conservative rate at which they purchased supplies and materials in 1962. A spurt in inventory buying can help create a boom; a sudden let-up can spell recession. Neither is likely in 1963.

There was a mild pickup in inventory accumulation early last year which subsided. Inventories now are tailored to the rate of sales, and in all likelihood this will continue.

4. Strength in the building industry.

The biggest industry of them all, construction, will have its second record year in a row. Outlays on building will total about $63.3 billion, it is estimated officially. This would be $2.1 billion above 1962 and $6 billion over 1961.

Home building should have another good year, says the Commerce Department. The forecast is that 1,425,000 new homes will be started.

5. Uncertainty in foreign trade and payments.

The growth of the European economies, far more rapid than that of the United States in recent years, is slowing down. This could choke off the continued improvement in American export sales.

On the other hand, European production costs and prices are rising, making U.S. exports more competitive. On balance, the government expects a further improvement in the U.S. trade position and further reduction of the balance-of-payments deficit.

But here again, the business managers must wait for some decisions made in Washington.

If the United States deliberately incurs a huge budget deficit through tax reductions, some officials and legislators believe foreign confidence in the dollar may waver, capital may go abroad in search of a safer resting place, and the outflow of gold may increase.

This risk is well recognized in the administration. It is one reason Kennedy and his cabinet have been reiterating the theme that the tax cut plan is a deliberate strategy to stimulate business, rather than an emergency measure.

Summing up, the economists see no downturn in any of the major segments of the economy or any very dramatic upswing. For business men and consumers, this implies:

Little if any improvement in unemployment. The foreseeable business expansion should just about offset the growth of the labor force, leaving the jobless somewhere near the 5.5 per cent level of 1962.

Some rise in profits, but not enough to bring cheers from corporate management or stock holders. Profits before taxes were roughly $51 billion last year, a record.

STEEL ROUNDUP

Old Way Of Life In Industry Passed In 62

By BOB VOELKER

PITTSBURGH (AP) — An old way of life in the steel industry passed from the scene in 1962. A new era—already born—burst into maturity.

Steelmen said they were being dragged to economic doom by dwindling profits, mounting costs and fierce competition.

It was crushed by government pressure and failure of some big firms to go along.

With do-or-die determination, producers turned to research and modernization for salvation. The only hope, they said, lay in technological advances—new ways to produce steel cheaper.

Money for new plants and equipment started flowing in increasingly bigger chunks. The price tag for years to come will be staggering, but the companies aren't flinching. They're going all the way.

Capital investments in 1961 totaled $1.13 billion. Investments ran relatively light in the early part of 1962 before the clash over prices. Then the tempo increased to push the year's figure to $1.17 billion. Forecasts indicate the 1963 outlay will climb to $1.32 billion.

A significant point: The nation already has all the steelmaking capacity it needs; thus, a sizable portion of investment money is aimed solely at improving efficiency and lowering costs.

Among other things, steelmen are arming themselves with two especially powerful production weapons—computer controls and the new oxygen process which in itself speeds production as much as eight-fold.

Regarding profits, 1962 was a dismal year for the steel companies. Four producers, including the top three, reduced dividends. A host of other firms suffered earnings losses.

U.S. Steel Corp. cut its third-quarter dividend from 75 to 50 cents, the first reduction by the industry leader since the depths of the depression in the 1930s.

U.S. Steel earnings for the first nine months amounted to $122.8 million, or $1.92 per common share, compared with $142.7 million, or $2.29 a share, in the same period of 1961.

Dividend cuts also were made by second-ranked Bethlehem Steel Corp. and third-place Republic Steel Corp.

Another major development in 1962 was the revelation that western producers were ready to compete on an equal footing with eastern mills. Two things point to this.

First came the refusal of Inland Steel Co. of Chicago and Kaiser Steel Corp. of California to go along with eastern producers in their abortive attempt to push through the $6 a ton price increase. The "no" decisions of Kaiser and Inland settled the matter. Then, in October, Kaiser slashed its prices an average of $12 a ton, wiping out the historic east-west price differential.

U.S. Steel started the price hike rolling with an announcement on April 10. Other major producers, including Bethlehem, Republic and Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp., koined in.

Two days later the industry-government fight was white-hot and far from decided. Roger M. Blough, chairman of U.S. Steel, told a news conference that if Armco Steel Corp. and Inland don't join in on the price increase "I don't know how much longer we can maintain our position."

The next morning Inland said it would not boost its prices. Three hours after that Kaiser followed suit.

Exactly four minutes later Bethlehem backed down. U.S. Steel tossed in the towel two hours and four minutes later. The move was dead.

The $12-a-ton price reduction by Kaiser jolted the industry, particularly U.S. Steel and Bethlehem which, along with Kaiser, supply 75 per cent of the bustling West Coast steel market.

U.S. Steel and Bethlehem promptly cut their West Coast prices in line with the Kaiser reduction. With transportation factors weighing heavily in Kaiser's favor, it moved into good position to grab new West Coast markets and even push eastward into markets long denied it.

A Kaiser spokesman said the firm's move was partly motivated by an increase in Japanese imports on the West Coast. Edgar F. Kaiser, board chairman, gave a more sweeping appraisal. He said:

"Western manufacturers and users of steel are now placed in a more favorable position to extend their markets eastward, broaden their lines of products and more efficiently meet competition from midwestern and eastern plants, as well as foreign manufacturers selling in West Coast markets."

The Nation's mills poured some 98 million tons of steel in 1962, almost exactly the same as the 1961 total. The operating rate averaged about 62 per cent of capacity.

Production ran heavy in the early part of the year as buyers stocked warehouses as protection against a possible strike when labor contracts expired at the end of June.

Output reached 83 per cent of capacity by the end of March. Contract agreement was reached on March 31 and production immediately headed downward, reaching the year's low of 46 per cent of capacity in mid-July.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Ouachita Library Closed Tuesday

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

The Ouachita Parish Public Library and all of the branches will be closed on Tuesday for New Year's Day. This is the only holiday which the Library will have until July 4th. Please remember also that the new hours at the Main Library go into effect on Wednesday January 2. On that day the main Library will stay open until 9:00 p.m. and will be open every night in the week until 9:00 p.m., except on Saturday and Sunday. On Saturday it will open in the morning at 9:00 a.m. and will close at 5:00 p.m. On Sunday it will be open for three hours only from 2:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m. The hours of the branches will remain the same as they have always been. This extension of service is done in order to give people in the community more opportunities for leisurely study and reading and is a fulfillment of a promise made by the Board of Control of the Library last spring during the Library tax election.

An interesting new novel recently added to the Library collection is "The Moonflower Vine" by Jetta Carleton. The setting for this story is western Missouri and the time covered is from 1890 to the present. This story should have a deep appeal for those who remember the days before and after World War I. A new western novel is "Westward the Monitors Roar" by Todhunter Ballard. It is a well-written story of action and excitement and is one you will want to read.

A very interesting book of travel and adventure is "Under the Mountain Wall" by Peter Matthiessen. This is an account of the stone age culture of New Guinea as discovered by the Harvard-Peabody Scientific expedition. A new book dealing with one of the most terrible episodes in French History is "St. Bartholomew's Night" by Philippe Erlanger. Joseph I. Dirvin has written a very good biography of Mrs. Seton, who founded the American Sisters of Charity. "To Catch an Angel" by Robert Russell is the delightful and charming autobiography of a blind man, which many people will want to read. "Looking at Heraldry" by Charles W. Scott Giles is a small volume which people may check out for home study. The other books in the Library on this subject are in the reference collection, so this is a welcome addition to this subject.

A very fine addition to the Reference collection of the main library is a complete set of "Great Books of the Western World." Most of the volumes in this set were given as memorials to one of our leading citizens. The Library already has sets of these works which circulate, but this set was needed to use with the Syntopican, which is an index of ideas. Two other reference books which will be welcomed by those who are interested in genealogy are "Abstracts of Orphans Minutes Book No 2 and Other Sumter County, Albama Records" compiled by Nelle Morris Jenkins. This is a very useful book and contains much valuable information. One of our staff members found the marriage record of one set of her grandparents there and she didn't know they had ever been in Alabama. The other is "Union County, Arkansas Marriages, 1829 to 1870" compiled by Annie Laurie Spencer. Union County Arkansas was one of the crossroads for Western travel and this book will also be useful. A Happy New Year to all of you and remember the new Library hours.

Speech On Cuba Beamed Abroad

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Voice of America blanketed much of the world Saturday with the text of President Kennedy's Miami, Fla., speech promising the flag of the Bay of Pigs Cuban invasion brigade would return to a free Havana.

The U.S. Information Agency said the speech was to be carried in full in 38 languages on some 50 shortwave voice newscasts Saturday night and Sunday. Medium wave casts also were beamed at Cuba.

AMUSEMENTS

DANGER SPOT is shown in one of the scenes from "In Search of the Castaways," Walt Disney's production which is showing at the Jim Theatre. The picture stars Hayley Mills and George Sanders.

NOW SHOWING AT the Joy Drive In Theatre is "Bon Voyage," which stars Fred MacMurray and Jane Wyman. The Walt Disney comedy-romance also stars Michael Callan and Deborah Walley.

Curtain Call

Quite a few people worked hard on "Hansel and Gretel," beyond those listed in the program. For the Junior Charity League, Ann Bell, general chairman of the event, performed daily miracles, while Loretta Rivers and Pat Godfrey handled hundreds of reservations at home before the box office even opened.

Jackie Woods, Dollie Petrus and Barbara Jones took care of promotion, publicity and hostesses. Dozens of league girls baked hundred of cookies to please young appetites. A special bow is due Harry Bell and Gauy Jones who spent Christmas afternoon dismantling the Eastgate Santa Claus house and reassembling it in our lobby.

The fascinating and intricate candy and cookie houses that decorated the refreshment tables were executed by Dr. and Mrs. Doyle Hamilton, Mrs. Elmer Slagle Jr., Sylvia Pritcher, and Richard Greene. The charming drawings and paintings exhibited in the lobby were the work of Monroe elementary school children through grade six.

BACK STAGE

Back stage we added valuable workers after the program went to press: Mrs. E. W. Biegenwald, Mrs. B. F. Maxwell, Marilyn Maxwell, Janice Hattaway, Mary Alice Yeldell, Wade Brisbin and Rhett Porter.

The next significant event for Little Theatre is tryouts for "Annie Get Your Gun," on January 2, 3, and 4 at 7:30 p.m. at Strauss Playhouse. Not only will executive director Richard M. Clark be on hand to mastermind the proceedings, he will have with him Bob Beard, the choreographer for the show, whom he engaged in New York.

At least one of our prospects for rehearsal pianist will attend. And we rather expect that Eloy Fominaya who will conduct the orchestra this year will also look in on auditions.

LARGE CAST

As you have read in previous columns, "Annie" calls for a cast of 50 covering a wide range of age and talent. Some of the parts demand good voices and some take dancing ability, but a great many are no more exacting than the average non-musical role. We wish to emphasize again that all parts are wide open to all comers and you do not need to be an accomplished singer and dancer to snare one.

We want to clarify a most important point about rehearsals. Some people hesitate to try for a part for fear they will become involved in daily rehearsals until midnight or after. Not so. Schedules are carefully planned so that actors are called only when their particular scenes are being run. Those with brief parts or appearing in only a few scenes will find that they have to rehearse only a few nights a week or alternatively only an hour or so each night during the initial stages.

OUTLOOK

Naturally the bigger your part, the more crowded your rehearsal schedule, but rarely is anyone asked to stay beyond 10:30 p.m. Of course, as the opening date draws near, rehearsals become more intensive. During the last two weeks of a six week rehearsal schedule, most of the cast will be on tap every night, but late hours are not anticipated even then. Before you allow concern about rehearsals to deter you, we suggest that you come and hear Richard Clark explain how they are arranged.

To the limited extent that your time is surrendered, we predict that you will be more than compensated by the fun of participating in a show. "Annie Get Your Gun" offers an exceptional opportunity to newcomers to our stage because the large size and scope of the cast improve your chances of selection and because a musical is double the fun of an ordinary production. So let's have a tremendous turnout on January 2, 3 and 4 and start the New Year off in grand style for Little Theatre.

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

DEAR FOLKS:

I am wondering if you know how nice canned biscuits can be, and of all the things they can be used for.

Have you ever thought about those good fried pies that grandmother used to bake . . . and we haven't had since we left home?

Well . . . A darned good substitute can be made with canned biscuits! Just roll them out on floured waxed paper with that little ole rollin' pin! Roll 'em flat . . .

Fill 'em with some of those dried apricots which you have cooked that have been boiled with some sugar and fresh slices of lemon. Drop a spoonful or so of fruit on the flattened piece of biscuit which you have just rolled!

Now . . . fold the biscuit in half, prick a few holes on the top and EITHER bake or fry it . . . after pinching the sides so the apricot filling doesn't fall out.

And, if you are in the groove and lazy . . . did you know that you could put any filling from a bottle or can in these? Yep, canned pie filling or even jams of any sort.

And, those of you who are on diets . . . don't forget that these can be baked! Just swipe the top of the folded-over biscuit dough with a little melted shortening! Makes them beautiful, brown and toasty.

PAINTING WINDOWS?

DEAR HELOISE:

To me this is the greatest . . . when painting windows, cut two-inch strips of newspaper, dip them in water so they are thoroughly wet and place on the window glass.

You can paint the window frame without smearing the glass! And listen to this . . . when the paper is dry, it removes itself from the glass.

Thedythe Ross

CLOSET SPACE

DEAR HELOISE:

An idea for crowded closets is to remove the regular standard bar from the closet and put two bars (or clothes racks) in place of the one. Place one above the other.

Housewife

ELECTRIC COOKERS

DEAR HELOISE:

I nearly went nuts trying to clean my electric cooker until I found out that I could fill it with water, add a little detergent, turn the heat on low, use the cover, and let it steam until all residue has gone.

It's a snap. Rinse with water and dry . . . that's all.

Katy Gibbons

BREAD BASKETS

DEAR HELOISE:

If you have one of those wicker baskets which we ordinarily use for bread baskets, etc., that has become soiled . . . it can be cleaned by dipping it in a solution of suds to which a wee bit of ammonia has been added.

Dip the basket in the mixture, get it full of water, hold it up and let the water drain out. Then, taking a vegetable brush, put the basket under the water again, brush the basket itself and all the soil will come to the top of the water.

Rinse well under the water faucet and set it in the sun to dry.

PAINTING TRICK

DEAR HELOISE:

When I paint, I use a paper plate to catch drippings down the side of the paint can. Any paint slopper who gets paint on this plate, can then sop it up with the brush!

Neat Painter

GARDEN TOOLS

DEAR HELOISE:

I wonder if some of these do-it-yourself gardners know that garden tools can be waxed to prevent rusting.

I have found that when buying a new tool that if I just "slop" some paste wax on all of the painted and unpainted metal parts that it will prevent trouble later.

Arnold

DRY READING

DEAR HELOISE:

Once in a while water will be spilled on a nice book. I have found that if I place facial tissues on each side of the wet leaf that this will absorb the moisture and prevent wrinkling of the leaves.

This same trick can be used by applying facial tissues and then using a moderately warm iron to iron them out if the book is quite wet.

Henry

DEAR HELOISE:

I recently noted in your column an article suggesting the use of colored crayons to cover spots . . . I have used red nail polish (very successfully) to cover worn places on my red reptile handbag and shoes and they look absolutely wonderful!

Lulu

TEMPER, TEMPER!

DEAR HELOISE:

Why put oil on the iron grid, heat it, put dough in it and throw away a first waffle? The first waffle always has to be discarded, as it is usually too greasy.

All you have to do is: Take a piece of soft bread and smear some UNSALTED lard or fat on both sides, place in the waffle iron and bake the bread, then throw the bread away.

This is much better than greasing the waffle iron and then cooking a waffle. The grease on the little squares runs off while the iron is heating and getting ready for that first waffle.

The bread (soft as it is) keeps the fat on the top of each little mound in the grid. Besides it saves a waffle.

DOG HAIRS

DEAR HELOISE:

I have found out that a damp sponge will remove dog hairs from our living-room furniture. Just rub the upholstery.

Mrs. Viacobusci

This feature is written for you . . . the housewife and homemaker. If you have a hint, problem or suggestion you'd like to share . . . write to Heloise today in care of this newspaper. 12-30
